Mr. John Jures

A Sermon Preached at 1667

To the

READER.

WHAT We have by way of Preface set before the Edition of the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Chapters, may sufficiently serve for a Premise to these Eighth, Ninth and Tenth Chapters, as holding forth the Use and Scope of the whol Prophesie, and the Authors Intentions in his Comment theron: So as We shall only need now to give Letters of Credence before the World, to the passing of These, as the best, and most authentick Notes that could could any way be obtained, both as the Extracts of the best Notes of Sermons, taken from his Mouth, and chiefly his own Writings, which were more brief. Expect shortly the Eleventh, Twelfth, and Thirteenth Chapters from the same hand. We commit Them, and the Reader to the blessing of God.

Sydrach Simpson,
William Greenhil,

Vers. I.

Set the Trumpet to thy mouth: he shall come as an Eagle against the House of the LORD: because they have transgressed my Covenant, and trespassed against my Law.

The Prophet still continues the Denunciation of Judgment against Israel, with the Declaration and Aggravation of their sins.

Set the Trumpet to thy mouth.

Let there be a full, and free, and open manifestation of the sin and the danger of Israel: The same commandment that we have here to the Prophet, we have in the the 58 of Isa. at the beginning to the Prophet there, Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a Trumpet, show my people their transgression, and the House of Jacob their sin.

Ministers must not only be Trumpeters of the Gospel, Trumpeters of Mercy and Peace, but Trumpeters of Judgment and of War; they are set to give warning to people of danger, and woe to them if they do not, God will require the blood of people at their hands. However peoples spirits may be against it, against the free and bold work of the Ministry in denouncing Judgments, yet the spirits of Gods Ministers must go on in their way: Luther in his time for the freedom and boldness of his spirit inveighing against the sins of the times, he was called the very Trumpet of Rebellion, he inveighs against their sins and threatens Judgments, and they exclaim against him, they are as loud against him, and trumpet out their exclamations against him, calling of him the Trumpet of Rebellion and sedition. If a Town be besieged by the enemy, it is not the crying of children or women that must hinder the beating up of the Drums, nor the roaring of the Canon. God takes it exceeding ill at his Ministers hands to be mealy mouthed, when his wrath is incensed; and therefore he calls the Watchmen that did not give warning by an ignominious name, DUMB DOGS, that cannot bark, in Isa. 56, 10. I remember Pliny in his 29. Book, 4. Chapter, tells of the Dogs in Rome, that were set to keep the Capitol, because when the Gauls did call the Capitol, the Dogs being fed too full, lay sleeping and did not give warning; they therefore not only hanged them up, but every year the Romans observed that time of the year, and on that day, hanged up certain Dogs in the City for exemplary Justice, by way of crucifying of them alive upon an Elder tree, and upon this ground it is thought that the Romans did so hate that kind of death, of hanging upon a tree. And therefore it was the more cursed death that Christ died to hang upon a tree. It is that that God is exceedingly provoked against his Watchmen. for, if they give not warning.
Hosea had proclaimed war before this in the name of the Lord, but he must do it again; from whence the Note is further.

That God's Ministers must not be weary of their work though they see little good come of it; yea so far from being weary or discouraged as their spirits must rise up in their intentions strength and fervency of it.

Before Hosea's voice was the voice of a man; but now it is the sound of a Trumpet: Let wickedness stop her mouth, but let the mouths of God's Servants be opened, yea let a Trumpet be set against their mouths in disclaiming against the wickedness of the times wherein they live.

Thirdly, The denunciation of threatening in the Name of God, it is a terrible sound, if men be not afraid of this Trumpet, and awakened by it, there is a time that shall awaken them, when a Trumpet (I say) shall awaken them and make them afraid, when the Arch Angel shall blow his Trumpet, those that are most awakened and fears the sound of this Trumpet shall have the most comfort when the Trumpet of the Arch Angel shall blow.

He shall come as an Eagle.

Luther upon the place thinks this Prophesie meant against Judah, because of the naming of the House of the Lord, as follows after. And then this Eagle must be understood of Nebuchadnezzar, who is called an Eagle in Ezek. 17. 3. and Jer. 48. 40. But rather I think it to be meant of the Assyrian, for the Prophet here is prophesying against the ten Tribes, and he seems to take away the two great confidences that they had whereby they hoped that they were not in so great danger.

The first was, that they had made a league with Egypt which was nigh hand, as for the Assyrian he was a great way off, and there was not so much danger to be thought of the Assyrians.
Secondly: As they imagined they had the house of the Lord with them, and did worship the true God. Now the Prophet takes away these two, He shall come as an Eagle, against the House of the Lord: that is, the Assyrian, Salmaneser he is called an Eagle, and because he was to come with an Army, therefore an Eagle; (and it may be his Ensign might be an Eagle) you know the parts of Armies are called Wings, and so is compared to an Eagle, to shew to them that their danger is not so far off as they imagined. He shall come as an Eagle, that is swiftly, with a mighty force and vehemency; and he shall have an Eagles spirit, an Eagles eye: the Eagle is quick sighted, and the spirit of an Eagle is not easily daunted: and yet it is observable that in the Law the Eagle was an unclean bird, though the Eagle the King of Fowls, and of a brave spirit, yet he was unclean, God would not have the Eagle offered in sacrifice, but rather the Dove, God many times doth not regard Eagles spirits, those that soar aloft and fly on high, but he doth receive Dove-like spirits, such as are of meek and quiet spirits.

But he shall come as an Eagle swiftly, that is upon the prey before it is aware.

Men flatter themselves when danger is at any distance from them, if it be not just upon them, then think themselves safe, but God can bring evil suddenly and irresistibly upon them. In Isa. 5: 26. He will lift up an Ensign to the Nations from far, and will bid unto them from the end of the earth: and behold, they shall come with speed swiftly. Gualter upon this place applies it to the Turks coming into some part of Germany, they were come on a sudden from the uttermost part of Europe, yea from Asia, and to Spain and Sicily, and Italy; God, to punish the contempt of the Gospel, brought them suddenly upon them. Howsoever the Lord hath delivered us hitherto from foreign Nations, we think our selves secure because God hath put work enough into their hands for the present, the Danes, French, Spaniards, niards, but how easily is it for the Lord in an instant when there is no fear of them at all, to bring them swiftly.

Secondly, All the swifness, and fierceness and quick-fighthedness, and spirit of an enemy is from the Lord: If an enemy be swift in his course, and quick-fighted and fierce, and hath a strong spirit we are to attribute this from the Lord.

Thirdly, Wicked men in satisfying their rage and malice, they are as Eagles; much more should we be in our service, we should not be slow: if they be to sati fie their rage as Eagles, we should imitate them in this to be much more so in the service of God. But it follows,

He shall come as an Eagle against the House of the Lord.

Interpreters differ much about this, Against the House of the Lord: because Hosea prophesied against the ten Tribes, therefore Luther and divers others think that this clause must be meant against Judah, as if God threatening Israel should say, do not you think to escape, for the enemy shall come as an Eagle even against the house of the Lord? But we need not strain it so, for it may be meant against the ten Tribes notwithstanding this expression, upon this ground: because they called that place, the Eminent place, where one of their Calves were set up, they call’d it Bethel, the House of God: and so ironically here the houses of their Idols may be called the House of the Lord, because they chose those Houses and Places instead of the House of the Lord. He will come against the House of the Lord; that is, against that which you account so. But I think that is not satisfactory, but rather this: the Church of Israel though very corrupt, yet before their actual divorce, is call’d the House of the Lord, so that from thence then the note is:

That God doth not presently cast away a Church so as to unchurch it though they may be guilty of many baimous sins. Great sins do not ipso facto, do not unchurch a Church, therefore there should be much patience before any do decline from a Church.
Church by way of renouncing it.

It is a high expression of the privilege of a Church, that it is the House of the Lord, wherefover there is any true Church, yea though it be very corrupt. But you will say, What do you mean by a true Church? I take it for the present nothing but this: Any company of Saints in body to set up what Ordinance of God they know, that's a Church wherefover it is, and here God dwells, here God keeps house; and it is good keeping house with God; He is worse than an Infidel that provides not for his own house: certainly God will provide for his own House: Moses was faithful in all the House of God; that is, in all the Church of God: What then though thou dwellest in a poor Cottage, so be it thou beest a Member of the Church of God? if God give thee this blessing to dwell in his own House, you are well enough. In Ps. 26.8. Lord I have loved the habitation of thy House, and the place where thine Honor dwelleth. The Church is not only Gods House, but the House wherein the Honor of God dwelleth. Princes may have some houses where they may retire to for a time, but they have some principal Houses to shew their magnificence and glory; and such a house is the Church of God unto the Lord; all then that are in the Church, especially Officers, must behave themselves and be faithful in the Church as in the House of God, He will come against the House of the Lord.

Though we be Gods House, yet the enemies may be suffered to come upon us, it will not serve us if we transgress the Covenant: Joab was pluck'd from the horns of the Altar; and so may we be pluck'd even out of the House of God; Gods own House is no security to sin and wickedness. It follows.

Because they have transgressed my Covenant.

God loves to clear his Justice, and to shew what the cause of the evil is that comes upon us, he would have it clearly charged charged upon our selves, that we may not put it off to God's Decree, that we are predestinated to such and such evils, but the Lord hath his time to charge all the evils that comes upon sinners, upon themselves; Thy destruction is of thy self; the bond that is between God and his Church, it is his Covenant, and all the good or evil of a Church depends upon the Covenant; and therefore it was the way alwayes of the people of God when they were far declined from God, to return unto him by way of renewing Covenant; in Psalm 25. 10. All the paths of the Lord are mercy and truth to them that keep his Covenant; and especially all our good now depends upon the Covenant more than formerly the good of the people of the Jews did, because the Lord hath sealed the Covenant now with the blood of Jesus Christ actually, which was not so then. But for this expression we had it formerly, and somewhat was spoken about the opening of the Covenant of the Jews and what kind of Covenant it was, but yet not then fully opened, and as then I said, so still I look at it as a Point that will require a particular Exercise of its self.

And trespassed against my Law.

Saith Calvin upon the place, further to convince them, to shew that it was not through ignorance that they did transgress, they could not say, Lord, what is thy Covenant? for faith God, I did make it known clearly in my Law, they had it plainly set out in my Law: The Heathen can know the mind of God no otherwise but only by looking into the book of the Creature, and there the mind of God is written but very darkly, & they can see but little of it there: I but faith God, my people have my Law where my mind is written plainly, and they may see it there and know what my Covenant is with them, and therefore their sin is so much the greater, they have trespassed against my Law. The Seventy translate these words, They have

The good of Christians depends upon the Covenant more than formerly.
The 70. dealt ungodly against my Law: and the word especially hath reference to the worship of God that is commanded in the Law, they have not worshiped me according to my Law; for though God looks at every part of his Law, yet more especially at that that requires his more immediate worship. And in the Hebrew it is, they have prevaricated against my Law, they have made a shew that they would do what my Law requires but they do quite contrary, that's the propriety of the word in the Hebrew. What people is there in the world but will make some shew, that they would obey Gods Law? no people but say it is fit that they should be obedient to Gods Law, what variety of opinions and practices are there among men, and yet all will father their opinions and practices upon Gods Law? and mark, but they do prevaricate in this; they pretend one thing but they go quite the contrary way, and this is that which God charges his people withall, upon which he would send his enemies, even an Eagle upon them. It follows.

VER. 2.

Israel shall cry unto me, My God, we know thee.

The words as they are in the Hebrew are somewhat different from what they are in your books, for Israel in your books is in the first place, but in the Hebrew it is in the last, that is, To me they shall cry, My God, we know thee, Israel: What difference is this? yes, the words thus read have more elegancy in them than otherwise, and they hint some observations that would hardly be hinted to us as it is in your books, as thus:

If you reade it as it is in your books, then it is only a speech of God to them.

But if you reade it according to the Hebrew, they shall cry to me, My God, we know thee, Israel: They here seem to put God in mind who they were, as if they should say, we are Israel who know thee, remember we are not strangers to thee: They shall cry unto me, My God, we know thee, Israel: It's Israel that cries to thee, Oh my God!

Or as if they should put God in mind of their Father Israel in whom their confidence was; They shall cry to me, My God, we know thee, Israel: Oh remember our Father Israel and deal graciously with us for the sake of our Father Israel: Just like thote in Matt. that would cry, We have Abraham to our Father: so here this people would cry; in their cries in the time of their affliction they would cry to God that had Israel to their Father, we have reference to Israel who did so prevail as a Prince with God, and therefore, we hope we shall fare the better for Israel;

Or thus, They shall cry to me, My God, we know thee, Israel: That is, we know thee to be the God of Israel, we have known how thy ways have been in former times for the good of thine Israel, and Lord, remember how thou hast wrought for thine Israel heretofore, and work now for us in the same manner: thus there is a great deal in this word, [Israel] if you set it in the last place in the verse, more than if you set it in the beginning.

From hence the Notes are these:

First, That in affliction men see their need of God. So the Chalde paraphrase upon this place, Alwaies when I bring straights upon them then they pray before me and say, Now we see plainly that we have no other God besides thee, Oh! redeem us because we are thy people Israel; so that's the meaning.

Secondly, Even Hypocrites and the vilest Wretches that are, in the time of their distress, will claim interest in God and cry to him; even those that have departed most from him will be ready to claim interest in him in their distress. What an impudency was it for this people that had so grofully departed from God, that had gone so against their light, and yet, they will come boldly and claim their interest in God in the time of their affliction? Truly we see the same spirit in men at this very day, the most wicked and vile, ungodly men man or woman that is, yet will be ready in afflictions to claim interest in God; My God. I appeal to you in this Congregation, if one should go from one end of the Congregation and speak particularly to every one, and ask but this question, Do you hope that God is your God? Every one would be ready to say, Yes, we hope he is. This is the impudence of mens hearts that will take liberty to go on in a way of rebellion and fighting against God all their lives, and yet in the time of their distress claim interest in God.

Thirdly, That knowledge and acknowledgment of God in an outward formal way is that which Hypocrites think will commend them much to God in time of affliction; that by which they shall have favour from Him because they have made some profession of God: We know thee: as if they should say, Lord, we were not as others that had forsaken thee, we continued Israel still, we did not turn to be Heathens: It is very hard for mens spirits to be taken off from trusting in formality, in outward worship, we are all Christians, we are not turned Heathens; so they shall call to me, My God, we know thee, Israel; we continue Israel still. Oh! how sweet and comfortable is it then to have a true interest in God? in the time of affliction to be able to say, in truth Lord we know thee, and blessed be thy Name Lord we have known thee, we have had experience of thy goodness, and faithfulness, mercy, love, and tender compassion towards us, we have known thee an infinite all sufficient good, thou hast satisfied our souls with thy love, the light of thy countenance it hath been the joy of our hearts, and blessed be the time that ever we knew thee, Oh blessed be the time that ever the Lord made himself known to us; we can say, Lord, we have known thee, and therefore now Lord have mercy upon us; Oh let us all learn to make more of our interest in God, and to labor to know Him more and more, that we may have this comfort in our afflictions, to be able to say, in truth, Oh Lord, thou art
And our God, and we have known thee. If Hypocrites think it to be so great a comfort that they are Israel, Oh what is it then to be a true Israelite in whose heart is no guile?

Fourthly, Degenerate children they think to have favour for the sake of their godly parents.

We have known thee, Israel.] Children should imitate the virtues of their godly parents, and then they may draw comfort from the godliness of their parents.

But lastly, Hypocrites though degenerate will not only think to fare the better for their godly parents, but they will think to have the same mercy as their godly parents had; they little think of the difference that there is between Israel heretofore, and that Israel that is now so basely degenerated. It follows.

Israel hath cast off the thing that is good: the enemy shall pursue him.

They cry, We have known thee: but they cast off the thing that is good; they profess to know God in word, but in works they deny him. What is it to say, We know God, and to cast off the thing that is good?

Now the word that is here translated, cast off, signifies, Hath put off a great way, yea, hath abominated the thing that is good: doth not only forfake the thing that is good, but to cast off with a kind of abomination the thing that is good.

Hath cast off the thing that is good. That is:

First, cast off God Himself who is as, Anselm speaks of Him, that Good in which there is all Good: God the highest and chief good they have cast him off.

Secondly, The thing that is good indefinitely. That is, they will not be ordered by any rule, they care for the good of nobody but only to have their own lusts satisfied.

But that which I think is most properly aimed at by this phrase, phrase, The thing that is good : is, the Worship of God, My Worship: They say, We know Thee, but in the mean time they cast off that good thing. Oh that Good Thing, that which I hold indeed to be the thing that is good. Hence observe:

Ob. 1. The true Worship of God is the GOOD Thing by way of excellency. We account our Estates are goods, we use to speak in that kind of language, the goods of such a man. Is our Estates our goods? Are they such good things? Oh! what is the Worship of God then? The Worship of God that's the thing that is good by way of excellency above all our goods, that's the good thing that a spiritual heart can prize, that's that which God delights in, and wherein his people enjoy, so much communion with Himself; that's the thing by which God lets out so much good to His People, it's the safety, protection, the blessing of a Kingdom; the purity of God's Worship where that is all other good things will follow, that's THE Good thing; and it is a sign of a gracious spiritual heart to prize the Worship of God in the purity of it as the good thing, above all good things that a Kingdom is capable of.

Ob. 2. Secondly, Yet God's own Worship is by carnal hearts of men repelled, and cast off as evil, if it suit not their own ends, and designs: The spirits of men rise against it, they will not so much as examin things in any peaceable and quiet way, but by prejudice; because they see it not sutable to their own waies their spirits rise, abominating that which God Himself prises.

Ob. 3. Thirdly, Though first men do but only leave God, forsake the thing that is good, yet at length they grow to such a ripeness in sin as they cast it off with abomination; and that's a great deal worse: Meerly to neglect that which is good is an evil, but to cast off that which is good by way of abomination, Oh then the sin of a people is grown to an height, then they are neer to Judgment indeed, when they cast it off; thus men who heretofore have been very forward in the profection of Religion, and seem to love and delight in the thing that is good, but by degrees their hearts were drawn from the waies of God, now they cannot bear the sight of those things to be presented, nor bear the hearing of those things, their hearts rise against any that they see practice them, they now shut their eyes, and stop their ears, and with violence repel the Truth; according to those in Jer. 44. 16. As for the Word of the Lord that thou hast spoken to us, we will not hear thee. Oh! are there not some that heretofore have thought they have received much sweetness in the waies of God, and now not only left them, but their hearts rise against them, and if any thing be spoken for them, shut their eyes and ears and cast it off and even abominate such? Let such take heed that God cast not them off for ever. 1 Chron. 28. 9. (it is a speech of David to his Son Solomon) If thou seek Him, He will be found of thee; but if thou forsake Him, He will cast thee off for ever: How much more if thou dost cast off the thing that is good. Oh! my brethren, let us take heed of casting off the thing that is good; we may pass over many Truths that it may be God hath convinced us off, but let us take heed of casting off any Truth, for then we are ripe to Judgment, then the Lord may justly cast us off for ever.

Lastly, If wicked mens hearts be so vile to cast off God, and his Worship that hath so much good, how much more should we cast off with abomination, that is abomination itself? How much more should we cast off false Worship with abomination and say, Get thee hence? and so all kind of evil and sin that would stick so fast upon us? In Rom. 12. 9. Abhor that which is evil: to abhor it as well as to abhor Hell it self; it comes from a word that is used for Hell. Thus we should learn from wicked mens casting off what is good, to cast off that which is evil and wicked.

One thing further, Whosoever knowledge of God, or profession we make of worshipping Him, yet if we cast off any thing that is good, this deprives us of any interest we have in God, of any comfort in crying to God in our afflictions. I beseech you take take notice of this; They cry to me, my God we know thee, but faith God, they have cast off that that's good. The Note is,

To cast off violently and that against light, any one thing that is good; though it be meant of the Worship of God principally, yet it is spoken indefinitely, to cast off any thing that is good, any truth of God, it is that which doth deprive the soul of having comfort and interest in God, or crying to God in the time of distress: Oh thou sinner how dearly dost thou pay for thy beloved sin? at what a dear rate dost thou buy every beloved lust of thine, when as it doth deprive thee of all comfort and interest in God that otherwise thou mightest have in crying to God in the day of distress?

The enemy shall pursue him.

Obler. When the good of duty is cast off, evil of punishment will come in. By casting off that which is good we cast off mercy, and protection, we open a door to all kind of misery: if we retain that which is good we retain God; but when that which is good is cast off, we lie exposed and naked to all kind of misery, for God owns us not. It follows.

VER. 4.

They have set up Kings, but not by me: they have made Princes, and I knew it not.

HERE we have their Civil apostasie, the other was a Moral apostasie; They have set up their Kings, but not by me. Though all Government it is to hold on God, yet we are to know that God had an especial hand in the Government of the people of the Jews; It was as Lapide upon the place calls it, a Spiritual, and a kind of Divine Kingdom; it was not meerly Civil, the Government that God set over them was typical, it was to typifie the Government of Christ. And hence we are to take this Caution, We may may easily be led aside into many mistakes and errors if we argue thus, That because the Kings of Israel and Judah did thus and thus, therefore it is in the power of any King at these times to do so; for certainly there was a mighty deal of difference between the Government then, even the Government in that State, and the Government now: for State and Church was mixt together, and the Government then it was typical, it was to typifie the Kingdom of Jesus Christ, therefore though God leaves People, leaves States now to their Liberty to set up what Government may be best for them, yet it was not permitted to the Jews, they were to have only that Government that God should reveal from Heaven, for their Civil State: therefore when they would change the form of their Government first from Judges to Kings, God said, they had rejeted him in casting off that.

They set up Kings, but not by me:

Some think that this hath reference to the chusing of Kings at first, because that they did it without Gods Warr-rant when they chose a King to themselves at first, and so they have set up Kings but not by me. But I rather think that this hath reference to Jeroboam and his successors, they set up Jeroboam and his successors, and not by God. This you will say, is very strange, for it is clear in Scripture that it was from God that Jeroboam should be King, and that the ten Tribes should be rent from Solomons posterity for the punishment of Solomons sin, it was prophesied of by Abijah the Shilonite, 1 King. 11. 29, 30, 31. the Prophet came to Jeroboam, and rent the Garment of Jeroboam in twelve pieces, and said to him, Take thee ten pieces: for thysaith the Lord the God of Israel; Behold, I will rent the Kingdom out of the hand of Solomon, and will give ten Tribes to thee. The Lord sent his Prophet to tell him expressly, that he would rent ten Tribes from the house of Solomon, to give them to him; and yet here it is said, That they have set up Kings, but not by me. Again in the 10. chap. and 15. ver. Rehoboam hearkened not unto the people: for the Cause was from the Lord, that he might perform his saying which the Lord spake by Ahijah the Shilonite unto Jeroboam the Son of Nebat.

It was from the Lord that Rehoboam gave such a churlish answer, was from the Lord that he was left to such a Tyrannical, cruel spirit, that the Lord might fulfill the word that he had spoken by Ahijah the Shilonite.

Abulensis thinks that the ten Tribes for the matter of the thing did no more than they might do, and he gives this reason, *for faith he, the people, these Tribes were free Tribes, but Rehoboam would bring them into slavery, and he would reign over them as a Tyrant, therefore (faith he) they might lawfully depart from him and leave him, and make to themselves a new King; and then he puts the Cause, vix. for that a people or Common-wealth (faith he) they first gave the power to Kings and Princes, but they did it upon certain conditions at first, therefore as they first gave power unto them so faith he they may diminish it if they abuse it and Tyrannize over them, for (he hath this further expression) the people did not absolutely give themselves to him, when a people do chuse a chief Governor faith he they do not give themselves to them as a man gives to his friend a piece of money, or a horse, so as they give all out of their own possession, and that he might do with them what he will, but upon certain conditions thus and thus: this Abulensis hath.

Now though I do not altogether approve of what he hath said, because at least the case between People and...
Princes now is different from what it was; then God challenged a peculiar Prerogative over them for tendering their Government, yet thus far in Divinity is true; There is more reason that people should now have more power to call off Tyranny than there was, because now none comes * to Government over others but by *Agreement, therefore if the Agreement and Law of the Country be that they shall be elect and not hereditary, they are so: if that the males shall only inherit, he shall only inherit: and so if the Law of the Country were for delivering themselves from tyranny, so far certainly God allows it in His Word.

But now to answer the Case more clearly, They set up Kings, but not by me; though God had foretold that the ten Tribes should be rent away from the house of David, and that Jeroboam should be set up, yet they did not do this thing in a lawful way as they ought, for they should have consulted with God about the time and manner of it when God would have it done; it was not enough that God did fortell it should be done, but when they did it they ought to have done it in a way of consulting with God, and they ought to have been ordered by God for the way and manner of it, and they did not do it in way of fulfilling the Prophesie, for the people generally knew no such thing but meerly minding their own passions and lusts, they look'd at no further, though God did over-rule it to fulfil his own Counsels, yet they aimed at no such thing. Whence we have these useful Notes for our edification:

First, That we may do the thing that God would have done, *viz. orderly and ordinarily. *Scil. formal or certain.

Secondly, To do that which God would have done, yet if we do not know that it is Gods mind, we sin against God: Though we do the thing that God would have done in
An Exposition of Chap. 8.

His secret will, yet we sin against God, if we know it not to be His revealed will. Now no action can be good, but that which is done; not only materially good, but formally also, that is which is done in obedience to God; and that shews the dangerous condition of ignorant people, all their actions are sin because they know not God's mind in them.

Ob. 3. Thirdly, To go about great businesses without consulting with God, it is sin. Even the Heathens were conscious of this, therefore Publius Scipio would never go out about any great business but would go to the Capitol to pray to the gods.

Ob. 4. Fourthly, Alteration in Civil Government is a great business. God had need be much consulted withal, especially if there be any Church-work mingled with it, there was never a time that England had the calling for such consulting with God as it hath at this. Now England is about the greatest and weightiest business that ever it had since it was a Nation: The very alteration but of an Officer is a great matter and requires much consulting with God, and especially if it be in the Church: it is very observably of our Savior in Luke, 6. 12, and 13. verses, when as Christ was to send out his twelve Apostles as Officers for the Church, the text saith, That he was at prayer all night before, then in the morning he calls his Disciples and so sends forth twelve of them and gives them his Commission. But he makes a preparation all night long in praying to God. Surely those that are about chusing Church Officers, Ministers of God to be their Pastors and Teachers they had need spend daies and nights in prayer. Here they did not consult with God in setting Jeroboam over them, and therefore saith God, they have made them Kings, but not by me.

Ob. 5. Lastly, When we are about great businesses, we must look at God's ends; we must take heed of our passionate wills, and our own self ends, else we do it not by God. In Civil Affairs,
A man that is a Magistrate perhaps doth that which is just, but he is carried on in his passion, but this is not by God; and so in Church affairs, the Church Elders, the party doth deserve it, yet if they be carried on in passion and self-ends, this is not done by God: They have set up Kings, but not by me.

And then further; As the people sinned and God would not own that which they set up, so Jeroboam sinned too. Why Jeroboam might say, Lord, didst not thou send thy Prophet to tell me that I should have the ten Tribes, and yet wilt thou not own me? No, God would not own him.

First, Because Jeroboam did not seek God. And secondly, Jeroboam did not say God's time. As David, he was anointed by God, and though he had many opportunities for to have taken away Saul's life, he would not, and to come to the Kingdom, but he did wait till he saw the time was come that he should be brought to the Kingdom. But Jeroboam would not do so.

Thirdly, Jeroboam had not right ends in taking the Kingdom.

Fourthly, Jeroboam did not administer the Kingdom for God, and therefore God would not own him, and so some read the words; They have not administered the Kingdom by me, but administering the Kingdom by their own lusts therefore God would not own them. From whence you may have these Notes:

First, That when God promises a mercy, if we stay not God's time we can have no comfort of the mercy.

Secondly, When we have a mercy promised we must be brought into it by God, by lawful means; he that believes makes not haste faith the Scripture: many they are so greedy of places, and preferments, and other things they desire, that they make too much haste as if they did fear that if they stay for the orderly coming into the place they desire, they fear they should go without it: What blessing then can there be in that which we would seek to get without God.
God in making so much hast.

And again, When we have a mercy (that’s the third note) when we have what we would have, yet if we do not improve it for God, we do thereby renounce our acknowledgment of it from God. God hath given thee an Estate, or Honors, or Preferment: *What dost thou do? Does thou now abuse this for thine own lusts? Thou dost hereby renounce thy acknowledgment that thou hadst it from God. They have set up Kings, but not by me, I will not own that; Why? because in the way of their Administration they have indeed renounced any right I have to their Government: And so the Seventy translate the words, They have reigned to themselves.

Yea, but it may be said, How were the people that were living now, guilty of this? this was a long time ago when the people did thus set up Jeroboam and rend themselves from the house of David, how came they to be guilty of this?

The Answer is, That they continuing and retaining the Government of Jeroboam upon the same ground their progenitors first raised it, are guilty of their sins. Children going on in the way of their parents, contract the guilt of their parents &n upon them.

And Mercer upon this place quotes an Hebrew, David Kimcbi: That the people now when they saw what Jeroboam and his successors did, that they would keep them from going to Jerusalem before the Lord, and when they saw that he made them Idols, and so forsook God’s true Worship, they (faith the Hebrew Doctor) should have driven him from the Kingdom, that was his opinion: but merely for Religion it cannot be, except the Law of the Country will bear them out in it; any farther than the Law of a State, the Civil Law will bear men out in it: and therefore War, it is not merely undertaken for maintaining Religion immediately, but for maintaining those Laws by which Religion is established, the Civil Right that that men have to the practice of their Religion: And so Wars may be undertaken. If it were in a place indeed where the Law of the Kingdom were utterly against Religion, could not there be justified, except those that had power likewise for the altering those Laws, should alter them, and then take up Arms.

But now, Our taking up Arms is justified in this, To maintain the Civil Right that we have to the practice of our Religion; so that our Case is not the Case of the Chrilians among the Heathens: There is a Law of Nature (I confess) beyond the Right of any Law, and the Right in that cannot be given away by any Predecessors. But because the mischief would be infinit great if it were left to every man to judge, when by this Law of Nature he might resist, and so to resist upon it, this would cause infinit mischief: therefore there is a necessity that men should for their particular suffer, rather than so to resist; it is necessary for us to stay till we be helped by some orderly legal way. I say, the God of Order never leaves people to such miserable Inconveniences and Mischiefs, and therefore for particulars they are rather to suffer, though they should be tyrannized over against the Law of Nature.

But certainly, for the State or Country, they may judge when the Law of Nature is to be maintained, and Right of a Kingdom that the Law of Nature gives, besides that which is given by Positive Laws; the Right of the Law of Nature is never taken away by Positive Laws. It follows.

They made Princes, and I knew it not.

They made some very desperately, and God might well say, I knew not them: but God speaks of them all, not only of those, but even of Jeroboam himself, and Jehu, though they were in some regard set up by God, yet faith God, I knew it not; that is, I approve it not; I approved it not in that way they did it, I let them alone in their way and and let them go on; as if God should say, I neither did nor will take Cognizance of what they do to bless them in it. When we seek not God for a mercy, when we enjoy it, God will not so much as own it to be His.

The Seventy translate the words, They have not made it known to me. When we ask not God's mind and seek not a mercy from God, we do as if we would get it without God's knowledge; we must tell God what we would have before we presume to take it, and by this means we may go to God with more comfort (if we meet with straights) for help and direction; whereas otherwise, whatsoever straights we meet with, if we should seek to God to help us in such a business, God would say, I knew nothing of it, you undertook it without me, and you must shift in it; but now look to it as you can, sink or swim I will have nothing to do with it. We use to put off men in this manner that have any reference to us, if they will go and undertake a business of their own heads, and if they come to any straights and then they should come for our help, Nay, as you undertook it without me so go on without me. So now I make no question but many thousands of the Servants of God in this great business of the State where they meet with so many difficulties, they can go to God and say, Lord, we did advise with thee, and we undertook this in obedience to thee, and now, Lord, help us in our straights; Oh! it is a comfortable thing for to have the use of our seeking God when we meet with straights in a business.

And I knew it not.] Further there are these two Notes from this.

First, God knows how to make use of mens sins, they sinned and yet God brought about His own ends by it.

Secondly, Many things are done in a sinful way, and yet God suffers them to prosper a long time: even this Kingdom of Israel that was thus set up without God did prosper outwardly for 200 yeers together, therefore this is no argument ment of Gods owning a business because it prospers, it is but as a Cipher, ad a figure to it indeed then it will make somewhat, if you can warrant it is Gods Work then you may when it prospers have comfort. It follows.

Of their silver and gold have they made them Idols.

See the ill success of it (so great an evil is it to do any thing and not call upon God) and all because God was not sought, whatsoever we do to satisfy our passions and lusts for our own ends without seeking God, we cannot think but very ill fruit will come of it; though God suffered this Kingdom to prosper outwardly, yet woful mischievous fruit did come upon the alteration of their Government without God; for this Kingdom these two hundred years continued in Idolatrous worship, and it came upon this. We had need take heed to our hearts that we be upright, and seek God in setting up any new form of Government, left though it be very specious to our eye, we may think that we are delivered from many yokes and burdens, yet such effects may come of it, that we may be brought hereby under many yokes and burdens. They cast off the house of David because of the burdens that were upon them, but yet they casting it off from them in a passionate way, now they have brought a greater yoke upon them, for now Jeroboam and his successors, he laies a very heavy yoke upon their very consciences, the yoke of Idolatry; it was a burden that before was upon their backs and shoulders, but now it comes to be a burden upon their consciences, and that's a great deal heavier than upon their backs and shoulders.

They have made them Idols of their silver and gold.] God doth instance in this as indeed the ground of all for the setting up of false worship, & is the foundation and ground of all kind of mischief in a Common-wealth, they were content to contribute their silver and gold for their Idols, they had rather be without that than without their Idols: drossie vile spirits had rather be without God and Christ and his Ordinances, than without their silver and gold, let them have their silver and gold, and let God and Christ and His Ordinances go; yet these Idolaters say, Let us have our Idols and let our silver and gold go. Yea, they parted with their gold and silver to make them gods; but many of you keep your gold and silver and make them Gods too, The Sun (faith Austin) is a more beautiful thing than thy money, but it is not thy god: That which brings in silver and gold to drossie carnal spirits, that they love; but if it brings not this in they care not for it whatsoever it be. *Chrysostom hath another expression: A Covetous man (faith he) is not delighted with the beauty of Heaven, nor with the motion of the Sun: why? because the Sun doth not send forth golden beams into his house.

That they may be cut off.

The word translated Idols, signifies those things that bring them much labor. And then follows: That they may be cut off, as if he should say, they are at a great deal of charge to undoe themselves, many men make their own damnation to be chargeable to them; faith God, They made Idols of silver and gold, that they might be cut off. My end was, that they might be cut off, whatsoever their end was. When we are bufied to attain plots, God he may be working even by those very things we bless our selves in, and expect great advantage by, God may in the mean time be working our ruin in them; Oh consider of this, while I am plotting for my self in this and the other thing, and I am blessing my self in hope of advantage, but Gods Thoughts, and Counsels, and Workings, and Ends may be now cross to mine, even intending my ruin, my eternal ruin, where am I then? Whatever we do which evil doth necessarily follow it, is accounted by God, as we brought the evil on purpose purpose upon our selves. Surely they set nor up silver and gold on intention to destroy themselves, but because destruction doth necessarily follow, therefore God accounts it done on purpose: in Jer. 7. 18. in Prov. 8. 36. All them that hate me, love death: Surely no man loves death: but when you do cast off the instruction of wisdom, you do as much as if you should say, You love death: as here, that they might be cut off. It follows.

Prophane covetous men worse than Idolaters.

Ver. 5.
Thy Calf, O Samaria, hast cast thee off.

THY Calf, O Samaria. He calls the Idol a calf by way of contempt. But why is it called the Calf of Samaria? It was not set up in Samaria: There is two Calves only that we reade of, and yet here it is call’d the Calf of Samaria. The reason is this; that Samaria was the chief City, and because the Calf was by the power and riches, and countenance of the chief City of the Land maintained, therefore it is call’d the Calf of Samaria; Where that’s corrupted, the whol Land wil quickly be corrupted, & where that stands right it goes well wth the whol Land: that’s the reason why the Adversaries seek to corrupt and overthrow our chief City. As all did depend upon what Samaria did; therefore the corruption of falle worship is attributed to Samaria, it is thy Calf Oh Samaria. And therefore if God had not moved the hearts of the People of this City, but we had brought Popery in, it might have been said, it was the Popery of London: and whereas on the other side, if God please to work their spirits right to go on to the end, the children not yet born may have cause to bless this Citie, and say, This is the Reformation that we may bless London for.
Hath cast thee off from me, so some have it. But rather as you have it in your books, Thy Calf hath cast thee off. Whence note.

That though Idolaters promise to themselves safety and protection by their Idols, yet they will leave them at last. All you that go on in the ways of sin, know that those ways of sin of yours will leave you in the lurch at last: as they say, the Devil leaves the Witches when they come to the prison: when Judas went to the Scribes and Pharisees in the anguish of his spirit and cast down the money and said, I have sinned, in that I have betrayed the innocent blood. What's that to us (say they) see thou to that? Therefore the best way is to cast off our sin and wickedness first. But God will not do thus, God will not cast off his People in the time of trouble, and when our unbelieving hearts do think that God will cast us off in the time of trouble we make God an Idol, as if God would do as the Idols did, cast us off. We may in Gods Cause be brought into straights but God will never cast us off in them, when we are ready to think ourselves to be utterly forsaken in straights, then God may be working the greatest good for us; we have a most notable Scripture for that in Isa. 49. 13; and 14. verses, Sing Oh Heavens, and be joyful Oh Earth, and break forth into singing Oh Mountains; for God hath comforted His People, and will have mercy upon His afflicted. But mark, Zion said, the Lord hath forsaken me. They were in a singing condition, and God calls the Heavens to sing, and the Earth to be joyful, and the Mountains to break forth into singing, because of so great a work that God was making for His People: but Zion said, The Lord hath forsaken me. And so it is with particular souls, they are ready to say, the Lord hath forsaken me, but God will not do so.
Mine anger is kindled against them.

When wicked men are brought into the greatest straits then Gods wrath is hottest, and then also Conscience belks and burns most hot; as mens countenances change red and pale sometimes with anger, so it is said here, that even the countenance of God grow red and pale with His anger against this people. Though superstitious men may think that outward pompous worshipping pleases God most; yet we see here that it doth stir up the anger of God, so that God grows even pale against them with anger.

How long will it be ere they attain to innocency.

Mens hearts are stubborn in their own ways, they will not be taken off, wicked men will be true to their own principles, there is a stubborn constancy in evil, as well as a gracious constancy in good, How long will it be?

Again secondly, God is very patient a long time. Then,

Thirdly: Continuance in sin is no excuse but an aggravation of sin to make it grievous to God; when God chastises us we are ready to cry, How long Lord? Will he retain his anger for ever? Know that our continuance in sin, is as great a burden to God's Spirit, he cries out when will they be made clean, when shall it once be? and in Jer. 4. 14. ver. Oh Jerusalem wash thine heart from wickedness that thou maiest be saved; how long shall thy vain thoughts lodge within thee.

Ere they attain to innocency.

The words are, He cannot attain; that is, he is so deeply engaged that he cannot attain to innocency: when men are engaged in evil ways they cannot get out.
Obs. 1. Take heed of engagements in that which is evil.

Obs. 2. Secondly, If by custom and engagement in evil we have no power to get out, this will be no excuse to us. In 2 Pet. 2. 14, They have eyes full of adultery, and they cannot cease to sin: This is the aggravation of sin, no excuse. A learned man of late hath an excellent Note upon this, They cannot innocency: and indeed according to the Hebrew this may as well be added for explication, for in the Hebrew there is nothing else but this, They cannot innocency; the word attain, is not in the Hebrew, and it may very well lute with the time wherein Hosea did prophesie; and the meaning is this: They cannot bear with those who will not joy in with them but will go to Jerusalem to worship, and this provokes the Spirit of God against them, because they cannot bear those that would seek to free themselves from defilements in the Worship of God: there is nothing in the world wherein men cannot less bear one with another than in dissensions about the worship of God, and commonly the Nocent party is the most bitter against the Innocent; as the Lutherans they were worse in their ways than the Calvinists, specially in the point of superstition, but they were a great deal more bitter against the Calvinists than the Calvinist were against them; it was an expression that Calvin hath, Though Luther (faith he) should call me Devil, yet I would honor him, as a Servant of Jesus Christ.

The word here that is translated Innocency signifies cleanliness; false worship whatsoever holiness may seem to be in it yet they are not clean, but God's Worship is clean, the fear of the Lord is clean: it is such wickedness as if God should say, You are never like to wash off the guilt of it as long as you live, it is not so easie to get off the guilt of superstitious worship as men are aware of, we cannot but acknowledge to our own shame that we have fullied our selves with superstition formerly, we had need wash and rinse our hearts again and again, and be willing to lie abroad a frothing whole nights, that we might be cleansed from the filth that we heretofore.
ver. 6. the Prophesie of Hosea. 29

heretofore have defiled our selves withal, yea we should not think much, nor mervail though the fire of Gods wrath comes out against us and burn hot and long, if it may be but to purge us and not destroy us, it is well; for it is not easy to be clesed from superftition; it is only the blood of the immaculate Lamb that is able to cleanse it, (this filth) it sticks very fast. And so much for the fifth verse.

ver. 6.
For from Israel was it also: the workman made it, therefo re it is not God: but the Calf of Samaria shall be broken in pieces.

The Prophet proceeds in his conviction of Israels sin, with the threats of God againft it.

For from Israel was it.

That is,
Their Idolatry was from themselves: It was hard to get them off from their Idolatrous worship, for it was from themselves. Other people worshiped Idolatrous Images, as being deceived, either made to beleive that they came from their gods; as that wife Town-Clerk of Ephes, in his grave, saide speech, Acts, 19.35. faith, their Image came down from Jupiter, or else they were such as were brought from the Temples of other People, whose Original they knew not. But faith God, My People are more sottish than any, for from Israel themselves doth come these their Images that they do worship, they have set them up themselves, they know that the other day they were but pieces of wood, overlaid with Gold and Silver; for their Calves they were such kind of Idols as Israel invented themselves, they were not the same as some think with the Egyptian Apis, that Idol, for that was bigger, it was rather a Bullock, and it was a live one, and with several spots and divers things wherein it differed from the Calves that Israel worshiped.
worshiped, so that the Calves of Israel's worship, it was their own invention. Hence there is these Notes:

Obs. 1. First, That none are so sottish in wicked maies as Apostates. Israel was more sottish than any people.

Obs. 2. And Secondly, To be devisers and inventors of evil, and especially of any thing in the Worship of God, of false worship, it is a great aggravation of ones sin; Those that are the first inventers and devisers of wickedness, and especially of any false worship, they are most wicked and abominable before God. It was from themselves.

Obs. 3. Thirdly, What comes from our selves we will stick much to in the Worship of God. For this is given as a reason why they could not be brought off from that false worship; It was from themselves: And hereby men shew that they honor their own Fancies and own Wills above the Will of God, and the Mind of God: We will a great deal more easliy part with the Worship of God, that comes from God, than with Worship that comes from our selves.

Expos. For from Israel was it also.

There is somewhat in that likewise: that is, As formerly in the wilderness they set up a Calf, so here again from Israel also: Former examples of Gods wrath against their progenitors will not deter them, they follow stil the guize of their Ancestors in false worship.

Obser. No sin is more hereditary than Idolatry: Hence the second Commandament only threatens to visit the sins of the Fathers upon the Children, because Idolatry is so hereditary, From Israel also.*

The workman made it; therefore it is not God.

There are Two Arguments why their Calf was not God.

First, From the workman that made it. Secondly,
Secondly, Because it should be taken in pieces. It's the greatest folly to look upon that which hath its excellency from our selves to be superior above us, and that in the highest degree. To forsake that God that made us, and to make that to be a God unto us that we have made our selves: The Father looks upon his Child as inferior to him, because he was the instrument of his being, and so he may well: If any man have maintenance by one, or is raised by him, he expect that he should be serviceable to him. Only Idolatry makes men go against the very principles of reason: They made it and yet they accounted it their god.

And an especial Note from hence is, That man by any work of his own cannot put a Divinity upon a creature. They made it, therefore it is not God. Man by any work that he can do cannot put Divinity upon a creature; no, he cannot so much as put holiness into a creature; all the workmanship of man by his consecration or any thing that he can do, cannot make stones and mortar to be holy, so as now it should be a sin to use them to any * common use; man takes too much upon him to think to raise the creature so near to a Divinity, he cannot by any work of his put any Religious respect on any creature so as that God shall be neerer to him, or he neerer to God than in any other place. Whatsoever is of mans work in Gods Worship it perishes in the use of it, surely then mans creation cannot be God. The work man made it, therefore it is not God.

Indeed there is a creation of man that the Scripture speaks of that is called, God, but not truly, not God really, rather a Metaphorical God; that creature that the Scripture speaks of in 1 Pet. 2. 13. he calls their Kings and Governors mans creation, man made them; and you know the Scripture calls Governors, Gods. I have said, you are Gods.* I but it is said, they die like men: this text will shew it: if man made them they cannot be Gods. And the former Scripture tells us, that Kings and Governors are mans creation.

Idolatry drives men against principles of reason.

* in case of need.
creation. In your books it's translated \textit{mans Ordinance}; but it is in the Greek, \textit{mans Creation}: man made them and therefore they are not \textit{Gods}; therefore we must not give them the honor of a \textit{God}, to subject our consciences unto them, no, neither are we bound to subject our outward e-flates and liberties, and lives to their honors and lufts, meerly to their own wills, for this is proper to God to subject all to his will, meerly because it is his will; but seeing man made them they are not truly \textit{God}, and therefore they must not have the honor that is due to God.

If all the Art, and Skill, Power and Riches, if all the men in the world were put together, and all the wisdom and power of Angels joyned to it, to extract all excellency in all things in all creatures, and to make that which should have all created excellency in it, yet this surely could not be a \textit{God} unto us; I say, if we conceive all art, skill power, and riches, of all the world brought together into one man, yea, all the skill and power of Angels put into him too, and if he were able to make an extract of all the excellencies of all creatures, and put into one thing, yet this could not be a \textit{God} unto us; because it was made. And shall we say further, God himself by his infinite power cannot make any thing to be a \textit{God} unto us: I say, God himself by his infinite power cannot make any thing to be a \textit{God} unto us; if he himself were made he could not be \textit{God} unto us; nay, if God himself were made he could not be \textit{God}: therefore surely that which the workman hath made cannot be a \textit{God}.

How vile then are our hearts? and how do we debase ourselves, to subject our selves to every vanity, as if it were a \textit{God}, when as that all the power in God himself cannot raise a created excellency to that height as to be a \textit{God} unto us? how vain is the heart of men that makes pleasure their god? as the voluptuous, his belly; that makes money his god, as the covetous; that makes honor and the applaufe of men, as the ambitious, to be a god unto us.
Bernice and Agrippa came with great Pomp, they came with much Phaنصιे as the word signifies; the excellency that al their pomp had, it was but that that phanنصیى put upon them.

In this God shews the excellency of an Immortal Soul, that it is in that excellency that only an Infinite Eternal being that is of Himself can be a God to us.

Again, This is an argument against the Idol of the Mass; a vile Priest, a filthy Whoremaster makes it a God:
What a Deity is that that is from his maker? Is there any greater humbling-block to Jews, Turks, or Heathens, to keep them from Christian Religion than this, That Christians should make their God, and eat him when they have done?
That's the first Argument: It is no God, because the workman made it.

Secondly: But the Calf of Samaria shall be broken in pieces.

No God surely. He speaks here with indignation (it is not God, it is a Calf) as he doth in that of the Paimist, he made a Calf that eat grass, It shall be broken in pieces, it shall not be able to help it self, much less help them; it shall be as Dagon before the Ark, broken all to pieces.

Hierom upon the place faith, that he learned from an Hebrew (this word, broken in pieces, the word is not a Verb, but a Noun, shall be breakings in pieces) he learned from an Hebrew, that this word signified a thin web, like Spiders webs in the air. As you see in some times of the year in the Fields, thin Webs, and upon the grass, thin webs like Spiders webs that presently dissolves into Attoms; so that their Calf shal be like unto those thin Webs, like unto Spiders Webs that dissolves itself and comes to nothing. All the confidence and hopes in any thing we set up in the place of God, it's such unto us; What difference is there between such a thing and a strong Rock, and an high To-

An Exposition of

Chap. 8.

And again, The word signifies Saw-dust that comes from Timber that is sawn, and so it shall be broken in pieces: Look as the Calf in the wilderness was broken even to dust, to powder, and Moses made the people drink of it; so God will serve this Calf.

And then further observe: Idols are to be broken in pieces; so God commanded,

Exod. 34. 13. Deut. 7. 5. Ezek. 20. 7. with many other Scriptures; and thus godly Magistrates have ever done, broke Idols in pieces. And blessed be God for that that hath been done of late among us that so many Idols, and that great Idol that was in the eminence place of the City, that God put a spirit into those that were in Authority to break it in pieces: it must be done by the Magistrate.

I remember Austin in his sixt Sermon upon Christ's Sermon, speaking of that place in Deut. 1. 5. first, faith he, Ye must possess the Land, and then, you must overthrow their Altars. And then notes, That those which have the possession of the Land, as now those Publick places, men only in Authority have the possession of them, and therefore it is for them to break the Idols in pieces. In the City of Basil we read, that every Ash-wednesday (as they call it) is observed a Featival instead of the Popish Fast on that day, because of the burning of Popish Images, and they account it a great mercy. And though we have no such warrant to observe such a day as an Holy day, yet certainly as a day of an outward civil rejoicing, we have cause to observe those times wherein notorious and abominable Idols have been broken in pieces.

Again, Whatsoever it is that is subject to be broken in pieces, certainly we are not to make it to be our God. Now all creatures in the world are subject to breaking, your estates are in danger to be broken in pieces, therefore they are not Gods; that's the argument of the holy Ghost here: yea it may be many of your estates are broken in pieces already.
ready. Oh what poor Gods were those that you made to your selves before, and so any creature whatsoever? therefore Oh let’s trust in the Lord for ever, for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength. Isa. 26. 4.

The last note from hence is this, That the putting too much upon a creature, the bringing a creature too near to God, and Deifying of it makes way for the destruction of that creature. The Calf of Samaria shall be broken in pieces because it was made an Idol: If you will make use of your estates as a servant to you, to fit you for God’s service you might keep it, but if you would set it up in God’s place, it is just with God it should be broken in pieces: Whatsoever you set your hearts upon and make a God unto you, it’s just with God it should be broken in pieces; if you set your husband, your wife, your child, your friend, in the place of God, it’s the only way to undo them, to undo them in respect of you at best. Many great Instruments of God, God hath been fain to break them to pieces, because that men have set them up in the place of God, and made even Gods of them. It follows.

Ver. 7.

For they have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind.

Sowing is a laborious work; and this Idolatrous people were very laborious, took a great deal of pains about their false worship. Those that sow they must be abroad in the cold and wind; Idolaters were willing to take pains and go through many difficulties for the furtherance of their false worship. Let not us be sluggish then in the true Worship of our God, let us be willing to pass through many difficulties to further the service of our God.

Secondly, Sowing is a labor without any present profit coming in by it, the benefit of the labor it lies in expectation for the future.
Idolaters are content to sow though they gain nothing by their labor, yet in expectation of somewhat hereafter. We are presently weary of a little labor except we find somewhat coming in presently; we cannot wait for the blessing of the former and latter rain upon our endeavors, we must be always reaping or else we are wearied and discouraged; Idolaters would work hard though they get nothing for the present, how much more should we labor for God in expectation of the harvest that God hath provided?

Thirdly, Sowing is a work for the maintaining of the succession of provision for one generation to another. "Idolaters they labor to keep up their false worship for the posterity that is coming after"; they are not content to enjoy it themselves all the while they live, but they take a course to have those they leave behind them to enjoy it when they are gone. Thus we should do, and great reason we have to do thus, in the true worship of God, not think it enough to enjoy it our selves, but to take all ways that possibly we can that we may leave our posterity to enjoy it, that we may sow for posterity as well as for our selves, that we may leave a stock of provision for our children afterwards. Through God's mercy our forefathers did so, and we have reapt the harvest of their seed, and through their endeavors we have enjoyed much of this worship of God, and the Truths of God, let us likewise sow for those that are coming after.

Fourthly, Sowing is a work that must be done in its season or it is in vain. Idolaters they will observe their seasons, their fit times for the furtherance of their false worship; much more should we do for the worship of God. We have had a fair season, and we have seemed to be very busy, the Lord grant we do not sow the wind, as it follows in the next words, They have sown to the wind: This is a proverbial speech that signifies, the taking a great deal of pains to little purpose; As a man that should go abroad in the fields, and spread his hands about and take pains, and and yet hath nothing but air in his hands. The Wind is an empty creature in respect of things that are solid, therefore the Scripture doth often make use of this creature to signify the vanity of the labors, the hopes, and endeavors of wicked men; you shall find these several expressions in Scripture tending to this purpose: as the Laboring for the wind, Eccles. 5. 16. Secondly, to feed upon the wind, Hos. 12. 1. Thirdly, to bring forth the wind, Isa. 26. 18. And fourthly, to inherit the wind, Prov. 11. 29. And fifty, here in the text, sowing to the wind.

Many people do nothing all their lives time but sow the wind, they labor and toil, but what comes of it? it is no good account that we can give to God of our time, to say, that we have taken a great deal of pains; we may take pains and yet sow the wind.

Who are those that sow the wind?

First, Men that spend their thoughts and strength about things no way profitable to themselves or others, those sow the wind; those that do with a great deal of earnestness, do just nothing, or what they do is but a trifle; many Scholers study night and day, they tire themselves with reading, and musing, and writing, and yet they are no way useful; either their studies have been in useless things, raking among rubbish and lumber, or else they know not how to make use of their reading and learning; and indeed it is a pittiful object to behold, to behold one that hath been all his daies a great Student, and hath beat his brains, and rose early, and gone to bed late, grutch'd the very time of his meat, and yet he is a useless man in the place where he is, he hath no use at all of all his studies, he is of no service to Church or Common-wealth: Here's a man that hath all his daies sown to the wind.

Secondly, All those who take pains and are at great cost in superstitious worship, all their intentions that they have to honor God they come to nothing, it's but a sowing to the wind; and this is that which is here especially meant.
They sow the wind. All Idolatrous worshippers that take much pains and are at great cost they do but sow the wind: How many Papists have we that dares not for their lives but rise at their hours that they have vowed, to rise at midnight to their beads, or very early, spend many hours every day at their beads, wear out their bodies by their fasting, by their watching, deny themselves the use of the creatures, wear sackcloth, lie very hard, tire their bodies by pilgrimage, for sake their revenues, that their progenitors had left them, vow perpetual virginity, but themselves up in Cloisters, what a deal of labor and toil is here to the flesh, and all this with conscientiousness, all this with a desire to honor God, and to afflict themselves for their sins? And yet this not having warrant from God being a will-worship, all this is but sowing the wind, they lose all their labor, cost, and charge, and all their thoughts, and devotions they are all lost.

Thirdly, Such as are formal in the true Worship of God, as content themselves in the outward part of God's Worship, having no power nor life of godliness in their service they perform: You have many that do things out of custom, content themselves in the deed done, dare not for their lives neglect Prayer, not one morning nor evening, nor at other times, and are often with God's People in fasting, or coming to hear the Word; but yet all this while being but formal, they not having the life and power of godliness in these duties, they do but sow the wind, they lose all their labor, and when they shall come upon their sick-beds, and death-beds, and desire comfort from what they have done, they shall find nothing but the wind to feed upon, all will be turned into wind, and they will have no solid comfort for their souls to feed upon in the day of their distress.

Fourthly, Those men sow the wind, who do all that they do out of vain glory, in hypocrisy, to set up themselves among others, spend a long time in prayer, hath admirable ble gifts in prayer, sweat and spend their strength in prayer, but yet a principle of vain glory acting of them all this while; they have been sowing the wind all this time. Men that are publick parted and do abundance of good in the Church of God, and in the Common-wealth, but yet having a principle of self and vain glory that acts them, they lose all, they sow the wind all this while.

A sort that sows the wind, are such, as leaves the rule of the Word, and carry on their actions altogether by the rules of Carnal Policy, thinking to do great things by the fetches, and reaches they have that way. Your Carnal Politicians that have the Word and Worship of God as things under their feet, but that which their deep reaches are after, are some higher things; they sow the wind. And thus the people here at this time, it was carnal policy that carried them in that way they were in, and God calls it all, but sowing the wind; they thought they had framed to themselves a notable piece of work, but faith God, It is but sowing the wind.

Sixthly, Such as seek to shift for themselves by sinful ways when they are in any straits, such as go out of any lawful courses to help themselves out of trouble, these are they that sow the wind to themselves, there will nothing come of all the labor they take.

Now first, here the Church of God may have much comfort in this thing, That all Idolaters, that all false worshipers, that all carnal politicians that are working against them, in all they do, they do but sow the wind, they can never prevail, be not afraid of them. The seed-time of our life is a seed-time for Eternity: It's an evil & dangerous thing therefore now to sow the wind, to lose this seed time, and to have nothing for our souls to feed upon to all eternity. Oh! how sad will it be when we are entering in upon Eternity, then to see that we have all our life-time sown the wind? Did men consider of their actions, that their actions were seeds for Eternity, certainly they would take more.
more heed what they do. Men are very careful of their seed; What Husband-man that is to sow his ground, would go into a Market to buy Chaff, to buy blasted stuff to be his seed; no, he would buy the greatest and plumpest Corn of all to be his Seed. So should we be careful of all our actions, for they are such seed as must bring forth an harvest of eternal happiness, or else eternal sorrow; and especially we had need look to our Seed when God gives us a fair opportunity of sowing. All Hypocrites and Formalists, and False-worshipers, they sow the wind, their actions are but as the wind: but the Servants of God whose works come from Faith, and are indeed godly, they sow to immortality and glory, their Seed will bring forth a glorious harvest. I remember Luther, though he were a man that seemed to beat down works very much, yet he hath this passage concerning works: Take works out of the cause of justification, and no man can too magnificently commend good works that come from faith. And speaking of a good work that comes from faith, It is more precious (faith he) any one good work, it is a more precious thing than Heaven and Earth: yea, he himself that is no Merit-monger yet he lifts up good works that come from faith, and faith, the whole world is not sufficient reward for one good work that comes from faith: Indeed the works of the Saints have a great deal of excellency in them, one gracious work hath more of the glory of God in it than all the creation of Heaven and Earth besides, I say, the whole frame of Heaven and Earth hath not so much of the Glory of God in it as one good work that comes from the Grace of God in the hearts of the Saints; and my reason is this, because a good work that comes from the Grace of God in the hearts of the Saints, it is a reflection of spiritual life that is the very life of God, the Scripture calls it, The Life of God, and the Divine Nature; Now, an action of spiritual life doth more set out the Glory of God than any Glory that God hath passively; as the Glory that he hath in the frame of
of the Heavens and Earth it is but a passive glory; but here the very glory of God is reflected upon his own face, it is a glory of spiritual life: A man doth not account one so much honored in an Image that is drawn of him, as when he seeth his child to act as he himself doth act, when his child shall present himself in doing that which he himself doth do. Now all the frame of Heaven and Earth it is not so much as a picture, it is but as the foot steps of God, and the back parts of God; but in one gracious action of the Saints there God sees his child act as himself doth, he sees the workings of his own holiness and his own virtues; we shew forth the virtues of him that hath call’d us out of darkness into his marvellous light. Ministers of all men they had need take heed they sow not the wind, God hath made them Seeds-men of that eternal Seed of his Word, if they then either because they be loth to take pains, or to be at the charge for good Seed, they sow husks and chaff, and bring meely empty words unto their people; or if they do take pains enough, but bring their own fancies and counsels instead of the precious immortal Seed of the Word, they do but sow the wind. The Seventy translate this that we have here: Sow the wind: Thus; They sow those things that are corrupted by the wind; those actions that pride corrupts, will never bring forth good fruit. It follows.

And they shall reap the whirlwind.

As we sow, so shall we reap. The word in the Hebrew (Tremellius upon this place notes) hath a syllable added more than ordinary; and that faith he is to encrease the signification of it: To note, that this is not only a whirlwind, but a most terrible whirlwind. And mark: he doth not say they sow the wind, and they shall reap the wind; no, there is more in the Harvest than in the Seed; if men will sow the wind, they must expect to reap the whirlwind.
wind. If thou haft but a little pleasure in thy sinful ways, thou must expect a great deal of miseries in the fruit of thy ways. Their labor shall not only be in vain, but much evil shall come, sudden and violent destruction shall come of their labors. All sinful actions are like unto the sowing of the wind in the earth: Now we know if windy vapors be got into the earth, they cause Earthquakes, they break forth into whirlwinds, into violence: and so wicked actions they break forth into violence and irresistible evils, and will cause heart-quake and destruction shall come of their labors. All inful actions are like unto the sowing of the wind in the earth: Now we know if unindy vapors be got into the earth, they cause Earthquakes, they break forth into whirlwinds, into violence: and so wicked actions they break forth into violence and irresistible evils, and will cause heart-quake at last. Great is the power of the whirlwind, the Scripture sets it out as very great in 1 Kings, 19. 11. A strong wind that rent the mountains and tore in pieces the rocks, overturned the mountains by the roots. Job, 28. 9. this it is that breaks the Ceders. Sabelicos reports that upon a time, Cambyse's Soldiers being at dinner in a sandy place, there rises up a whirlwind and drives the sand upon them so that it covered them and choaks them al: And yet, what's the wind, but many vapours being put together? and yet, Oh the mighty strength that there is in them! By the way this meditation may be raised here: What, shall the addition of many such weak things as vapors are come to such a mighty strength? Oh then, what's the strength of the infinite God unto which nothing can be added? Ad many vapors together and it causes strong winds that rends up the Mountains by the roots; if many weak things put together (I say) come to that strength, what's the strength of an infinite God unto which no strength can be added?

Obs. 1. But observe out of the words, Just with God it is, that those that sow the wind (in all the former regards, those six particulars that were named) that they should reap the whirlwind; should be brought into trouble and vexation, miserable and unremedable distresses: you that spend your time about trifles when as God sets you in the world upon work of great consequence, it is just with God that you should.
should have horror upon your spirits hereafter, when God shall make you to see how you have spent that time upon which eternity depended, upon sowing the wind all your days: And you that spend your time in false worship and to think to put off God in your false worship, it's just with God that you should reap the whirlwind. And so you that spend your strength and time in formality of worship and never sanctifying the Name of God, it were just with God that horror and distress and trouble should fill your souls. And so you that aim at your own ends and vain glory, when as you should set up the Name of God in your waives, it's just with God that miserable horror should possess you: How many have lain upon their sick-beds and death beds and cried out, Oh I have done all in hypocrisy! and so horror of conscience hath been as a whirlwind unto their souls. And so carnal politicians that have left God and sought to provide for themselves and others, that by sinful courses have sought to deliver themselves out of straitways, the Lord many times brings them into most dreadful straitways and the worm of conscience gnawing upon them, and they have found by experience that they have reaped the whirlwind. And indeed we have begun of late to corrupt the Worship of God, and were carried on by wicked devilish carnal policy, How did we sow the wind? and the Lord hath now made us in great measure to reap the whirlwind. Job saith the whirlwind comes from the South; but indeed the truth is, we have had whirlwinds coming from the North and West, and may yet have whirlwinds coming from all parts of the Kingdom, For what hath the Land done of late but sown the whirlwind? Let us not wonder though God doeth at this day speak unto us out of the whirlwind, as once he did to Job.

Yea, but many they say, That that we have sown it hath some substance in it, it is not only the wind, for we see that it comes to a blade, it comes forth.
Yea, but faith God here, It shall not bring forth a stalk. I beseech you observe the words that follow, It shall not bring forth a stalk. But it may be a stalk may come forth: I but faith God, It shall be crushed before it comes to the bud. But what if it doth bud, it shall be blasted, it shall not come to the meal. I but what if it come to the meal? Then strangers shall devour it faith God; so it follows, They sow the wind, and reap the whirlwind; it shall not grow to a stalk, or to the bud, or there shall be no meal, or strangers shall devour it. A most elegant expression it is to shew God's watching over an apostatizing people for evil, and to shew that in whatsoever they may seem to prosper for a while, yet at the last the Curse of God will be their ruin.

Obs. 2. Though sometimes God's Curse is upon wicked actions, so that nothing comes of them; yet at other times they may be suffered to seem to prosper, to have some degree of growth, God may let them come to a stalk, or to the bud, or to the meal; this notes the possibility. It may come to the stalk, possibly to the bud, possibly to the meal, but then all shall come to nothing.

My brethren we have found it so by experience; as it was here in this people, for it was spoken of their wicked Idolatry, and their carnal policy. And hath it not been so with our Adversaries? Some of their actions God hath curst them presently, and then they have grown up to a blade, and they have seemed to have meal in them, but then the Curse of God hath come upon them: Oh ! the uncertainty & the vanity of the comforts of ungodly men! When can they bless themselves in any one project? When it comes up to the blade? No faith God, it shall not come to a stalk: God watches there that it seldom comes so far. Well, but then, will they bless themselves if it hath gotten up to a stalk? No, not then neither, God curses them. But if it bud, *now may they not bless themselves? Oh! our projects begin to bud, and they thrive bravely, may they not:
not bless themselves now? No, God watches them there, and curses them in the very bud. I but what if it comes to meal, that it's ready now to come to a full issue, and ready even to come to be eaten, now that they come to feed upon their projects, and they think all is sure? No, the curse of God is upon them there, strangers shall devour it. Blessed be that God who hath followed our Adversaries this way. How often have they blessed themselves, and when they have had one design, this will do it. Oh! how finely it works! and perhaps they get the very advantage that they themselves desire, and think all is well, and then God's Curse comes upon them. We are my brethren too unbelieving, we are ready to fear if we hear but of any thriving of any plot and project of our Adversaries, if any stalk doth appear, and especially if they begin to bud, Oh! then we think they ripen, & we do not look up to the great God who doth take delight in blasting the projects of the Adversaries; as the Blessing of God is upon the good actions of his people, so the Curse of God is upon the wicked projects of his enemies. God may seem many times to leave many a good action, but God doth carry it through at length, though it seems to have many things that would crush it in the very bud, yet God carries good projects through many difficulties, and God crushes wicked projects through much prosperity.

Lastly, To have the satisfying of our desires to go on a while, Obs. 3, and to have them cut off before we enjoy them, is a great judgment; but just with God it should be so: for ordinarily we are thus in our obedience, that usually withers before it comes to any ripeness; if it get up to the stalk it may be it comes not to a bud; if to meal, some strange lust or other comes in and devours it; Oh how many times doth our strange lusts devour our good actions that comes forth a good way? How many in their young yeers, we had thought very gracious seed began to sprout forth, and we had thought that the seed grew to a stalk, and when they came to be for themselves, we had thought they had begun to bud in gracious actions, we had thought it came to be meal, to their middle age; but to their old age strange lusts hath come and devoured all. It's a great judgment for strangers to devour our estates when we have scraped a deal together; truly, for strange lusts to come to devour thy hopeful beginnings, it's a greater judgment than for strangers to devour thy estate, that thou hast gotten by a great deal of labor: Many men have labored all their lives, and taken pains, and that which they have done hath seemed to come to something; and the truth is, in the conclusion the Devil hath had the advantage of all.

And God seems to be our enemy in some degree, even in the ways of his judgments at this day; thus as many of the Adversaries projects, so many of ours the Lord hath blasted before they come to a stalk, and when they have been budded the Lord hath blasted them, by unfaithfulness of some or others; when we have had our greatest thoughts, the Lord hath seem'd to blast us, and what God will do with us we know not, only let us make sure that our seed be good, and though this doth not prosper or the other doth not, yet at last God will bring the greater Harvest upon us.

Israel is swallowed up: now they shall be among the Gentils as a vessel wherein there is no pleasure.

Israel, they had made so many Leagues among other People, till they were even swallowed up by them. And truly my Brethren, if there be not a great care had, there is much danger in making Leagues with other Nations, left upon the need they see we have of them they should incroach upon us, and at length even have Laws given to us by them: It was so with the people of Israel, that by their League with other people they were so incroacht upon by them, as at length they gave them Laws and swallowed them up. And thus many of the People of God, yea, of the Churches of God, by mingling themselves with the world are even swallowed up, so as they lose their beauty; and there's no difference appears between them and the men of the world. It's one thing for wicked men to creep into the Church unawares, (and certainly there's none can expect that any Church in the world can continue but wicked men and hypocrites will mingle themselves) but it's one thing when they creep in unawares, and another thing when the fence is broken down, so as it is very hard to see any face of a Church among them: thus it was with Israel.

But now shall they be among the Gentils, as a vessel wherein is no pleasure.

By these words, Vessel of no pleasure, is meant, a vessel that is for the carrying up and down of excrements; only the Scripture when it mentions such vile things, speaks in a modest way; but that's the meaning of the word: as if he should say, Even my people shall be in a vile contemptible condition among the Gentiles, as a vessel that is fit for nothing but excrements. Jehoiakim is threatened in Jer. 22. 18. though a great man, yet he is threatened to be as a vessel wherein is no pleasure, they had wasted their substance in seeking help from the Egyptians and Assyrians, and these made a prey of them; so long as they had anything of value continued, then they made much of them, but their estates being once wasted, and they swallowed up in their very estates, they look now upon them as vile and contemptible in their eyes. And this is the way of wicked men, while wicked men are serving their own turns upon any, they will hug them and make much of them, but if that be done, then they scorn them & contemn them; nor are more scorn'd and contemn'd than Professors of Religion.
on who have basely crouched to wicked men, and sought to shelter themselves under them, when their estates are once consum'd and gone, they are more scorned by those that served themselves of them than any; and therefore let us learn wisdom, and how far we venture to make use of men, and do not please our selves in this, that they hug and commend us, if it be but to serve their own turns, when they have gotten what they would have, they will then scorn you, and look upon you as base people, and kick you out.

Again, A vessel wherein is no pleasure. The seventy translate it, an unprofitable vessel. But there is more intended certainly in this expression; a vessel employed in base and contemptible uses; Israel shall be so employed; and thereby he shall know a difference between my service, and the service of their enemies: Oh it is a sad expression, what Israel! a vessel employed and received to empty our excrements! [1. Israel were a people precious and honorable in the eyes of God, Isa. 43.4. [2. An holy people unto the Lord, Deut. 14.2. [3. They were God's peculiar People above all Nations in the world in the same place. [4. God's Portion, Deut. 32.9. [5. God's Inheritance, Isa. 19.25. [6. God's peculiar Treasure, Exod. 19.5. [7. God's Glory, Isa. 46.13. [8. God's Delight, Isa. 62.4. [9. Israel were the deely beloved of God's soul, Jer. 12.7. and yet now Israel is become a vessel only to take in and empty out excrements; Oh what a change doth sin make! they were holy vessels, employed in holy services, in attending upon God and His Worship, so as no people were; but now, oh! what a change hath sin made in them? How doth sin vilifie men, to be employed in base services, it is the most against an ingenuous spirit that any thing can be. I remember I have read of a young man of Sparta that being taken by Antigonus and sold for a slave, all the while that he that brought him did employ him in any thing that did stand with ingenuity he did it, but when he bid him go and

1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9.
and empty a vessel wherein is no pleasure; no faith: he, I will not serve you now in such a thing, and his Master being angry with him he gets up to the top of the house and falls down and breaks his neck rather than he would empty such a vessel. And certainly there is nothing that is to beneath the excellency of an Immortal Soul as this is, for hereby though thou beest high in thine own thoughts thou comest to be a vessel for the very Devil to empty his excrements into: and that's lower than to be a Scavenger to go up and down to take the filth of the street: in being employed in the service of the Devil thou doest more debate thy self than if thou wert a Scavenger to carry dung and filth in a Dung-Cart; but as if thou wert judged to such a kind of life and employment, that thou shouldst go from morning to night to carry away the filth in thy very hands and mouth. Some men are vessels of mercy, they are chosen vessels, vessels of honor fitted for the Masters use: and it is an infinite mercy of God to us when as we have deserved to be cast out as vessels wherein there is no pleasure, that God should employ any of us to be vessels of His Sanctuary, that God should take us out of the common lump, such vessels; whereas others are vessels of wrath employed only in base services that are beneath the excellency of an immortal Soul.

Yea, Some there are who have been eminent in the Church heretofore, who have been vessels filled with the Gifts of the holy Ghost (I do not say Graces) now they are vessels in which there is no pleasure; many of the Saints heretofore have been refreshed by them, from those Gifts of the holy Ghost that have been in them, but now their Gifts are gone, they are fit for no pleasure, but for Pot or Pipe: Now idle drones that are fit for nothing but to set in the Kitchen, and (it may be) to scum the pot, yea some of them filled with poison, vessels wherein neither God nor man can take pleasure, yea and some very forward professors of Religion that once were as the polished Saphirs.
Sapphires and are now become more black than the coal, turn’d Apostates; they were as golden vessels in the House of God, and now are become vessels wherein is no pleasure. It was a speech that once Demosthenes had to the Athenians, he desired them that they would not make an Urinal of a Wine pot; for to employ those men in base services that had been eminent, even those men that God Himself hath heretofore made use of for great services in Church and Common-wealth, the Lord hath left them to be vessels of no pleasure. Oh! remember al you from whence you are fallen, thy heart is now exercised upon such low things, thy work (it may be) now is only to further the wicked designs and desperate malice of other men; And dost thou think to be a vessel of glory, to stand before the presence of the holy God, and joyn with Saints and Angels in the external praises of His Name? Oh! remember from whence thou art fallen, and be not at quiet till the Lord hath been pleased to purge thee and make thee fit for thy Masters use, and to become a vessel of honor in thy Masters house.

VER. 9.

For they are gone up to Assyria, a wild Ass alone by himself; Ephraim hath hired Lovers.

THE Lord by the Prophet proceeds on in his charge against the ten Tribes here.

They are gone up to Assyria for help.

They are gone up] they look not up to the high God for their help, but they are gone up to Assyria, Assyria is higher in their eyes than the God of Heaven is. How vile a thing is it to forsake confidence in God out of suspicious thoughts of him; for so it was here, they retained suspicious thoughts of God, as if He would leave them in their extremity, and out of those suspicious thoughts of him, they;
they forfaké him, and seek help else where; they expect more good, more faithfulness, more love, not only from the creature than from God, but from the very Enemies of God than from God Himself; yea, and that people that professed Interest in God, that would seem to bless themselves in this, That God was their God, even this People, look'd to have more good, and to find more faithfulness in the very enemies of God than in God Himself; let the Heavens be astonished at this wickedness: and yet this evil is in the hearts of the children of men.

A wild Ass, alone by himself.

This creature the Scripture mentions in divers places for one of the most unruly, and untamable, and fierce creature in the world. Such a creature as cannot be brought to be serviceable, it will not be brought to live with men, no, it cannot be brought to live long with other beasts, no nor to keep company with their own kind, so fierce and savage is it, but runs up and down in the wilderness alone. In Job, 11. 12. we have mention of this creature. For man would be wise, though man be born like a wild Ass. Colt. And in Job, 39. 5. Who hath sent out the wild Ass free? or who hath loosed the bands of the wild Ass? And in Jer. 2. 24. to name no more. A wild Ass used to the wilderness that snuffeth up the wind at her pleasure; in her occasion who can turn her away? all they that seek her will not weary themselves, in her month they shall find her. In her occasion when he hath a mind unto the female, she snuffeth up the wind, as the Historians say of her, they go up to Mountains and there they seek to have the scent of the female, or the male, so they snuff up the wind even for the scent of her. And so the Naturalists that write the nature of this Creature, Pliny in his eighth Book and fourty Chapter: Those that are Scholers that desire to know more of the nature of this beast may find divers things there. But now we are only
Why the ten Tribes compared to a wild Asses colt. Wicked men wild upon their lusts.

In their month, what is the scope of the holy Ghost here: thus Ephraim was when he was opposed. Do you not find many so, that are in a violent way set upon wickedness and ungodliness that they will hear nothing, they snuff at the wind and all that is said against them, and run violently upon wicked waies, and upon their own ruin: It may be in their month you shall find them; that hath reference unto the very last month which the wild Ass goes when it is with young, then when it is so big, and till then there is no dealing with them. Some Historians say that the wild Asses are so fierce, that they will tear asunder Armor of proof, but only in the very month when they are so big that they cannot weld themselves, then you shall find them. So, though sinners be never so stubborn, yet God hath his month, and perhaps then you shall find them. When at any time you find your children, or servants, or others to be stubborn and stout against whatsoever is said to them, and even rage in their madness for the satisfying of their wicked wills, you may remember this text and creature: they are as wild Asses that are alone by themselves; and among all wicked men Idolaters are the most stubborn and stout in their wicked waies, their hearts are set upon their Idols, yea as the phrase of Scripture is in Jer. 5. 38, They are mad upon their Idols. There’s nothing that can be said to those whose hearts are taken with false worship, nothing will prevail

ly to speak of it as the Scripture speaks of it here.
prevail with them without an infinite power of God put forth, and there's no sinners more bold, more untamable and fierce in their ways, then those that are superstitious, and that's their reason that if they be opposed in their way of false worship, you know there will be such tumultuousness of people flinging of stones against windows where God is truly worshipped, any thing in the world though they know not what they do, yet because they think themselves condemned in their sinful ways, therefore they run like wild beasts in a furious manner even against those that worship God better than themselves.

Secondly, God compares the ten Tribes to the wild Ass in way of contempt of them. As in the former place of Job, 11. 12. Vain man would be wise; though man be born like a wild Asses Colt: he would fain think himself somebody, yet he is a most base and vile creature. And if any of you be not so fierce in your wicked ways as some others are, if God hath tamed your spirits by His Word and Spirit, bless God for it, for all men are born like a wild Asses Colt, they are mad upon their wicked ways to ruin themselves. But because there's no men that think higher of themselves than stubborn spirits; for stoutness and stubbornness doth evermore proceed from pride, because they think it such a dishonor for their wills to be crossed in any thing, therefore the Scripture calls the more contempt upon them, and calls such, proud, stout fools, wild Asses; and indeed there are none more contemptible in the eyes of God than stout sinners. It follows.

A wild Ass, alone, by himself.

Alone.] The reason of this expression is, to shew, that Ephraim and the ten Tribes they would be at their own hands, they would have their own wills, alone: There's these two things express in it.

First, That they would be under no government, but alone.
Alone, Under no government.

Servants at their own hand.

Especially Maidens.

Christians without ordinances.

alone by themselves, and have liberty to frisk up and down, and do what they lift alone, acknowledging no Commander; and so the Chalde Paraphrase hath it, Because that they would walk in the evil of their own lusts, and would acknowledge no Commander. And thus many at this day, they love to be alone, that is, to live at their own hand, to be from under Government. Though it is here, he was alone in the Wilderness, he would rather be in the Wilderness alone, so be it he may acknowledge no Commander, than in the best pastors under any command. Thus it is with many, they love to be alone, that is, they are loth to come under any Government, they had rather be in the wildernes and suffer never so great straights than come under any Government; It is true of divers sorts of people, even the lowest sort, many that love to live at their own hand, servants that are not able to provide for themselves that if they have but a little sickness are ready to starve, yet that they might live without any command not under any Government, they will chuse rather to endure abundance of hardship that they may live alone; many times it is so, especially in the female sex, which ought to be under Government and some Protection, yet they love to be alone at their own hand; I say, and meekly because they cannot endure to come under any kind of Government whatsoever.

And in the wilderness.] Their lives indeed are as in the wilderness, when they are in any straights and distresses they have no body to look after them and regard them because they loved their liberties so much before. So, many had rather be without all Ordinances in the Church, or many Ordinances, only that they might live as they list, at their own wills, that they may not be under the Government of Christ, they had rather live in the wilderness of the world so that they might have liberty, rather than be in Gods Vinyard under the Government of Christ. These come under the reproof here that Ephraim did in this place.

Secondly
Secondly, alone by himself, as unfit for Society, they were so furious and fierce in their way: Some are of such untoward and perverse dispositions that they can agree with no body, so that they are only fit to live in the wilderness: I suppose you have met with in your families that are so extremely perverse in their ways; and they are of such untoward and crooked dispositions that they are fit to live in no Society but alone in the Wilderness: and this reproof of Ephraim comes likewise upon those.

Ephraim hath hired lovers.

The Assyrians and Egyptians, and others; the words signify loves. Before they put their confidence in the Assyrians, and now they make them their loves. The thing I note is this.

That where we place our confidence, there our love should be placed. If God be the confidence of our hearts, let our love be placed there, yea let God be our Loves, in the plural number, for so it is here, they hired Lovers; she would fain have the Assyrians to love her. When God is forsaken, when we have lost our Interest in God's love, no mervail though there be such a seeking after the Creatures love; men that forsake God they seek to make up what they have not in God in the Creature: as a dog when he hath lost his Master he is ready to follow every one he meets with. Again,

He hath hired loves] Because they had nothing lovely in themselves therefore they hire the love of others to them; they seek even to hyre love, though the truth is, Love cannot be hyred nor purchased, although men may fawn and glaver, and flatter, and crouch that they may gain the love of some other, yet if there be no lovelines in themselves to gain love, although those whom they fawn on, and flatter may use them for their own turn, and serve themselves upon them, yet the truth is they will despise them them in their hearts, and so often they will discover to their intimate friends how they scorn and contemn them; therefore if others would have love, there must be some excellency and loveliness in us; for love cannot be hyred. But,

Ephraim hath hyred Lovers.] This shews the shamelessness of the ten Tribes in seeking after their false worship. Other Harlots they are hyred to commit uncleannesses; but Ephraim will be at charge for their Idols: Many Harlots count it a great dishonor for to seek after Loves, to seek after Whoremasters, though they can embrace them when they come unto them, but yet they will rather have a hyre than they will hyre them; but mark, those that are superstitions they think not upon their honor, but they will hyre, to the commission of spiritual whoredom they will go to hyre Lovers and be at a great deal of charges, in Ezek. 16. 33, 34. They give gifts to all Whores; but thou givest thy gifts to all thy Lovers. And the contrary is in thee from other women in thy whoredoms, whereas none followeth thee to commit whoredoms, and in that thou givest a reward, and no reward is given unto thee; therefore thou art contrary. As if God should say, you are more vile and base in your uncleannesses than any in the world besides; for other Whores they receive rewards, but you are so set upon your filthy lusts that you will give rewards that you might commit uncleanness.

From hence the Note is, That Idolaters will not stand upon terms if they may have their Idols, any way: they care not how they debase themselves, they will not stand upon honor and respect, but let them have their false worship they will submit to any thing. Oh! why should we stand upon our terms thus in the matters of the honor of our God, when publick good lies at the stake? why should not we be willing to suffer shame and disgrace, any thing rather than the publick good should not go on, than the service of God should be hindered? If others will not seek to us, yet if good may be done, let us seek to them, if God may have Glory: Though others be never so vile in their carriage towards us, yet let us do what we can to win and convince them, let us be willing to lie under their feet that God may be glorified: If others will not joyn in a good work except they may have the honor of it, let them have it so be it the work may go on, let us reason so; Why should I put forth my self and others go away with all the glory? Let the work go on, and if they will stand for the glory let them have it: so God may be lifted up let us be willing not to be seen: This is that which doth hinder thee the promoting of his Causes. But men stand upon terms and they will not go on in a good cause but break off if others be prefer’d before them. If there be two carrying a piece of timber through a narrow passage, and if these two men that are carrying a long piece of timber and they must carry it through a narrow passage, if they should stand striving who should go foremost, one saith I will go first, the other saith, nay but I will go first, they can never carry the timber. If one have one end and the other the other end and they cannot agree which should go first, and he that goes after thinks himself dishonored because his fellow goes before him, they can never carry it through but they must lay it down. So it is many times with a good cause, it is like a piece of timber upon two mens shoulders, and it must go through a narrow passage, and one faith, why should not I have the glory of it? and the other faith, why should not I have the glory of it? and the while men stand wrangling who should have the greatest glory, in the mean time the publick cause is exceedingly hindered; let us be willing to submit and debase our selves any way so be it the true Worship of God may go on.

Further, He hath hyred Lovers.] It’s an evil thing to be drawn to false worship, or bodily uncleanness upon any terms, out of hope of the greatest gain, and to deliver our selves selves from the greatest affliction: but now, for a man or woman to seek after the ways of sin, to be at cost that they might have their lusts, this is more vile; for a Whore to prostrate her self for money, this is base and abominable though she should have never so much money, but to give money, this is more base and abominable. Josephus reports of one Decius Mundus which was a Noble man, that to one Paulina, a Lady in Rome, he offered as much as came to six thousand pounds for to satisfy his lusts but one night, and yet was refused. So certainly uncleanness should be cast off with indignation though it be tempted unto with never so much gain; but for one to be set upon uncleanness so as to seek after it, and to spend their Husbands estates that they might have the free way for the satisfying of their lusts, this is a most abominable thing indeed, and yet thus, many are guilty both in regard of bodily and spiritual adultery. It follows.

VER. 10.

Yea, though they have hyred among the Nations; now will I gather them, and they shall sorrow a little for the burden of the King of Princes.

THESE words in the reading of them seem to be dark, and yet we have much of the mind of God in them, and much concerning our selves.

This God still takes ill that they should go to the Nations for help, when God had made their condition so much above the Nations, for in their going to them they did as it were say, that all the love and mercy, and protection from the great God it was no more towards them than the Nations had, they did (as it were) hold forth to the world that the Nations were rather in a better condition.
tion than themselves, in that they would go to the Nations for their help; and this went very near to the heart of God, for God had laid out the very strength of his love, and the riches of his mercy upon this people, and after he had done so much for them yet that they (because they were in some little afflictions for the present, that they) should go to the Nations that did for the present prosper somewhat outwardly better than themselves, Oh! this was exceeding grievous to the heart of God: and thence the Note is this.

That it is a very great evil, when wicked men seem to prosper a little in their outward condition more than Gods People; for those that are the people of God to begin to think that therefore those wicked ones are in a better condition than themselves, this is an evil that doth go very much to the heart of God; and very ordinarily it is in some degree or other among the People of God, I appeal to your consciences in this very thing, though at some time your souls have had sweet refreshing from the Lord in the enjoyment of communion with him, but yet when Gods hand hath been out against you, when you look'd upon others though you knew them to be wicked and ungodly yet they have prospered, their Ships came home safely and richly, and their trading goes on; Do you not sometimes find such rising of your thoughts within you as if so be that these men were in a better condition than your selves? Oh! if you have but the least thought rising that way, know it is that which doth exceedingly grieve the Spirit of God by which you are seal'd, that because they have a few loaves more than you, though you have all the riches of God and Christ, though you have the inheritance of Saints, yet that you should think them in a better condition than you are in: As a child, if he sees some stranger have a bit of meat better than he hath, he should think presently that his father loves the stranger better than him; this the father takes ill. How ordinary is it upon this ground ground for those that have professed themselves to be godly rather to withdraw themselves from the afflicted Saints, and seek correspondence with wicked men that prosper. God would have his people see an insufficiency in himself in their lowest condition, so as they need not go out from him for help, but still wait upon him and keep his way; the Lord by his Prophet rebukes Jehoshaphat in 2 Chron. 19. 2. for loving the ungodly and helping them that hate the Lord. And is there not as great an evil to seek the love of the wicked and ungodly and help from them that hate the Lord? certainly the evil is very great, it argues very little love that we have to God, it charges God of unfaithfulness, as if though he hath engaged himself to his people, yet he would leave them in the lurch; this encourages the wicked in their wicked ways, and it charges God with that which is accounted one of the most vile things among men. What is accounted one of the vilest things among men, that a man should let another man about his work, and then leave them in the lurch when they meet with troubles in their work? It is as vile a thing as any is among men, and we should look upon such men as should imploy others in any service and then leave them to shift for themselves in their straits, we should look upon them as vile men, unworthy to be dealt withal. Now what would we but charge God with this, even that which makes men to be most vile?

And this besides is a most despicable folly so to do, for when thou art thinking to provide for thy self by correspondence with ungodly men, it may be thou wert just at the very point of deliverance at that very time; it is Gods usual way to come to help his people when they are in the greatest straits; and therefore it is the greatest folly that when we are in straits then to think of shifting courses, so that then we must forfake our own mercy in thinking of shifting courses; in straits above all times Christians should take heed of thinking of shifting courses, because then then above all times those are the times for God to shew his mercy, and just then: Wilt thou then be forsaking him? Oh! it is that which should lie neer to your hearts, if any of you have been guilty of this, let but the Word of God bring this upon your spirits this day, Oh! how do I know but at that very time when I took such a shifting course, that was the very time that God was about to do my soul good and of doing good for my body, and yet then I deprived my self of good, that goodness and mercy of God? It follows yet,

Now will I gather them.

This gathering among Interpreters hath reference either to the Nations whom they sought unto, or to themselves. I will gather them; that is, That Nation; or, I will gather you. If to the Nation, then the scope is thus:

Notwithstanding you hire the Nations, yet I will gather them against you, they shall be strengthened against you with the same money that you hyre them withal, I will turn it against you, and now you have provided fair for your selves, have you not?

Many times when we think to provide best for our own peace, we make the greatest provision for our own ruin: God many times makes people work their own wo and ruin themselves, and there is no means that doth more fully and directly tend to undo them than what they do themselves; and thus God over rules the counsels and thoughts of men.

What a vain thing is it to plot against God, when God can turn mens Arrows against themselves? No men are greater instruments of Gods wrath (many times) against us than we are our selves, yea, and than those are that we seek most to correspond withal; and it is just with God it should be so, that if we will leave him, to seek correspondence with wicked men, it is just with God that of all men in the world those should be the men that should be
be made the Executioners of God's wrath upon us.

But now, if it be to Israel, I will gather them among the Nations. Then the word here gathered is sometimes used for gathering dead corps in an Army when they are slain in Battel. You go and think to have the Nations, but you shall be as a company of dead corps in an Army, and lie in heaps there. But I find Calvin hath a further Note upon it, and takes it as having reference to the former verse. Thus people are wild, and run up and down, this way and that way to shift for themselves, but I will gather them, that is, I will keep them in; so the words likewise may signify, I will keep them in, I will gather in their spirits, there shall be some work of prudence or other to keep them in, I will keep them from those ways wherein they would presently have ruined themselves.

Explic. 2. People run many times headily on in evil ways that would certainly ruin them; but when God's time for the execution of his wrath is not yet come, the Lord restrains them and keeps them in from such ways; though their hearts be set upon such ways of undoing themselves, yet they shall not go on in them, I will pity them who cannot pity themselves. But then it follows (in which the greatest difficulty of the verse is.)

And they shall sorrow a little for the burden of the King of Princes.

Explic. in 5. particular. This hath more darkness in it, and yet upon the searching into it, we shall see it clear, and many excellent Truths cleared from it. There are these Five Things to be enquired after for the opening of these words.

1. First, Who is this King of Princes that is here meant.
2. Secondly, What was this burden of the King of Princes.
3. Thirdly, Why doth he call this the burden? Or rather thirdly thus, When was this threat fulfilled, that they should sorrow for the burden of the King of Princes.

Fourthly, Why doth he call it the burden of the King of Princes?

Fifthly, What's meant by sorrowing a little.

These five things will clear the text. Indeed we cannot see the full meaning of the holy Ghost without understanding somewhat of these five.

First, Who is meant by the King of Princes. We are here to understand the King of Assyria, because he was a great King whose Nobles were Princes, and we find this both by Scripture and likewise by humane Story; in 2 King. 18. 24. How then wilt thou turn away the face of one Captain of the least of my Masters Servants. And in Isa. 36. 13. Hear the word of the great King, the King of Assyria. And how wilt thou turn away the face of the Captains of the least of my Masters Servants. His Captains and Nobles were as Princes. And so Josephus in his 1. Book, 10. Chapter, as I remember faith, That at the time before Sodoms destruction, the Assyrians were Lords of All Asia, so that the Assyrian was a great King, and here called the King of Princes.

Thus God suffers his enemies to grow great in the world, an Assyrian, a dog, a wicked wretch under the curse of God, and yet is he the great King, even the King of Princes; as Luther hath such an expression concerning the Empire of Turkie, it is (faith he) but one crum that the great Master of the family doth cast to dog. What are your estates then? Certainly though you be never so great in the world, what's any of your estates to the whole Turkische Empire? and if that be but a crum that the great Master of the family casts to a dog, you should never then bless yourselves in the enjoyment of a little of the world. But though the Assyrian may be called the King of Princes in regard of his power over some great men, yet most properly our Lord Jesus Christ he is the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords: in Revel. 19. 16. and he hath on his Vesture, and on

on his Thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS,
AND LORD OF LORDS.

Why was it written upon his Vesture, and why upon his Thigh? Upon his Vesture, That is, he will appear openly to be the King of Kings; there was a time when Christ seem'd to be (as it were) a servant under the dominion of Antichrist, but now his name shall be upon his Vesture, openly; and then upon his Thigh; that is, upon his lower parts, his Church Militant, it shall have the Kingly power among them for its good, so as they shall be above the Nations, according to the Prophecy in Isa. 60. 13. He will make the place of his feet glorious. (the Church in their low condition) He doth not say, he will have the name upon his Crown, but upon his Thigh, that is, upon his lower parts, upon his people, that were in a low condition, he will make the very place of his feet to be glorious, even there shall be written, *The King of Kings, and Lord of Lords.

But Secondly, What was this burden? This burden was those Taxes that were upon the people, whereby they maintained their correspondence with this King of Assyria: correspondence with wicked men it is burdensome: for the the more they are sought to, and yielded to, ordinarily the more burdensome they are: and whatsoever they do for you for a while, it is indeed to serve their own ends, and this they brought upon themselves: for they would go to Assyria, and they found the Assyrians to be burdensome to them.

When men will follow their own waies, and think to have more ease in their own way than in Gods, it is just they should find those waies to be burdensome to them. I am perswaded there is not one in this Congregation but hath found the experience of this; when you think your waies will bring more ease to you than Gods waies, have not you found your waies burdensome?

But thirdly, When was this fulfilled? If we would know the the meaning of the Prophet we must refer to the History of the Kings, and in 2 Kings, 15. 19. there you may find when this Prophecy was fulfil'd. Phul the King of Assyria came against the Land, and Menahem gave Phul a thousand talents of silver that his hand might be with him to confirm the Kingdom in his hand. And Menahem exacted the money of Israel, even of all the mighty men of wealth, of each man fifty shec-kles of silver to give to the King of Assyria. There was one burden. And then in the 29. ver. In the days of Pekah King of Israel, came Tiglath-Pileser King of Assyria, and took Jion, and Abel-Beth-maachah, and Janoah, and Kedesh, and Hazor, and Gilead, and Galilee, all the land of Nephtal-lie, and carried them captive to Assyria. There was a further burden. But yet the whole Land was not, it was only the other side of Jordan: at these two times was this Scripture fulfil'd.

Fourthly, Why doth the holy Ghost say, The burden of the King of Princes? In speaking of the burden that was upon the people he doth give the Assyrian such an Epithite? Why it seems to be a diminution of their burden rather than any aggravation; for he speaks of sorrowing but a little, as if it should not be so great a burden as afterwards should be upon them, noting thus, That they were burdened a while with Taxations from a great King, but they should afterwards come under the power, to be at the wils & lufts of all kind of base people, of the very dregs of people: And it is not so great an evil to be under the power of men of rank and quality, no not under their oppression, as to be under the oppression of many people, of people that are of very mean quality and condition, the very refuse of a Nation, to come to be under their power
it's a great deal worse.

And by the way this Note it should teach us, even those that are of mean breeding, and whose lives have been very low in the world, of mean condition, if they be put into place of any power and Authority, to take heed how they behave themselves, for their oppression will be the most grievous to an ingenuous spirit that possibly can be. And there is a great deal of danger in them to grow more oppressing than other men that were born to greatness, and their oppression will be so intolerable as will bring the greatest confusion that possibly can be if that be not well looked to. And therefore here when he would lessen the burden, (faith he) you shall sorrow a little for the burden of the King of Princes.

But what is it? You shall sorrow a little. They complained, but (faith God) what do you complain of this? This is but a little burden to that which you are like to have, there's another manner of burden a coming for you than this; and from hence the Notes are these.

First, When sinners have brought trouble upon themselves they will complain much, exceedingly troubled; but when they complain they are to consider, that what they feel is but a little to what's coming after. There are burdens upon you, and you are complaining of these burdens, as if so be that they were the greatest that ever were upon people.

Oh sinner! consider of this when you are complaining of your burdens, know, that these burdens that are upon you may prove to be but very trifles in comparison of what's like to come upon you afterwards, for that's the scope of the holy Ghost here, They shall sorrow a little for this burden, as if he should say, There is other manner of sorrow coming after, and so it did, for afterwards the Assyrians carried them all away captives, and the basest of all the people came even to set their feet upon them, and therefore faith the holy Ghost, This is but a little. I speak to those that make not up their peace with God, and do not upon those burdens that are upon them return to God. As the mercies of God to his Saints, that which now they have is but a little, they may be said to rejoice a little for the mercy that now they have. And so the burdens upon the ungodly, they are but a little, but if they return not to God.
God upon what they feel, God hath greater burdens than those are that they so vex and fret under.

Secondly, Taxes and Impositions upon mens estates are but a little burden in comparison of being brought under the power of the Enemy.

Though there were fore Taxes upon you, as here there was fifty shekels of silver laid upon every man that was able, but those Taxes are but little burdens in comparison of being given up to the power of the Enemy, they would lay burdens indeed upon us, burdens upon our Consciences, all our Estates, all our Lives, all our Liberties, whatsoever we are or have must be under their mercy; now we are troubled, but then their little finger will be more heavy than the loins that now we find to be upon us; although we dare not say but some may find burdens very sore upon them for the present.

A third Note, is this; That, as Taxes are a burden, but a little in comparison, so the carrying of our Brethren into captivity: Though we enjoy our Estates our selves, yet if God lays his hand upon any of our Brethren though in remote parts of the Kingdom, Oh we should account this to be a burden. As not only their Taxations was a burden, but the carrying away of their Brethren that were beyond the River.

If there were no other sin among us, it were just wish God to bring the Enemy upon us, and then we should find that there were other manner of burdens.

But there is another burden that we are not sensible enough of, and that is the captivity of our Brethren in the remote parts of this Land. Oh! how little sensible are we of it because we feel it not our selves?

The fourth Note from hence is this, That it's Gods mercy when we are running on to our utter ruin, not to suffer us to plunge our selves irrecoverably into misery, but to bring lesser evils upon us, that by them we may come to bethink our selves, and if it be possible to prevent greater. You shall forrow a little, I will not undo you presently; but return to me, or else you are utterly

Chap. 8.

[In that generality that they were carried away]

Obif. 5

The consideration of little burdens which is upon us to what might be, should cause us to turn to God; it should break our hearts, and cause us to seek the face of God, that we may prevent greater evils, that otherwise will certainly come; the Lord in his dealing towards us seems as if he were loth to lose us, and that this Nation should perish. Oh that this might work kindly upon our hearts to prevent greater evils, that we might not be made a spectacle of the wrath of God to all the Nations that are round about us.

And yet further, the words translated, They shall sorrow a little, are by some translated, They have begun a little for the burden of the King of Princes: And so in Deut. 2. 25, there is the word that comes from the same root, That that they have felt, it is but the beginning of what is like to come, my wrath is let out upon them in some degree already, and do not you see it, how it is begun to burn upon them? and that which was lately before your eyes, by that you may come to believe my threatnings.

Gods judgments against wicked men, are the beginnings of further judgments. In Deut. 32. 42. I will make my Arrows drunk with blood (and my sword shall devour flesh) and that with the blood of the slain, and of the captives, from the beginning of revenge upon the enemy. All this is but from the beginning of revenge, when I come so terribly upon them, it is but the beginning of revenge. We are ready to think if there be miserable slaughters, Surely God hath been revenged enough upon this people. No, all this may prove but the beginning of revenge. I may say so concerning ourselves, Though the Lord many times hath made the sword drunk with with blood, yet it may prove to be but the beginning of revenges; truly we cannot say that from the time that these Judgments have been upon us, that we have begun scarce to come in to turn to God, yea, the Estate of the Kingdom is far worse than it was at the beginning of this heavy stroke that is upon us. In Matth. 24. 7, 8. Ye shall hear of wars, and rumors of wars, and Nation should rise against Nation, and Kingdom against Kingdom, and there shall be famines and pestilences, and earth-quake: all these should be but the beginning of sorrows.

Secondly, God expects from men, that though they be not sensible of his threats, yet when he begins with them in way of execution of his wrath, they should begin a little. Oh! it were well with us if we did prevent God's heavy wrath by our repentance. Numbers. 16. 46. Moses said unto Aaron, Take a Censer, and put fire therein from off the Altar, and put on Incense, and go quickly to the Congregation, and make an atonement for them; for there is wrath gone out from the Lord, the plague is begun. Oh! how should we all make haft? we cannot say only, the plague is begun (the plague of Civil War, which is the greatest of all kind of plagues) but it hath gone on a great way.

But to proceed.

Ver. II.
Because Ephraim hath made many Altars to sin, Altars shall be unto him to sin.

It was the Charge of God in Scripture, That there should be but one Altar for Sacrifice, and there was another Altar that afterwards was made for Incense, and no further, in Dent. 12. 3. and 5. ver. There we have the Charge of God that there should be none other made, You shall overthrow their Altars, and break their pillars, and burn their groves with fire, and you shall hew down the graven Images of their gods, and destroy the names of them out of that place &c. And:
And then,

Take heed to thy self that thou offer not thy burnt offering in every place that thou seest, but in the place which the Lord shall choose &c. And in Dent. 27. 5. Thou shalt build an Altar to the Lord thy God, an Altar of stones: thou shalt not lift up an Iron tool upon them. And according to which Joshua did, in Joshua, 8. 30. and hence in Joshua, 22. 11. Now for the Altar of God, I shall first shew you a little the meaning of them, and then the reason why God would have but this one Altar, in Exod. 20. 24. there is an injunction of God for the Altar of Sacrifice; An Altar of earth thou shalt make unto me, and shalt sacrifice thereon thy burnt offering &c. Here observe that, That when God would have an Altar made for sacrifice it must be but an Altar of earth, but if it should be of stone, Take heed that thou liftest not up a tool upon it. Why, one would think that to carve and paint the stones and do any thing to make it brave would do better, than to have the stones rough; No faith God, whatsoever you may think that to make my Altar brave, by carving of it and painting it, If you do but lift up a tool upon it, you polute my Altar; all mans devices in the worship of God though they be never so pompous they do but polute Gods Worship: And they must not go upon steps (quite contrary to our high Altars) that their nakedness be not discovered therein: Noting that when we come into the presence of God we should take heed of our spiritual nakedness, and the pride and vanity of our spirits in prayer; God would have them make an Altar so as they might not go upon steps, lest their nakedness should be discovered. But now in Exod. 27. 1, 2. there you shall find an Altar of Shittim wood overlaid with Brass; you will say, Why was the first with earth and the other with brass? The reason was, because that the one was to be made when they were in an unsetled condition, and the other to be made afterwards when they were in a more staied condition than formerly, and that it might endure a long time. But mark, it must be according to Gods diresection, except God doth reveal that it should be of Shittim wood and overlaid with brass they were not to do it.

And then, the second Altar was the Altar of burnt Incense, and that you have in Exod. 30. 1, 2, 3. verses, and that was to be overlaid with pure Gold: that of brass it was, because there was sin offerings to be offered upon it; but now the Altar of Incense it was the Altar that was just before the Vail against the Mercy-seat, where there was only Incense offered, which was to signify the Intercession of Jesus Christ presenting his Merits, and the Prayers of all his people to the Father: the prayers of the Saints are compar'd to Incense, and there's many things observable about the Altar of God, it is said that there should be four horns, and in Rev. chap. 9. ver. 13. I heard a voice from the four horns of the Golden Altar which is before God. Now Saint John speaks of after-times that should be, he heard a voice from the four horns of the Altar, that is, from all the prayers of the Saints that were in the four corners of the earth, there came a voice from them all and did sound, and did great things in the world. Certainly my Brethren, the prayers of God's Saints in all the corners of the world is that that makes the world ring. It was a Speech of a learned man, If there be but one sigh come from a gracious heart, it fills the ears of God so that God hears nothing else; nay, that's observable in Rev. 8. 3. about this Altar of Incense, And another Angel came and stood at the Altar, having a golden Censer, and there was given unto him much Incense, that he should offer it with the prayers of all Saints upon the golden Altar which was before the Throne. Thus we see that in our time we are to make use of this golden Altar that is before the Throne, all our prayers are to be offered up upon that which was a Type of Jesus Christ, and our prayers except they be mingled with the Incense which Christ did offer himself upon the golden Altar, cannot be accepted, and likewise that's very observa-
Exod 30. 3. ble about it that we reade in Exod. 30. 3. that there was a Crown of Gold round about it, to typifie the Intercession of Christ, and the prayers of the Saints; you may see by this that Christ's Intercession, and the prayers of the Saints that came from faithful hearts, are accounted the very glory of Jesus Christ. Jesus Christ accounts it his dignity and glory, to make Intercession for his People, and to take the poor prayers of his People and present them to his Father; he makes account that his Crown is set upon his head, when you exercise your faith upon Jesus Christ that Christ might present your prayers with his Intercession to the Father, then you set the Crown upon Jesus Christ's head; but when you think to be heard your selves, and do not exercise your faith upon Christ, you do (as it were) take off the Crown from the head of Jesus Christ. And that's very ob!ervable, the difference between this Altar that was here enjoyn'd to be made by Moses, and so was afterwards made, and the Altar that we reade of should be in the times of the Gospel.

First, Christ he is our Altar in the Gospel, so it is in Heb. 13. 10. We have an Altar that these have no right to eat of it, that serve at the Tabernacle; that is, such men as shall pertinaciously still flock to the Ceremonies of the Law, they have no right to partake of Jesus Christ.

And then further, you shall find that in the Gospel there is a prophesie of the Altar that the Church shall have, in Ezek. 41. 22. The Altar that was in the Law, the text faith, it was to be a cubit long, and a cubit broad; but that which must be in the time of the Gospel, must be three cubits high, and two cubits long: and this notes thus much, That there shall be a larger extent of the service of God in the time of the Gospel, than in the time of the Law; that place in Malachi, doth much open this, 1. 11. For from the rising of the Sun even unto the going down of the same, my Name shall be great among the Gentiles, and in every place Incense shall be offered unto my Name, and a pure offering: for my Name shall be great among the Heathen, saith the Lord of hosts.

Another thing observable is, It was set before the Vail by the Ark of the Testimony, before the Mercy-seat. It was to stand in the holy of holies, but just before the Vail, right against the Mercy-seat; and by this you must be helped to understand that Scripture in Heb. 9. 4. which (as some understand it) seems to have some variety from this, it is said that the holiest of all had the golden Cenfer, by which they understand the golden Altar, in which the Cenfer was; but we shall find that the golden Altar did not stand in the holy of holies, for we read in Exod. 30. 6. And thou shalt put it before the Vail that is by the Ark of the Testimony, before the Mercy-seat; that is, over the Testimony. And therefore Interpreters reconcile it thus: it is not said here that the golden Cenfer or Altar (if we so take it) was in it, but it had it, that is, it was for the use of the holy of holies, and it stood just before the holy of holies, and just against the Mercy-seat, so that the high Priest when he was to enter into the holy of holies he was to take a Cenfer and Incense from this Altar, and so go into the holiest of all.

But this is the Note, in that the Altar of Incense stands just against the Mercy-seat, and yet there is a Vail between the Mercy-seat and it. So when we are to offer up our Incense upon the Merits of Christ and his Intercession, though we cannot by the eye of our bodies see the Mercy-seat, yet we must act our faith upon the Mercy-seat; and then that's observable, that the Incense must be burnt upon this Altar at that very time when the Lamps were to be trim'd and lighted, so you shall observe it in Exod. 30. 7. and that was to note thus much to us: That we are to joyn the Word with our Prayers, and not to come ignorantly to God, but labor to enlighten our souls with the Lamp of his Word, when we come to offer up our Incense to God.

Further,
Further, There is a command that no strange Incense shall be offered upon it. This is to teach us thus much: That we must take heed of bringing any thing to God to offer him in Prayer, but what comes from the Spirit of God, only God's own Incense; Take heed (I say) of bringing unsanctified parts, or any thing but that which is from the Spirit of God.

Lastly, Once a year an atonement was made upon the horns of the Altar, with the blood of the Sin-offering; though the Sin offering was not offered upon it, yet once a year an atonement was made upon it with the blood of the Sin-offering. This is to note thus much: That even by our Incense we defile the Altar what in us lies. And thus I have a little digressed, and yet it is still for opening of Scripture to you, to shew unto you the meaning of God's Altars.

Quest. Why but one Altar?

Real.

1. The Altar typified Christ's only sacrifice.

2: No acceptation but by him.

But why would God have no other Altars, but accounted it so hainous a crime to make any other Altars but those?

The Reasons are these.

First, Because these Altars did typifie these two things;

The Altar of burnt-offerings did typifie this: That Christ was to be the only Sacrifice; there should be no other sacrifice to pacifie Gods wrath but only Jesus Christ, who was both the Sacrifice indeed, and the Altar its self, for his human Nature was offered to God upon the Merits, as it were upon the worthiness of his divine Nature: Heb. 9. 14. How much more shall the blood of Jesus Christ who through the eternal Spirit offered Himself without spot to God &c. This Altar did signify the offering of Jesus Christ. As if God should say, Know that what endeavors you do or can use to satisfy my Justice, and my wrath it is to no purpose, there's nothing but only my Son and that offering that shall satisfy my wrath: and now for them to make more Altars, it was to deny that great point of Religion that there was only the Sacrifice of Christ to satisfie God.

which are our spiritual sacrifices are accepted of God; there must be no Altar, but this for the sacrifice, and the other for Incense; God would have this Doctrine kept pure from that time and so ever after, that none of our spiritual sacrifices can be accepted any other way but only as they have reference to Jesus Christ that Altar that the Lord hath appointed.

And then another reason why the Lord would have only this Altar for Sacrifice, and the other for Incense, and that all the people should come to these Altars, it was; That it might be the bond of the Church; because the people of the Jews were a National Church, therefore there was to be a National Worship, for that all the Nation was to joyn not only in the same likeness of Worship, but in the very same individual Worship; and this was the bond of their National Church. Now for my part, I know none living that holds a National Church in these daies in this sense, that is to be of Divine Institution, and joyned in one, by Gods commanding any National Worship for them. Where there are in Nations a great many of the Saints of God, that they may be called a National Church we dispute not against that; but people when they talk of a National Church, do not conceive the meaning of it; Certainly this was a special end why God would have them come to this one Altar, it was to be the bond of the National Church, that they should have such a worship wherein they were all of them to joyn in one, and this it was that made them a National Church: It is not enough to have the same kind of worship; as now, we al pray, and reade the Word in all Congregations, we have all the same Sacraments, but they must joyn in one individual worship. If the Nation of the Jews had worshiped the same God after the same manner, in divers Temples, and upon divers Altars, this had not been a National bond to them; but by coming up to the same Temple, and offering upon the same Altars, and when the Sacrifice and Incense cenfe was offered for them all, they were joyuned in the very act, all of them in that one thing, this was the thing that did unite them into a Church-union in another manner than any Church-union can be in this world, til we have such a kind of Institution as they had. We have no Institution for worship but where people may personally joyne together: but for thousands of Congregations to be bound by Institution to joyne in the very same bond of worship, in the very same individual act, such an union we have not in these daies, and without the understanding of this aight, we understand not the scope why they had but one Altar for burnt offerings, and one Altar for Incense.

Obj. 1. But now it may be said, That it doth not seem to be such a sin to erect Altars, for that's the sin charged upon Ephraim, That they did erect many other Altars; for the Scripture speaks of many Altars that were Gods Altars, 1 King, 19. you know it is the complaint of Elias that they had cast down Gods Altars; They have cast down thine Altars; now this was spoken after the time of the Law when there was but only two Altars appointed by God, and the Prophet did not mean them, the Altar for burnt offerings and Incense.

Answ, 1. Therefore the Answers that Divines give to this is, That this is spoken of those Altars that the Patriarks and others had built for the honor of God to sacrifice upon, before the time that the Law was given by Moses, for that one only Altar of sacrifice, (and here he complains they had cast down those Altars) for it was Lawfull before the command was given to build divers Altars, but after the command was given, it was not.

Yea, but still the Objection will be, How could it be a sin to cast down those Altars when they were of no further Religious use? for after the Command of God for that one Altar, then the other were to be demolished; Was it not commendated in the godly Kings that they cast down high Places, and cut down Graves? though some of them formerly were for the true Worship of God; yet after God had appointed a peculiar place for His Worship and those other places were abused to superstition; then they were to be cast down; and so there's no question to be made but all other Altars that were built for Religious uses were to be cast down, after God's own Altars were made.

The Answer to it therefore is this; That the evil that Elias complains of, it was the prophaneness of the people, their casting off all fear and reverence of God; because they did not cast down those Altars out of love to God, and his Worship, upon this Principle, that they would not suffer any thing that might be dangerous to superstition, that was not the Principle whereby they were acted in casting them down, but they cast them down as led thereunto by malice and rage against Religion, and to satisfy their lusts; and thus if men oppose that which is indeed superstitious, yet if it be not out of a true love to God and his Honor, if it be not out of a desire to set up and to maintain the true Worship of God, but in a bitterness and rage, merely out of self-ends to please themselves in a way of revenge, or through any distemper, though (I say) the thing be evil that these men do oppose, yet God will not own it as any service to him, it is a sin in them to cast down that which should be cast down, if they do not cast it down out of a right and gracious Principle; Then what evil is it for men in bitterness of spirit to oppose that which is in itself good, if God account it sin to oppose that which which should be opposed, if it be through bitterness of spirit, and not through gracious Principles.

They have made many Altars:

Whatsoever is made by man in a Religious Worship, it is rejected of God; there must be nothing of mans making in Divine Worship; the very spirit and life of the second Commandement it consists in this, Thou shalt not make to thy self any graven Image. That's one instance in the matter of Worship,
Worship, but by that we are to understand any thing in Divine Worship, we must not make to our selves; (I say) there lies the very life, and the very spirit of the second Commandment the making to our selves; if God will appoint Ceremonies significant to put us in mind of Heavenly things, and stir up our hearts on high, we are to use them with reverence and respect; but if we will presume to do things as God hath done; that's the ground of all Superstitious Ceremonies, because they find God makes some, they think that they may presume to make others to imitate God; now it is a sin against the second Commandment for us to presume to make any thing in matters of Divine Worship.

Further, They have made many.

There's no stop (that's the Note) in superstitious Worship, if men leave the rule they know not where to stay: hence is the multiplying of things thus among the Papists, five hundred Altars in some one Temple. And Austin in his Epistle 19th Epistle complains of the multitude of Ceremonies that were in the Church in his time. What complaints would he have now? All things in the Church were full of presumptions, they did multiply one thing after another, and indeed let but the right way once be left and there's no limits. Oh let us take heed how we multiply in Gods Worship; there's much controversy between the Papists and us, about multiplying in the Worship of God.

We would have but one Mediator, they would have many; We would have but one rule of Faith, but they will give power to Pope, and Church to make Articles of faith; we would have but one object of Worship, they would have many; we would have but one Sacrifice, they would have many Oblations for the quick and dead; we would have but one Satisfaction, they would have many; we would have but one Merit, they would have have many: And thus by multiplying, the unity of the Church is divided: but we must keep to the unity that we find in the Scriptures.

And then further, They have made many Altars.

In the opening what a sin it was to make any other Altar but that God hath appointed, I shewed out of Joshua, how their Progenitors was so provoked when there was made another Altar, they did rise against them and made account to destroy them every one, because of making any other Altar besides Gods; but now they make many Altars. Their Fathers were careful to keep themselves to one Altar, but their successors they make many.

Hence note that, We are ready to imitate our forefathers in that which is evil, but not in that which is good. Their forefathers were great enemies and were mightily incensed against adding but one Altar to Gods Altars, but they will not imitate their forefathers in this good thing, in standing for that one true Worship of God; ordinarily when any thing is evil there we will imitate our forefathers, but we leave them in that which is good.

If you would ask the reason why it came to pass that their Progenitors were so zealous for Gods own Altar, and yet now their children after them make many Altars, the reason may be this, which will afford a Note of very great use unto us, When their Progenitors came first into the Land of Canaan, and Joshua as soon as they came in he did according to the Commandement of God by Moses, set up an Altar, and they seeing upon their first coming into the Land the goodness of God towards them, they were much taken with this; but now after they had enjoyed the Land a while, after they begun to be settled, to be warm in their nests, and to prosper in the Land, then they ventured upon this way of corrupting of Gods Worship, and multiplying Altars; and when they had once ventured, and escaped escaped unpunished, then they thought they were sure: and so by degrees they come to this excess in superstitious Worship.

The Note is this, We must take heed to make any distance of time from the Commandement given, or the Threatning denounced to make us to fear the breach of the Commandement lest: They were afraid of the breach of the Commandement soon after it was given; but when there was a distance of time from the Commandement, and when they were settled in a way of prosperity, then they ventured: so that (I say) from hence our Note is, That we must take heed that the distance of time, or our settling in a prosperous condition doth not make us to fear the commandement less than we did fear it at first when we were not in such a settled way. And for this you have a most excellent Scripture in Deut. 4. 25.

With the text there, When thou shalt beget children, and childrens children, and shalt have remained long in the Land, and shalt corrupt your selves, and make a graven image, or the likeness of anything, and shalt do evil in the sight of the Lord thy God to provoke him to anger. When thou shalt beget children, and childrens children, and shalt remain long in the Land, then thou shalt make graven images: There was not so much fear that when they came first into the Land, that they should make graven images when they first were delivered out of their bondage, and God had made known his glorious Word unto them, their hearts were a little warm, but after they had lived long in the Land, then they began to forget God and make graven images. Just so it is with us for all the world, when we are newly come out of afflictions, then our hearts are kept a little warm, and then we would serve God according to his own way; but after we have continued long in the Land, and been a while in a prosperous condition and pretty well nourished, and find all things pretty well about us, Oh! then we begin to be cool and forget the Lord in his way. It hath been always so, and it is so, not only in particular persons and and Nations, but Churches too, ordinarily when people are delivered from superstitious vanities and come to worship God in his own way, at first when they come to enjoy the Ordinances of God in the purity of them, Oh! how glad are they, and they bless God, and their hearts are warmed and enlarged, and their hearts do close one with another, and what sweet union is there together at first! but after they have lived a while in the Land, after they have lived a while in the way of God and enjoyed him a little, they begin to grow more cool, and dead, and begin to fall to wrangling and contending, and so all that spiritualness and that heavenly heat that they had before it vanishes and comes to nothing: I beseech you remember this text, Deut. 4. 25. Take heed after you have abode a while in such a condition; you thought when you came first into it you would never forget God, Oh you blessed God, and rejoiced in God's Worship; well, your hearts are taken at first, but look to your selves, for after you have continued any long time it may prove to be otherwise with you.

Again further, Epbraim hath made many Altars: hath multiplied Altars, to Hierom. So the Seventy hath gone on in way of multiplication. They had some Altars at first, and their fore-fathers made some, and they afterwards made more, and so still every generation did multiply their Altars.

From thence the Note is this: That Idolatry and False-worship doth not only continue in succession, but in every age there will be an addition. Oh my Brethren! let the True Worship of God then, not only continue, but multiply. Idolaters they will make this no argument, Why should we be wiser than our fore-fathers? No, they will go beyond their fore-fathers in way of false Worship, And yet, how many among us will be pleading against Reformation with this argument, Why should not we content our selves with what our fore-fathers did? our fore-fathers knew not of such such new ways of Worship as you tell us of. But now my Brethren, if our fore-fathers reformed a little, let us bless God for what they did, but let us add more, to raise up the Worship of God yet higher and higher, as in Psal.

Ps. 71. 14. But I will hope continually, and will yet praise thee more and more. The words may be read thus: I will ad unto thy praise, O Lord: Thou hast had praise, indeed formerly thou hadst praise from others; Oh! but I will do something to add to thy praise, I will praise thee more and more: so every generation should strive to praise God more & more;

to add to Gods praise, to find out more of Gods Truths, to add to the purity of Gods Worship, and to cast out superflition more than our fore-fathers have done: it was an argument of a great deal of praise in our fore-fathers to do what they did, and (I say) we are to bless God for them, that the Lord put such a spirit into them, but know that that which was accepted of from our fore-fathers, will not be accepted of from us, God expects that we should add to the praise of God. Men desires to ad more and more to the States of their Progenitors, and so your Children they will add a little to the estates that you leave them;

and so men account it their ambition to raise their families. My Brethren, we should have an holy Ambition by practice of Religion more and more in every age, as Jehu said in 2 King. 10. 18. Ahab served Baal a little, but Jehu shall serve him much: So others; as he said of false worship, though in a fained way; we should say of the true Worship of God, we have served the Lord a little, but we will serve him more; we have more mercies than they had, more light than they had, if they served God a little, we will serve him more.

And then, Ephraim hath made many Altars to sin.

God still remembers the first and the chief Acts in sin [Ephraim]

Ver. 11 the Prophecies of Hosea.

[Epheus] he speaks to the ten Tribes, and yet only names Ephraim, because the Governors were of that Tribe. The chief in a family, by whom the whole family is corrupted, and the chief in a Town or Country, God hath an eye upon them, and though others escape they shall not, Ephraim hath multiplied Altars to sin; they intended not to sin, it was not their intention when they made Altars that they might sin, they thought they pleased God, but God accounts it sin, and a provocation to him:

And from thence the Note is only this; That whatsoever names we may give to things, yet (it may be) God will give other names and titles to them; we may say, that it is devotion, God will say, it is superstition; we may say, it's good intention, but God may say, it is presumption; we may say, it is prudence, and wisdom, but God may give it another name, and say it is temporising, ’tis time-serving, God doth use to give other names to things than we do; in the Scripture they call their Images their, deleatable things: God calls them detestable things. No question if you would ask them why they built Altars they would say, to the honor of God; but faith God, You built Altars to sin.

And then, Altars shall be unto him to sin.

Shall be to him.] That's thus; Seeing they will have them, they shall have them, they shall have enough of them, let them go on in their way, let them multiply their sin.

When mens hearts are set upon false ways of worship it's just with God to let them have their desires to the full; They shall have their way that they do contend for; they keep a great deal of stir for it, and have it they must, they refuse to see the light, they are prejudiced against the way of Gods Worship, let them have what they would have; faith God, they shall have Governors to establish what they would have by their Authority, and they shall have their their Teachers that shall defend by subtil Arguments those things to be lawful, they multiply Altars to sin and they shall be to sin, even to harden them; and so the Seventy seem to take the meaning of these words by their translation of them; whereas you have it, They shall be to sin, their Altars shall be to love, their hearts are set upon them and they will have them, and love them, and they shall be hardened in them; and this is the heavy judgment of God to give unto men their hearts desires in what is evil; and as it shall be to them for sin, so it shall be to them for their misery for the fruit of sin, for so sin is taken very frequently in Scripture for the fruit of sin, they will have them to sin, and they shall find the fruit of sin by what they are so eagerly set upon them. And thus much for the eleventh verse. It follows.

Ver. 12.

I have written to him the great things of my Law, but they were counted as a strange thing.

This Verse in the reading of it appears a greatness in the very sound of it, and there is as much in it as the found doth import, and therefore though we pass over other things more briefly, yet because there is very much of Gods mind in this, and we should wrong the Scripture if we should pass over this too slightly.

I have written to him the great things of my Law:

This is made an aggravation of their sin, they multiply Altars to sin, and yet faith God, I have written to them the great things of my Law: they find no such things in my Law written to them, this was against the very written Word of God, and what that written Word of God against those many Altars was, that you had the last day, but in that from this connexion that these are made sins because they were:
were against the written Word of God: from thence the Note is,

That whatsoever is urged to us, or practised by us in matters of Worship, it must have Warrant out of the written Word of God. It was sin, Why? because I have written to them (faith he) the great things of my Law, and they counted it a strong thing; though that which they did had a great deal of seeming devotion in it, yet it was otherwise than that they found written in my Law.

This Question should be put to any that tender to us any way of Worship, or Doctrine of Religion under any specious shew whatsoever; Where is it written? To the Law, and to the Testimonies, (Is. 8. 20.) If they speak not according to this Word, it is, because they have no light in them; Oh they seem to be very judicious and wise, but if they speak not according to this Word they have no light in them, not only to the Law and Testimonies, but to the written Law and Testimonies, this must be the Standard at which all Doctrines and Waies of Worship must be tried:

Many may put fair colours upon their Waies, that it is for Common Peace, and a great deal of good may be done by it, and the like; But is it written? Did I ever command it? Faith God? Policy may say it’s fit, Reason may say it’s comely, and Experience may say it’s useful, But doth the written Law say it should be? Nay, it’s not enough to say, That we cannot say it is forbidden, But where is it written? In matters of Worship this is a certain rule. Saith Tertullian about the Crowning of the Soldier with Baies; If it be said, It is lawful, because the Scripture doth not forbid it; it may equally be retorted, It is therefore not lawful, because the Scripture doth not command it. No matter what the thing be (Faith Luther) in matters of Religion, but who it is that bids it, who it is that commands it, we must look to that; Never argue thus in any point of Religion (I beseech you consider, it is a point that hath been, is, and may yet further prove to be of great use to us.)
never argue thus, Why, what hurt is there in it? is it not very comely? I cannot think but it may do a great deal of good, these arguments are weak arguments in matters of Worship: but to all these arguments we must answer, Is it written? As Christ answered the Devil and his temptations, it was enough to say, it was written thus and thus: So if you can but bring a word written against it, and if you can put them unto it to shew what they would have you to do, let them shew it where it is written; in Exod. 39. we find in that chapter at least ten times it is said, they did according to what the Lord had commanded Moses, and in the conclusion of the chapter Moses blessed the people; the people are blessed when in the matters of Worship they keep unto what is commanded.

And again, As we must not make what we think the rule for worship, so neither the *Opinions of Learned men, nor Custom, nor Antiquity, must be the rule of our Worship, but what’s written? I have written to them the great things of my Law, they must keep to that; whatsoever use we may make now of the Opinions of Antients and the like, yet if the Antients themselves were alive they would abhor the use that many make of their quotations; Cyprian in one of his Epistles faith, We must not look what this man, or that man that were before us (he speaks of his predecessors) what he did, or what he taught, but what he that was before all, namely Christ, who alone is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. And so *Augustin hath another Speech to the same effect, speaking of the Antients, of learned men, having all due respect that is due to them, yet for us to think that we may not cast out, even reject from their writings some things, because they were learned men, this must not be admitted; for (faith he) such a one Ple be in respect of the writings of other men, and such a one would I have those that understand my writings to be to me, I will not think of the writings of any other men before, that there should be nothing cast out nor mended, neither would I have have any body think so of my writings. And so Ambrofe, Where the Scripture is silent we must not speak. Thus we see that those men for the maintaining of that which is evil they will make use of Quotations, and Antiquities, yet we see the Antients did abhor this, Christ and his Apostles they quoted none of the Learned men before them, but Moses and the Prophets.

But you will say, Though we must not take that which other men write to be the Rule, yet that which other men write may help us to understand the Scripture.

Now I remember Luther hath such a Speech, That Scripture should rather help us to understand mens writings, than mens writings to understand the Scripture; Many men they will make mens writings to be as a judge, and to be the rule of understanding Scriptures, not the Judge of Truth, but the rule of understanding Scripture, whereas (faith he) the Scripture should rather be the rule of understanding them.

And so Hilary, (faith he) for the sense of Scripture and understanding them, He is the best Interpreter, that rather takes the sense from out of Scripture, and by comparing one Scripture with another, than bring any new sense; therefore the understanding of Scripture is more by Scripture than by the Writings of any man living. And yet still no question we may make use of the gifts of God in others, but so as to keep us close to the written Word for the Rule, yea, and for the meaning of the Rule; they may help us to see whether the Scripture will justify this Truth, or this sense, for there lies the mistake; Most people in the world will think this indeed, That whatsoever any man writes, if it be contrary to the Word, we may not receive it, but we must understand the Word in what sense they take it; now we must not go so far; For the Scripture written, is not only that we might know what the Rule is, but it is written, that we might understand the meaning of the Rule, and we must fetch out the meaning of Scriptures by Scripture;
Scripture: Now so far as the Writings of men will help us to fetch out the meaning of Scripture by Scripture, so far we may make use of them; but we cannot say, this is the meaning, because it is the judgment of such and such Learned men; but such and such Learned men will give you Reasons, and compare one Scripture with another, to shew why it is the meaning of it, and they will shew you the History of the time, and shew you how to compare old and new Testament one with another; and this is the use of Writers for understanding the Scriptures. Then you will say, Why do we make use of Writers so much? Why thus, they shew how one Scripture looks towards another, and to compare one Scripture with another, and shew the coherence of things.

The sense of things is to be resolved in the Scripture itself, and therefore we must keep ourselves very close to what is written.

Written: It was not so at first, it was delivered but from hand to hand, but afterwards when the Church began to multiply, then the Word was written. And this is a mighty blessing of God, that we may have the mind of God written, so as we may look into it, and search to know the mind of God, by reading it over and over again, and taking it into our hands, when we are lying upon our beds, if we light a Candle in the night, we may be reading and looking into the mind of God; If we should only hear of such a Book that were in the world, that were in China in the uttermost parts of the habitable world, if we should hear that there were such a Book, that God had written, or that God had used men to write by an inspiration of His own Spirit, a Book that was certainly indited by the holy Ghost every word of it, wherein the Lord had revealed the great Counsels of his Will concerning Man's eternal estate, if we should hear that there came such a Book down even from Heaven, and this was in the uttermost parts of the earth, Oh! what a longing desire should we have to see fee that Book? What man or woman but would give their whol estate to have a week, or a fortnights time to see and reade in such a Book as that is; if one could, he would be willing to travel to the end of the world to have the use of such a Book as that is. No man need say, Shall I go to the uttermost parts of the earth? for it is in your hands, it is in your houses, there is the Book wherein the great God hath written his mind, hath written all things unto you which concerns you Eternal Salvation, hath written there whatsoever he would have you to know and beleve to Eternal Life; this it is that you have in your hands: however we prize it now, heretofore it hath been prized at an high rate; How many of the Martyrs would venture their lives to keep but a few Leaves of Scripture in their houses?
But how vile is it then for us to neglect the reading of this written Word? I have read of one Theodorus a Physitian at Constantinople, that he sent to Gregory the great, a great sum of money for the redeeming of Captives, and Gregory he commends his Liberality; but though he was so liberal and bountiful to redeem Captives, yet he writ back again to him in way of reprehending him for not reading Scripture, and uses this expression to him, The Emperor of Heaven, the Lord of the Angels and Men, hath sent to you, that which concerns your life, and will you neglect to read them with a fervent, with a zealous spirit? He would not but blame him even at that time when he sent such gifts to him, it did grieve him to think that such a one so bountiful to the poor should to neglect the reading of Scripture. Many men and women that have excellent parts and yet for all that they find but little favor in the Scripture. There's no books that are written that should take us off from this written Word; although we have cause to bless God abundantly for what is written, for those excellent helps which we have written, yet we must take heed that there be no written book in the world take us off from this written Word of God. Luther therefore hath such a speech, I even hate mine own Bookes, and I often times even wish that they were burnt, that they might perish. Why? because I fear lest they should be any way of hinderance to men, or withdraw them from reading the Scriptures: and so far a coming the Scriptures: It is the only fountain of all wisdom; and further faith he, I am even terrified, I tremble at the example of the former age, upon this, because (faith he) many Divines spent so much time in reading of Aristotle and Averrice and other Writers and spent so little time in reading Scripture. And the truth is it was that which brought so much ignorance into the world in the time of the School-men which was a time of great learning and yet the time of the greatest ignorance in the Mysteries, of godlines, because they minded Scripture very little, but only turn'd things into Questions, and Disputes that tended not according to Scripture; though we may make use of the labors and gifts of other men, yet look we especially to the written Word, and let not other writings take us off from them; hence we say, the Scripture in way of excellency we must keep our selves to the written Word, and therefore take heed of being led aside by any traditions of men; that's a most detestable derogation from the written Word: but we find in the Council of Trent, speaking of the Scriptures, faith one of the Cannons of the Council of Trent,

We (faith he) do receive Scripture, and reverence Scripture, but (faith he) moreover we receive and reverence traditions with the same affection of piety and reverence as we do the Scripture. Those are the very words that all Papists are bound to hold, and for them to deny any counsel there were death unto them; It argues men to be in the dark, to mind Traditions so: As the Jews, that's the reason that they vanish so in their thoughts, and understand the Scripture so little, because they mind traditions as much as Scripture, and more; for so they say, that divide a mans life into three parts, one part must be spent in reading Scripture, and two parts more in the two several parts of their Talmound, which is their traditions; and some of them say that this is one tradition among them, that Moses did study the Scripture in the day time, and those Talmudical traditions that they have they were studied in the night; and indeed it is night-work, and it is a sign that the world is so much in darkness because they look so much at Traditions; the written Word of God which we must look at more than if one came from the dead, or if an Angel from Heaven came and preached to us:

But you will say, That we must not look to it more than if God should reveal any thing to us, suppose it were a voice of God from Heaven.

We have warrant to have regard to the written Word of God more than the voice of God from Heaven, 2 Peter, 1. 19. there it's spoken of the voice that came down upon the transfiguration at the Mountain, but faith the Apostle there, We have a more sure word of Prophefie, more, more even than that was: that is, it is more sure to us, and there is not so easie a way to be deceived by resting upon the written Word, as if we look for Revelations from God, we have a more sure word of Prophefie, therefore it is not so much after Revelations that we are to look (especially in such times as these are) but to the written Word of God. There is a Generation of men rising now, if not ri-fen, that begin to have vile thoughts of the written Word of God, and think to understand the mind of God otherwise, they finding the written Word of God to keep their hearts too close and lay too strong bonds upon them, but because they would fain be loose they would feign and iimagin to themselves other waies of Gods mind, but when they are rotten, and it may be when their souls are perished eternally in Hell, the written Word of God shall stand and be honorable in the eyes of his Saints.
The Prophet doth not say, he hath written; but he brings in God, saying I have written. And that first upon these two reasons.

First, To put the greater emphasis upon it, for it is more for God himself to come and say, I have written; as if a Father or Master say to his Child or Servant, I command you to do such a thing, it is more than if a Brother or fellow-Servant should say, my Father hath bidden, or my Master hath bidden you to do such a thing.

Secondly, Whosoever were the Pen-men of the Word, it is I that write it, I take it upon my self. The Word is so much his that God claims not only the truths that are in the Word, but the very ordering for the words; and in 2 Pet. 1. 21. it is said of holy men, they spake as they were moved by the holy Ghost: they were carried on with a kind of violence as the word signifies, and not only moved, but carried on with a kind of violence to write what they did, both in their speaking and in their writing, I have written.

And I have written to him the great things of my Law.

From this manner of Phrase, first we are to note this, That we should look upon the Scripture as concerning ourselves. Here's a letter written to you, and you, and you, every man and woman, therefore it is in the singular number, every man & woman must look upon the Scripture as written to him, or her particularly; God writes to thee, he hath written a letter to thee that thou shouldst not commit Adultery, nor swear, nor steal, and that thou shouldst keep the Sabbath, and that thou shouldst not lye, and that thou shouldst reverence him, and love him, and fear him, and all such kind of rules that God from Heaven hath written to thee, and it is a most vailous help to obedience and and to awaken men's consciences when they apprehend them written to them. Psal. 119. 105. Thy Word is a Lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my paths. It is not a light that I see at a distance a great way off, but as a light that is held to my feet that I make use of for the ordering of mine own steps.

Many there are that seem to rejoice in the Word of God as a light to reveal Truths unto them for matter of discourse, but they make it not as a light to their feet, and a Lanthorn to their steps, as applying it to themselves, and it follows, I have sworn and will perform it, That I will keep thy righteous judgments: I have looked upon thy Word as a Lanthorn to my feet, as a thing merely concerning me; and then I have sworn and I will perform, I have sworn that I will keep thy righteous judgments. It's a mighty means to stir up a man's spirit, and quicken him up to obedience, to look upon the Word as written to himself: As thus, when you come to hear out of God's Word and God directs the Minister to that you apprehend it as spoken to you, it will stir and awaken you. Oh me thought this day every word the Minister spake it was to me. And so every word in the Scripture that concerns thee, God writes to thee and conceive it so and it will be a mighty means to stir thee up to obedience. As if a man be asleep a great noise will not waken him so soon, as if you call him by his name, John, Thomas &c. So when the Word of God comes as to our selves in particular it's a mighty means to stir the heart.

Again, I have written to him:

To those that were the People of God, though the Word concerns all men, yet it is written to the Church in a more especial manner. As you find in the Revelations all the Epistles were written to the Churches, and indeed all the Word of God is in a more peculiar manner written.
to the Church, there are some things concerning all mankind, but that which God Aims at in a more especial manner it is to the Church, first to the Church of the Jews, they had that great priviledg that the Oracles of God were committed to them in Rom. 3. 2. when the Apostle had taken them off from resting in many of their outward priviledges, he brings an Objection: But then may some say, What advantage hath the Jew? He answers, much every way, chiefly, because to them were committed the Oracles of God: in this thing they had much advantage of all people in the world, that to them were committed the Oracles of God, God gave Jacob his Law, it was the Inheritance of his people; it is written to them, to them is committed the Oracles of God: and this is a great honor which God puts upon his Saints, God makes his Church to be the Keeper of his Records, the Court of Rolls as it were, the Church is as it were the Court of Rolls, and the great Records of Heaven, God commits to his Church, and therefore they should look to it that it be kept faithfully, that there be no corrupting it, for then they do falsifie their trust, Shee hath the keeping of Scripture but gives no Authority to Scripture; in John, 5. 47. faith Christ there, If ye believe not Moses writings, how can ye believe my words? Mark, Christ would have the Authority of his words much to be strengthened by the writings that were before in Scripture, If ye believe not his writings, how can ye believe my words? But now the Papists will say, If ye believe not our words, how can ye believe their writings? quite the other way, they will take upon them more than Christ; Christ Faith, If ye believe not his writings, how can ye believe my words? Say they, If ye believe not our words, how can ye believe their writings? For they take the Authority of the writing of Scripture to depend upon their words; It is written to the Church, and committed to the Church, but the Authority comes not from the Church. It follows.
I have written the great things of my Law.

By Law here we are to understand the whole Word of God, and not in way of distinction of Law and Gospel, but the whole Word of God, and so the word signifies, it comes from one signifying teaching; the Law is a Doctrine that is taught, and so though sometimes it may be distinguished from some other parts of Scripture, yet now we are to understand the whole mind of God in his Word; when you read in Psal. 119. how David loved God's Law, it is not the ten Commandments, but the mind of God revealed in his Word.

The great things of my Law] The Old Latin hath it the many Laws, and the words in the Hebrew seems a little to favor, the multiplicity of my Laws. And then it should argue these two things.

First, That the Word is full and perfect; that we have rules for every thing that concerns the ordination of our lives to God in his Word, there's a multiplicity of Laws and Rules for all our ways.

Secondly, That there are manifold excellencies in God's Law; as the manifold wisdom of God is in Christ, so the manifold excellencies of God are kept up together in the Word of God. The Seventy translates the word, the Fullness, or Multiplicity, and according to that Tertullian hath an expression, I adore the fulness of the Scripture; Oh the multitude of excellent things there are there! and the fulness that there is there! I find divers turn this word by many words that have excellent significations in them, and indeed the Hebrew word will bear many expressions of it. Some the Precious thing, the Magnificent thing; the Excellent thing; the Honorable things of my Law; as in Acts, 2. 11. they spake the wonderful things of God, it is more than the great things, the magnificent great things of God. Now the things of the Word they are glorious and honorable and very great, they they are to be look'd upon as great things, the things of God's Word; That's the first.

And then especially, The things that concern God's Worship are to be look'd upon as great things, for so it hath reference to them, but the expression aims at that which is more general, the great things of my Law, the honorable, magnificent, and glorious things. Now the things of the Law are great things.

First, Because they are from the great God, and they have the stamp of the Authority of the great God upon them, there is a dreadful Authority in every Truth, in every thing that is written in God's Law, (I say) there is a dreadful Authority of the great God, that binds Kings and Princes in chains, that lays bonds upon the conscience that no created power can, yet this doth; when we come to hear the Word, we come either as to a Sovereign to receive Laws from, or as to a Judge to receive the sentence of death; it hath the dreadful Authority of the great God in it, and therefore every thing that is in the Word is to be look'd upon as a great thing; a piece of Parchment and a little Wax, and a few Lines in it what are they? but having the Authority of the great Seal of England, such a piece is to be look'd upon as a great thing: The things of God's Law are great things, for they have great Authority which goes along with them.

And Secondly, They are great things because of the lushtre of the great God that shines in them. Take all the Creatures that ever God made in Heaven and Earth, and (I say) there is not so much glory of God in Sun, Moon, Stars, Sea, and Plants, and all things in the world, as there is in some few sentences of holy Scripture, therefore they are great things: P(sal. 138.2. Thou hast magnified thy Word above all thy Name. Illustrated. The Name of God appears in his great work of Creation, and of Providence. We are to look upon God's Name as very great; yet thou hast magnified thy Word above all thy Name; it's more than all God's Names besides: It may be be when there are some extraordinary works of God in the world, Thundering, and Lightning &c. we are ready to be afraid, and oh! the great God that doth appear in these great works! Were our hearts as they ought to be when we reade the Word, we would tremble at that more than at any manifestation of God since the world began in all his works; and if so be thou dost not see more glory of God in his Word than in his works, it is because thou halt little light in thee; and therefore let the world think of the things of Gods Law that are written, as they will, yet they are the great things of his Law.

Thirdly, They are the great Mysteries of Gods Will, the great Counsels of God about the Souls of men, about his way to honor Himself, and to bring Mankind to Himself, to Eternal life; the great Counsels, great Mysteries that are contained in the Word of God, such as the Angels them-seves do desire to pry into; as in Prov. 8. 6. it is said of Wisdom, Hear, and I will speak of excellent things. The Word of God speaks of excellent things, right excellent things, such great Mysteries of Gods Wisdom as should take up our thoughts, yea, and doth take up the Angels, and shall take up the Angels and Saints to all Eternity, to be prying into the great things which are revealed in Gods Word: Psal. 119. 27. Make me to understand the way of thy precepts, so shall I talk of thy wondrous Works: Mark how these are joy-ned together: Make me to understand the way of thy precepts, so shall I talk of thy wondrous works: Why David, couldest not thou see the wonderous works of God in the book of the creature, in Heaven and Earth? Oh no, Make me to understand the way of thy precepts, and then shall I talk of thy wondrous Works. We many times talk about vain and slight things, because we have nothing else to talk of; but did we understand the way of Gods precepts, we should be furnisht with discourse of the wondrouss works of God.

And then, It's a great WORLD, because that they are of great concernment: The things of God's Law are of great concernment for all our present good or evil depends upon the things of God's Law, Prov. 3. 22. They are life unto thy soul, and grace unto thy neck. So faith Moses in Deut. 32. 46. Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify unto you this day, for it is not a vain thing, it is your life, they are of great concernment there's a curse annexed to the breach of every thing in God's Law, Cursed be every one that abideth not in every thing that is written in the book of the Law: Is it not a great matter then? Certainly there is nothing in the Law that is to be looked upon as a little matter, because the Curse of God is annexed to the breach of every thing that is written in God's Law, and there we have the casting of our souls for eternity, and is not that a great matter? Did we come to hear the Word, or did we read the Word as the Word by which we must be cast for our eternal estates, we would look upon it as a great Word.

5. Again, The things are great things in God's Law, in regard of the great power and efficacy that they have upon the hearts and consciences of men; when God sets home the things of his Law they will bring down the proudest heart and the stoutest stomach that is, they will enlighten the blindest mind, and convert the hardest heart that is in the world, the Law hath a mighty power upon the soul, and therefore it is great.

6. Further, They are great things, because they make all those great that do receive them; they make them great even because they have but the keeping of them, much more than if they receive them; in Deut. 4. 8. What Nation is there so great, that hath Statutes and Judgments so righteous as all this Law that I set before you this day? What Nation so great as you are? why, wherein are we greater than other people? Wherein? In this: What Nation is so great that hath Statutes and Judgments so righteous as all this Law which I set before you this day? This was that which made the People of Israel a great Nation beyond all the Nations in the world; they were were not great in multitude, but in that they had the Law of God, and the great things of his Law revealed to them, in this they became a great Nation. The Lord honors a Nation highly but to reveal the things of His Law to them; But how great then doth a soul come to be, that doth embrace those things, that hath all those great and good things revealed in the Law made to it as its own privileged? Surely that soul is in an high and honorable condition indeed.

Further, The things of God's Law are great in God's esteem; they are great because the great God thinks them so: That is to be accounted great that the most judicious and wise men in the world judge to be; indeed that which a child thinks to be a great thing is no great thing, a child may think a bauble to be a great thing; so we may think things great indeed, we think the things of the world are great; for a man to have an estate, it's a great matter; to have riches, and honors, and to be some-body in the world, we think these to be great things; But what are these in God's eyes? God despises all these things: But that which the great God will think to be a great thing, certainly that's great indeed. Now mark what a high esteem God hath of his Word in that place where Christ faith, Heaven and Earth shall pass away, but not one jot or tittle of my Word shall pass away. As if Christ should say, The Lord will rather withdraw his power from the upholding of Heaven and Earth, than from making good any one jot or tittle of his Law; you may think it a little matter to break God's Law, but God thinks it a great matter, and God would have us to make a great matter of every thing that is written in God's Law. I am the wiler to enlarge myself in this, because I know it is the ground of all the wickedness in men's hearts and lives, because they look upon the Law as a little matter, well though they dare sin against God's Law for the getting of a great or six pence, but God faith I will rather lose Heaven and Earth than one jot or tittle of my Law shall fall, and he will make it appear one day that the things of his Law are great things, in Isa. 42. 21.

He will magnifie the Law and make it honorable. You may vilifie it; a company of wanton spirits we have that consider not what they say, or what they do, running away with the very word of the Law, they think to vilifie it.

What have we to do with the Law? and under that word (not understanding what they mean) they think to cast a vile esteem upon the Law; let them do what they will, yet God will magnifie his Law; and as it is great in the thoughts of God, so it is and shall be for ever great in the thoughts of the Saints, the Lord will have his people to the end of the world have high thoughts of his Law; the Saints they look upon the Law of God so great, as they had rather suffer all the miseries and torments that any man in the world, any Tyrant can devise, than willingly to break the Law in any one thing; surely they account it a great matter, when a man shall be willing rather to lose his estate, and liberty, yea, and life, to suffer tortures and torments, and all because he will not offend the Law of God in any one thing, though he might escape all if he would; nay, faith a gracious heart, Let all go rather than I will venture to break the Law of God in any one thing, surely he looks upon the Law of God as very great. Men of the world think them to be fools, and why will you be content to suffer so much, lose all your friends? what, venture to lose your estates which have such a fair way of living as you have? what venture a prison, and venture your life? the world thinks they are but little things and trifles, and men are more precise than wife, and they need not trouble themselves so much. If God would but shew to you how great a thing his Law is, and all the threatenings which are revealed therein, you would account your estates, and lives and all your comforts as little and poor in comparison of that Law; hence in Revel. 6. 9. I saw under the Apoc. 6. 9. Altar the souls of them that were slain for the Word of God, and for the testimony which they held. Wherefore were they slain? Surely it was for some great matter that they would venture their lives, it was for the Word of God, and for the testimony which they held. And thus the Saints of God have ever accounted the Law of God a great thing. I have written unto them the great things of my Law.

Hence from what hath been said we may have these Notes for Observation.

Here are Objects in the Word for men of the greatest spirits to exercise themselves about. Many mens spirits are raised up and cannot endure to spend their thoughts and time about small matters; and you shall have some mens spirits are so low that they think it happiness enough if they can be employed in a gutter and get six pence or twelve pence a day to find them bread at night; but others have great spirits: Oh! let all those who have aspiring spirits, and great spirits, let them exercise themselves much in the Law of God, here are objects fit for great spirits, that will greaten our spirits: And indeed there are no men in the world have great spirits, but the Saints they have great spirits, for they exercise themselves in the great counsels of God. We account those men to be men of the greatest spirits that are employed in State-affairs: now the Saints they are lifted up above all things in the world, and they look at all these things as little and mean, and they are exercised in the great affairs of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ; hence it is that the Lord would have Kings to have the book of the Law written, and the Judges; and it is reported of Alphonfus King of Aragon that in the midst of all his great affairs of his Kingdom, he read over the Scriptures fourteen times with Commentaries upon them. How many have we, men of great states, and seem to be of great spirits that scarce mind the Law of God, they look upon the Law of God as under them; it may be if they can have a book of History and Wars, they will be reading over that, but for the Scripture it is a thing that hath little in it.
Obs. 2. Another Note, *It is a special means of obedience to have high thoughts of God's Law, to convince and humble them for their disobedience: for that's the reason why the Prophet here speaks thus: I have written to him the great things of my Law, but they were accounted as a strange thing. As if he should say, If they had had the things of my Law to have been high in their thoughts, they would never have done as they have done, Psal. 119. 129. Thy Testimonies are wonderful, therefore doth my soul keep them: I have high thoughts of thy Testimonies, I look upon them as glorious things, I see much of thy self in thy Testimonies, and therefore doth my soul keep them. He doth not say, therefore do I keep them; but therefore doth my soul keep them, Oh my very soul is in this, in keeping thy Testimonies, for I look upon them as wonderful things. It's a good sign of the Spirit of the great God in a man when it doth raise him above other things, to look upon the things of his Word as the only great things that are in the world. All flesh is grass (faith the Scripture) but the Word of God endures for ever; there is a vanity in all things of the world, but in that which the Word reveals, Oh! there is an eternity there; we should therefore admire at nothing so as at the Word, and we should greatly delight in God's Commandments; an ordinary admiration is not sufficient for the Commands of God, for the Law of God, nor an ordinary delight is not sufficient, but great admiration, and great delight there should be in the Law of God: And all things that are taken from God's Law should be great arguments to prevail with you: It may be there comes such and such temptations to draw you to such and such evils, and you say, they are strong temptations; But that which is in the Law, that should be a greater argument, there is that which is greater in God's Law than there can be in any temptation whatsoever; Therefore know, it is a dangerous thing for men and women to look at any thing in God's Law as a little thing, so as to despise it, and to think it is no great matter matter though we do such and such things, though we should go from the rule of the Word a little, what great matter is it? are we not all sinners? Prov. 13. 13. Who so despiseth the Word, shall be destroyed. That is: looks upon any thing in God's Word as a light thing. It was a speech of one that should say when he was convinced of a thing that was evil, That he must make bold with God Almighty sometimes. Do not you make bold with God's Word and secretly jeer at those that are so nice they cannot venture a little? remember this text in Prov. 13. 13. Who so despiseth the Word shall be destroyed; take the least thing that you think so despicable in God's Law, and you will venture upon it, but God will make it a great matter, for when you have broke the Law in the least thing all the Angels in Heaven and Men in the World cannot satisfy God for that wrong; if they should come and say, Lord, here's a poor creature that hath broken thy Law but in this one thing that he thought to be a little matter, we are content to be ten thousand years in torments to satisfy for thy Law. Nay faith God, this will not do it. Therefore take heed of despising God's Law, or despising any thing that is revealed by him, for certainly it will prove a great matter, and when the Law hath been broken let us not think it is a little matter, that it is but a Lord have mercy upon me at the last.

Again, The Prophet is convincing them of false worship, and upon this ground, Because they would venture to make Altars to worship God in another way than God revealed in his Law: from thence note,

That the Worship of God is a great matter; every thing in God's Worship is to be looked at as a great matter: They may think it a matter of indifference whether they do it or no, at least in some things; My Brethren, let us learn to know that every thing in the Worship of God is a great matter, God looks much upon it, God doth not say, that he is jealous for any thing, but for his Worship. Uzzah he
he thought it a little matter for him to go and catch the Ark, and especially having a good intention: It's true, the Law of God is, that it should be carried upon men's shoulders, but may it not as well be carried in a cart? he thought it but a little matter, but it proved a great matter. So, that which we think little in God's Worship is a great matter. So Uzziah in 2 Chron 26. No question he thought it no great matter to go into the Temple and offer sacrifice, Is it not as good that a King offer it as a Priest? it was in the Temple, and the true Worship, and Uzziah because he was a great man he thought he might venture, for there you find that he had an Army of three hundred thousand and seven thousand and five hundred Soldiers; A great Captain. And Nadab and Abihu no question they thought it no great matter to go and offer strange fire, and it hath not been forbidden in God's Word, this fire; but it was a great matter before God, for God came with fire from Heaven to destroy them. Hence it is that God in his Word would set out the glory of his Worship, to that end that he might take off men's hearts from all false worship, he would have them to think the matters of his Worship great things that so they might not have their hearts taken with any false worship, Ezek. 7. 20. The beauty of his Ornament he set in Majesty, (and hereby God aggravates their sin of Idolatry, Oh my Worship and Service I made it as beautiful and glorious as could be) but they worshiped their Images, their detestable things. So in Jer. 17. 12. A glorious high Throne from the beginning of our Sanctuary. Mark what follows, All that forsake thee, shall be ashamed, and they that depart from thee shall be written in the Earth: because they have forsaken the Lord, the Fountain of living Waters. As if God should say, Oh vile hearts of men when there is such a glorious Worship of mine that I present unto them, yet they turn even to their own vile Inventions, and not regard that glorious Worship of mine. I beseech you Brethren labor to look upon God's Worship as a glorious thing thing. But now the Reprehension that follows.

But they were accounted as a strange thing.

Here's the wickedness of people, that though God shews forth his Glory in his Word, yet they look upon it as a strange thing, as a thing that they shall get little good by if they do obey, or little hurt by if they do disoblige. We should now have shewed wherein this people did account Gods Worship a strange thing, and what particulars of Gods Law they accounted strange things: But especially this one among the rest, they did count strange, viz: that God should so stand upon it, that He must needs be worshiped in Jerusalem at the Temple, and at no other Altar whatsoever came of it. Now because they thought that if the people went to Jerusalem to worship it would be very prejudicial to the State, this was a strange thing, & that which we can see no reason for. So, people are ready to think, if any thing be propounded for the Worship of God out of the Word, Yea, but how can it be with peace? it wil cause contention now to stand upon such things that they conceive may breed some trouble, they account it a strange thing that God should require such things as may produce such troubles: first men will frame troubles in their own thoughts, and put them upon Gods Worship, whereas indeed they do not bring such trouble, but if they be examined they may stand well enough with the peace of States. I make no question but this is one especial thing aim'd at by the holy Ghost here, That they accounted Gods Law, that very Law of God that required them to worship at Jerusalem as a strange thing, that they could not see such reason for why they might not venture, and especially when it was for the peace of the Civil State.

Now they accounted this (and the other particular of Gods Law) as a strange thing in Four regards.

First. As a thing that had little or no reference to them, as a thing that did not much concern them: They took not to heart the Word accounted strange.

1. As not concerning the breaches of God's Law, neither did they much regard the keeping of it, it was no great matter to them, they made account that it was [ad libitum] what they did that way, much did not depend upon it, either good or evil: As a stranger accounts it not to concern him what the Master commands: or as we account it no great matter what strangers do, what cloaths they wear, or what course they take, we let them pass by and not mind them.

Secondly, They accounted them as a strange thing; that is: They were strange things in their apprehension, they could see no reason: as we say of a thing that we do not understand that we see no reason of it, it is strange (we say:) so they in the text, that God should say thus and thus when we cannot see that any account can be given for it, they are strange things. Strange things that they did not apprehend the reason of, and especially among other things of God's Law (as was said before) the way of God's Worship was a very strange thing to them, that God should stand so much upon it that he must be worshiped no where in the way of publick worship but at Jerusalem, at the Temple, no sacrifices must be offered but there, yea, that whatsoever come of it though people dwell a great way off, though as they thought it would bring a great deal of disturbance unto the Kingdom of Israel for to go to Jerusalem to worship, yet that God should stand so upon it that they must go, and that the Prophets should urge it with that servenecie as they did, that they must go to Jerusalem come of it what will, they must venture their peace; they accounted this a strange thing. And indeed it is very strange unto people to think, that we must look to the exact way of God's Worship whatsoever comes of it, whatsoever trouble or disturbance comes of it, we must not go a hair against the way that God hath set for his right Worship: this is a strange thing to carnal hearts. And Luther upon the place seems to interpret it thus, as if this Text had especial reference to this Note that I am now speaking of, faith he,
The, They did condemn, and contemn the Prophets Sermons, as a Doctrine that did hurt the Common-wealth, the Sermons that the Prophets taught had in them much anxiety, specially this Doctrine, against going up to Jerusalem to worship, and they thought it was hurtful to the Common-wealth, and upon that they contemned it and damn'd it. What strange thoughts have carnal hearts of many parts of God's Law? they think them foolishness, even those very things wherein the Wisdom of God is revealed to the children of men, those things wherein the deep Counsels of God concerning man's eternal estate is revealed, even those are the things which they account foolishness.

Thirdly, They accounted them a strange thing; that is, There was no samiliarity between their hearts and the things that the Law did reveal unto them; they did not make the Law of God familiar to them as that which had a samiliarity to their spirits. As if a man that goes into strange company, company which are altogether unsuitable to him, yea, perhaps they speak another language, and have altogether other customs, and diet than we have, we are weary of them, and we turn from them and are tired in the society, for they are strange things unto us that our hearts are not suitably unto: So when the Law of God is looked upon as unsuitable to the dispositions of our hearts, to our ends, to our ways, our hearts turn from those things as from strange things, whereas indeed our hearts should be familiar with the Word of God, God's Word and the things therein should not be as strange things to our souls, but as the holy Ghost faith, it should be as our Kinswoman, and as our Delight continually, Prov. 6. 21. Bind them continually about thy heart, and tie them about thy neck. When thou goest it shall lead thee, when thou sleepest it shall keep thee, and when thou awakest it shall talk with thee; there should be a familiarity between our hearts and the Commandements of God, to talk with us when we awake, and when we are in our journey, we should take the Law of God as our companion in our journeys, we should awake with it in the night time, and meditate on it day and night; therefore God would have his people in the Law when they rose, to talk of those things; when they go to bed, when they rose up, when they walked in the way, they should be conferring about the things of God's Law to make them familiar to them, that they might not be estranged from them; God sees that men's hearts would quickly grow strange from his Law, therefore Commanded that by all means and waies they should endeavor to make the Law to be familiar to them.

Fourthly, They use the Law as a stranger, that is, they use the Law slightly, only for their own turns: As usually men when strangers comes into their Country, (those that have been strangers in other Countries know it) that the Natives of the Country they use them slightly, but if they do seem to shew any respect unto them it is meerly for their own turns: As they may have any advantage by them so far they shew respect to them and no further. So they accounted the Law a strange thing, that is, they made use of the Law but meerly to serve their own turns: so far as obedience to the Law sutes to their own ends, so far they yeelded to it, and no further. Now it's very observable, that those who are forward in their false worship, that the text faith, they did multiply Altars, and had special regard to their Altars; yet for the Law they accounted that as a strange thing.

From whence the Note is: That superstitious people who are forward and zealous in their own way of Worship, yet they are very slight and negligent in Gods way of Worship, little regard that. Indeed their own Altars they were accounted great things, that way which they appointed themselves, they did not care what cost they were at in that way; but as for Gods way, that was as a strange thing unto them: We have seen it very evident, and do see it in great part to this day.
day, how those that are very zealous in superstitious worship, are the most negligent in God's way of Worship; to instance: you know in late times, what a deal of men make with their own forms of Worship, with their own Ceremonies and Waies of Worship which they appointed? how zealous were they in them, and devout were they in them? when they came in publick Congregations to bow and cring, and for other Ceremonies that they laid were only for the decency of God's Worship, how stiff were they in them, that the mouths of the most Godly Ministers must be stop'd if they would not conform to them? But even these men would scorn and jeer at strictness in God's Waies, and slight any man that would be conscientious in the Waies of God, and they were Rebels that should not yeild to a Ceremony, because it was disobedience to Magistracy. For men to be conscientious for little things (as they thought) in God's Law, seemed strange, when as they would urge men to obey to the uttermost in little things in their own. & so in another point that falls out as full and reasonable for the time, as in the point of their own Festivals and Holy daies, those that would persecute to the uttermost men that should work but to get bread for their families on a Holy-day, yet they could publish Books of Sports for the prophanation of the Lords Day: And thus the great things of God's Law they were strange things, but their own things (Holy daies) were great matters: Surely if it were such a great matter to keep the Festival of Christ's Nativity we should have some hint of it from the beginning of Matthew to the end of the Revelations, but when God gives not the least hint of any such time. And mark it, those people that stand most upon such Festivals, they stand least upon God's Sabbaths; and indeed you shall have many people which think it a strange thing for men not to have regard to such Festivals, Why may not we keep the birth of our Savior? Now that you might not think it a strange thing do but consider of this, that when God hath God not to be imitated in his worship.

The Sabbath is for commemoration of all the particulars of our redemption.

hath set apart any thing for a holy use it is no strange thing, but it should be strange in man to venture to imitate God in the things of his Worship, to do that in God's worship which God himself hath done before; thus God hath set apart a holy time, viz. the Sabbath; it is set apart for to solemnize all the work of Redemption, both the Nativity of Christ, and his Life, and Death, and Resurrection, and Ascension, and the coming of the Holy Ghost, all the things about man's Redemption, (I say) God hath set the Sabbath apart to that end that we might have a Holy day to keep the remembrance of them. Now when God hath set one day apart, for man to dare to venture to set another apart, this is presumption. So because Christ hath set outward Elements and Sacraments to be a remembrance for his body and blood; for man to say, Christ hath set apart, a piece of Bread and Wine, why may not I set some other thing apart? This you would all say were a great presumption. Certainly the presumption is the same in the former.

Obj. 2.

Again it is observable in this expression, [They counted it as a strange thing.] It is a dangerous thing for men to have their hearts estranged from Gods Law, and from the other Spiritual Truths that are in Gods Word, from the knowledg of that Law which we have been educated in, and that heretofore we have made profession of; for thus it was with this people, they had been educated in Gods Law, and made profession of it, and whatsoever God should reveal, they would obey; but now their hearts were estranged from what they were educated in and made profession of. Oh! let men take heed of this for ever.

Ul. of Admonition.

You that have had good education, you have been brought up in the knowledg of Gods Law, you have had gracious principles of Gods Law dropt into you in your youth, you have made fair profession of Gods Law, of obedience to it, take heed now of being estranged from those truths truths that heretofore have been familiar to you, that you have made profession of, and therefore take heed of the several degrees of the estrangement of the heart from the Law of God. I will but only name them, to shew how the hearts of men do grow strangers from God's Law.

First, it fares with his heart, as it doth with a man that grows to be a stranger from his friends. A man that hath a familiar friend he doth not estrange himself suddenly, but by degrees, it may be visit one another less than they were wont to do, and yet there is no contention between them, but by degrees they grow to be strange, and then at length they grow to be very enemies. And thus it is with men's hearts, when men grow strange from the Word, that he was acquainted withal before, first he begins to call things in question whether things be so or no, and especially those things which most concern the mortifying of sin, and the strictness of holiness.

Secondly, He begins upon this, (or rather I think that's the first) he begins to abate his delight in the truths of God, he was wont to take abundance of delight to meditate in the Word. Oh how sweet it was when he awakened in the night season, he was wont to take a great deal of delight about conferring in God's Word, and when he came into any company; but now it is abated, that's the first: Secondly, he calls those things into question that he was very confident in before whether they be so or no.

Thirdly, He begins to have some hard thoughts of God's Word: Many men that heretofore did prize the Word, and those Truths that were the joy of their hearts, yet now they begin to have hard thoughts of them.

Yea fourthly, He begins to wish that those things which are in the Word were otherwise than they are, he cannot see enough to perswade him that the things are true, but his heart coming to be estranged from the Word he doth desire they were not true; as a man that comes to be estranged from another, he could wish he were further off from him.

Fiftly,
Fifthly, He begins to listen to those things which are against the Word; there was a time that he would never regard any things that were said against the strictest way of holiness; but now he can be ready to listen to Objections: As a man when he was intimate with his friend, he could not endure to hear any thing that was said against him, but now being estranged from him, he can drink in any thing which is said against him.

Sixthly, When the heart is estranged from the Word it will put off thoughts; and through examination of truths, it will not search into things as it was wont to do, but is willing to put off and shut his eyes, and will rather search into any thing that may make against the Truth than that which will work for it. (I beseech you observe these workings of your hearts.)

Seventhly, There will be an engagement in some practice not allowed by the Word. Then a man grows further estranged from his Friend, when he doth not only refrain coming into his company, but he will engage himself into some others that are against him.

Eighthly, It comes to have a slight esteem of what before they thought had great weight in it; there was a time when such & such things were thought to have very great weight in them, but now they are nothing, they are of another Judgment: Just as when a man is estranged from his friend; he thought before he had a great deal of excellency in him, but now he esteems him not; and this is the argument of the estrangement of his heart from him.

Lastly, If men take not heed when they are by these degrees grown to be estranged from the Truth, they will at length violently reject the Truths of the Word, they will grow to be open enemies to the Truth: Men that have bin familiar with Gods Word, and Truth, and made profession of them, and seem’d to love them most, by several degrees they have grown to be strangers from them, and at length to be enemies to them. Apostates have proved to be the
the most desperate enemies to the truths of God of any in the world; take heed therefore of the strangeness of your hearts from the Truths of God lest you afterwards prove to be an enemy to God; it's an evil thing to account the Law of God a strange thing, but much more to account it an enemy to us, and our hearts to be an enemy to it. Isa. 5.
24. Therefore as the fire devoureth the stubble, and the flame consumeth the chaff, so their root shall be rottenness, and their blossom shall go up as dust: why? because they have cast away the Law of the Lord of Hosts, and despised the Word of the holy One of Israel. Oh! let us for ever take heed of this, and therefore let our prayer be that of the Prophet David in Psal. 119.18, 19. Open thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of thy Law. And then it follows, I am a stranger in the earth, hide not thy Commandements from me, Lord I account my self a stranger here in the world, Oh! let not thy Word be a stranger to me. I beseech you observe this;
Those men and women that account themselves strangers in the world, will never account the Law of God a strange thing to them; but such men as account themselves to be the inhabitants of the world, they will have Gods Law to be a stranger to them. Observe it, and you shall find this to be a Note: When your hearts begin to close with the things of the world you do not meditate in Gods Word so much as you did before, nor delight to read it;
but now, if you can keep your heart from the things of the world, to use them as if you used them not, then this will be your prayer, Lord, hide not thy Commandements from me; Oh thy Word is sweet unto me as honey and the honey comb.

One Note more about this; They accounted this as a strange thing; Men they have a strange way now a daies to estrange the Law from them and themselves from the Law; That which their corrupt hearts will not close withal, as for a rule of holines, that they will put upon Christ as if Christ had delivered them from it. This is a strange way indeed of eftranging themselves from God's Law, many men will estrange themselves from the Law of God by too much familiarity in the world, but for people to have this way by their familiarity with Jesus Christ, because they come now to know Christ more therefore they should be greater strangers from the Law than they were before, this is a strange way of estranging men's hearts from God's Law;

The Spirit of God foreseeing such a generation which would be in the times of the Gospel, that would boldly assert, that whosoever the people of God were bound to under the old Testament, yet in the new Testament they have nothing to do with the Law of Moses, (it is very observa-

Unto you that fear my Name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings; to you that fear my Name shall Christ arise, (what then?) then you shall have nothing to with the Law when Christ arises. Mark then in the 4th vers. Remember ye the Law of Moses; almost the last words in the old Testament, and the Conclusion; as if the holy Ghost should say, now I have done revealing all my mind about the old Testament, and you must never expect any more Prophets nor any further Revelations of my mind till the time of the new Testament, but instead of the Prophets you shall have the Sun of righteousness arise.

Ver. 13

They sacrifice flesh for the sacrifice of mine offering.

The Jews might object: Why, how do we account the Law of God a strange thing? do not we continue in sacrificing, do not we offer our sacrifices to God? why do you say, we account the Law a strange thing? From the connexion therefore this Note may be observed.

That men may continue in outward profession and performances of duties of Religion, and yet the great things of God's Law may be a strange thing to them. They do offer sacrifices still, and yet they accounted God's Law as a strange thing to them. Do not think that sufficient, that you continue in outward profession of Religion; Nay, shall I say more? I make no question but a man may continue in outward duties, and yet Apostatize from God so far as to commit the sin against the holy Ghost, and that's evident from the example of the Scribes and Pharisees, that Christ charges for commission of the sin against the holy Ghost, and yet they did not forswear the Jews Religion, they continued in a great deal of outward strictness in Religion, and yet had committed that unpardonable sin; therefore you may Apostatize far from God, though you do not forswear the publick Ordinances of God.

God calls all their sacrifices flesh: that is, in contempt; as if he should say, you sacrifice, indeed I have a little flesh from you. But do you think that is the thing that I intend in my offering? I expect Faith and Obedience; I expect the Work of Faith relying upon him that is Typified by all the sacrifices that you offer; but you wanting that inward spiritual worship in your souls, I account all your sacrifices but flesh.
Most people offer nothing up unto God in all their sacrifices, but flesh; their offerings are flesh; That's thus: even in your prayers, in your hearing, in your receiving, you offer sacrifice, but all is but flesh, God hath the outward man, and it may be you have fleshly ends in what you do, and fleshly carnal hearts, you offer the flesh; many a man that hath excellent gifts in Prayer, and seems to offer up an excellent sacrifice to God, but it's nothing but flesh, there's little of the Spirit of God, (of the sanctifying Spirit nothing it may be) a man that perhaps may preach excellently, yet in fleshly wisdom, nothing but fleshly excellency; Oh my Brethren! what are our sacrifices, if they be nothing but fleshly excellencies? you know what the Scripture faith, All flesh is grass, and as the flower of the field, but the Word of God abides for ever; all a man's parts, all things are but flesh that are not spiritual & the sanctifying Work of the Spirit of God by the Word, but the Word of God abides; that is, the impression of the Word of God upon the soul by the sanctifying Work of God's Spirit abides for ever, but all flesh is grass. You have got a great deal of fleshly excellency in parts, so as others admire your gifts; But this flesh is as grass, it will come to nothing, and all your esteem will come to nothing. Oh let us take heed (my Brethren) that our sacrifices be not flesh, for though they may glitter a while in the world, within a few years all will be as grass and will come to nothing.

But further: They sacrifice flesh for the sacrifice of mine offering:

Why God commanded them to sacrifice flesh, [For the sacrifice of mine offering] here seems to be an accusation, not that they sacrificed, but that they sacrificed nothing but the outward part, flesh; do not think that that's the main meaning, but this rather: In the burnt offering all the whole sacrifice was tendered up to God; but now there was was another offering that was the peace offering, and there that which was offered, some part of it did belong to the offerer, so as they should eat part of the offering, when they came to offer that they came with their friends, because they were to have some of it; now faith God, They sacrifice flesh for the sacrifice of mine offering: that is: They change mine Ordinance, when as that I look’d for burnt offerings from from them (the whol offering) they will rather offer peace offerings wherein they shall have part of the flesh for themselves, and that they can take content in. Thus I find Interpreters carry it, and I verily think it to be the meaning of the holy Ghost.

So that from hence the Note is: That if there be anything in Gods Worship, wherein any self respects may come in, there we are content to be forward; but yet in that we rather aim at serving ourselves then serving the Lord, and this usually doth eat out all true devotion. When there is a duty to be done, and part of that duty God requires and we shew respect to God in it, and there’s another part wherein we enjoy our selves; now such kind of duties as these are, men can be content well enough withal: but the truth is, that part which concerns themselves doth eat out all the true devotion unto God, although the Worship of God be pretended, yet self-respects they are that the heart is most upon: as for instance: In keeping of Festivals, they lik’d them well enough, and we do not read so much charge for the keeping of them because there was something agreeable to the flesh: but now for the day of their Falls faith God, whosoever affliets not his soul, that soul shall be cut off: they had not so much mind to that, in the tenth day of the seventh month, therefore God threatens, that whosoever did not affliet his soul that day, it should be cut off; and so you shall find it. That’s the reason indeed why men are so much set up on their Festivals, they pretend Gods Worship, and honor to their blessed Savior and the like, but the truth is, it’s the Belly that is the thing, and their Sports, and the license.

Chap. 8.

Why
Christmas is so zealously kept.

cence to the flesh that they aim at; I warrant you let the time (as now it falls out) be the time of a Fast, it will not be so much regarded, and for any man to keep a Featival when God by his providence calls to fast, certainly that man regards his own belly rather than God. And that by which all these Festivals are upheld it is, because that together with a seeming kind of Religion the belly gets so much; but now, such duties where God is served, and Nature denied, they are great testimonies that the Spirit of God is in our hearts in the performance of them; when we can offer up our burnt offerings wholly to God, and ourselves denied, they are testimonies that the Spirit of God is in us, as I give you an instance in the Story of the first of Kings the 13. you read of the Lyon that did slay the Prophet that went contrary to Gods Commandement, now it was a special end of God that sent the Lyon to slay him, and that God would give a testimony that the Lyon did not come of a chance to fall upon the Prophet and kill him, Therefore the text observes that the Lyon fled by the carcas and did not meddle with it after it was once slain; it was the nature of the Lyon to have fed upon the carcas, but here was an argument that it was meerly from God what the Lyon did. So, when any man shall perform a duty meerly for God, and in that duty shall deny himself, shall be content to part with honors or preferment, that's a sign God is in it: and so in this publick service, Oh! who would not venture himself for the publick Cause? I but there is a publick Pay too as well as the publick Cause? but now if a man can venture to the uttermost though he hath not that which he expects, yet he is content to venture himself as much as he did before, God is in this man certainly, when he can do a work, and deny himself in that work: And truly we should be willing so to do; Why? because God doth not require of us self-denial that shall do us any hurt, God would never have us deny our selves in things that immediately concern
cern our communion with himself, and our eternal good, God expects self-denial but it is only in those things that concern this present life; now when God is so propitious to us in requiring duty, that he will let us sometimes enjoy our selves, and when he requires self-denial it is in things that are more inferior, we should not much stand upon in denying our selves in them. It follows.

But the Lord accepts them not.

As if he said: I would not have them, I was not pleased with them: Whatsoever our services be, If self be regarded, all is rejected, not only if sin be regarded, If I regard iniquity in my heart the Lord will not hear my prayer, but if self be regarded, our services may please our selves but not please God; and for this you have a famous Scripture in Amos, 5. 22. I will not regard the peace offerings of your fat beasts; and this text in Amos hath a special reference to this very thing, and Amos was contemporary with Hosea, and so met with the very same thing that here Hosea did, this text in Amos may help us to understand this in Hosea, I will not accept the offering of your fat beasts; but observe it, they are their peace offerings; he doth not say, I will not accept the burnt offerings of your fat beasts: but of your peace offerings, because in their peace offerings they eat part of it themselves, and faith God, let your offerings be never such fat beasts, yet I will not accept of them: so let your duties be never so zealous and abundant, yet if they be only in respect of your selves, God accepts them not. It follows.

Now will I remember their iniquities.

Why they did offer their sacrifices to the end that their sins might be done away, and had they exercised faith upon Christ the true sacrifice, their sin should have been done away, away, yet but they offering in regard of themselves, he faith: I will remember your sins for all this.

Obl. 5 From thence the Note is, That many men may perform great services, may exercise themselves much in holy duties, and yet have their sins as much upon the file before God as before they began all their services: And this is a sad thing for a man to kneel down and pray with woful guiltiness upon his spirit, and rise up with the same guiltiness that he kneel'd down withal, and perhaps he hath gone on and prayed, and received the Sacrament for these many yeers together, and every sin that was upon him when he first began is upon him now; whereas those that in holy duties exercise their faith upon Christ their Mediator, and with the act of faith tender up him to the father, whatsoever sins were upon them before, are now done away.

The second thing is observablo; viz. That God will remember them, and he will remember them now.

Hence note: That, however God may forbear to come upon wicked men for their sins for a time, yet God hath his time to remember them all; to remember, that is; by his Judgments to make it appear to them that he doth remember them, when they think that God hath forgotten them. 1 Sam. 15. 20. Thus saith the Lord of hosts, I remember that which Amaleck did to Israel, how he laid wait for him in the way when he came up from Egypt: I remember what he did; why this was four hundred yeers ago that he spoke of. We may commit a sin when we are young and feel nothing of it till we come to be old and then God may remember it against us; as many a man or woman takes a surfeit when they are young and they feel nothing when their bones are full of marrow and their veins with blood, they feel it not for the present, but when they come to be old, Oh! then it aches in their flesh and bones, and then they remember their licentiousness and carelessness in their youth: and so many young people they commit sin and conscience never troubles them for it, and they they think all is forgotten, Oh! but many yeers after the sin is committed God remembers it and makes them remember it too; Joseph's brethren had committed that sin against their brother, and it was 22 years before we reade of any remembring of that sin. Many things might be said to this point which I cannot now insist upon, only this thing take with you; Let all you that are young ones, yea and others too take heed what you do in sinning against God, for that which you do now may be remembred against you many yeers after, perhaps twenty, thirty, fourty yeers hence, God may come upon you for what you do at this present; me thinks this should be unto young men a mighty strong motive to take heed of wicked lives. Youth's sins may prove to be ages terror.

Oh! is it not a great deal better that God should remember the kindness of thy youth, than the sins of thy youth? Jer. 2. 2. Oh you that are young, begin to be godly betimes, that God may remember the kindness of your youth. And oh the blessed condition the Saints are in, in comparison of the wicked: You have so many expressions, that God will remember their sins no more, that he will bury them in the bottom of the Sea; there are at least a dozen expressions in Scripture, and I had some thoughts to speak of them all, but I see it will be too long to speak of them now, Of Gods casting away their sins (the sin of his People.)

But further:

Now will I remember them. That is, in the time of their Holy Duties. Now this is a sad thing, that God should not only remember a mans sin, but even then when he is about to offer sacrifices to God, as in Heb. 10. 3. it is said, that the sacrifices of the Law did bring sins into remembrance: that is, It was a note of their guiltiness every time they came to offer sacrifice, and their sacrifices did not do away their sins fully, Now I will remember them. Then when they offered sacrifices in a careless and ungodly way, surely these sacrifices would bring their sins into remembrance indeed.

Hence observe: T God
God remembers the sins of wicked men in the performance of Holy Duties in a special manner: and that upon these two grounds.

First, Because we come into God's presence. There we come before his eyes in a more especial manner; we are in God's eyes alwayes, but in Holy Duties the Scripture speak of it as a more especial drawing nigh to God. If a Malefactor that hath committed a fact a long time since, and he thinks it is forgotten, if he should presume to come into the Kings or Judges eye, this brings into remembrance what such a man is. So wicked men, when they come into God's eyes, are bold to draw nigh to God in an impudent way although their consciences tells them that they have not sought to do away their sins by faith and repentance, this puts God into remembrance (to speak of God after the manner of Men.)

Secondly, Because their Holy duties are aggravations of their sin, therefore God will remember them then rather than at any other time; as thus: for the Jews (in the text) here to come to sacrifice for their sins: certainly the language of which was this: Lord, I acknowledg I do deserve death my self for the sins which I have committed, and I can only have peace with thee through the sacrifice of thy Son that I believe is to come; now for them to come and say so and yet continue in their sin still, this is an impudence unto their sin; it was a sin of infirmity before, it is a sin of presumption now. So, when men shall presume to come before God in prayer, they have lived wickedly heretofore, and now they come before God to testifie their respect that they profess they owe to God, and yet their consciences tells them that they do wickedly depart from God in their lives; when they come in prayer certainly they come to confess and name their sins before God, and to tell God what sinners they are, and yet still their hearts do close with their sins; yea what an aggravation is this? yea they came to judge themselves.
themselves for their sins and yet still to continue in them. Oh my brethren if you did but think of the aggravation that such prayer causes of our sins it would make our hearts quake and tremble. But I speak only to those that are Hypocrites and live in their sins still, their Holy duties do but aggravate their sins, and therefore no marvel though then God remember their sins in a more special manner. We have cause to wonder that God doth not come upon some of us in his wrath while we are in the midst of our Holy duties, as Pilat came upon the Galileans and mingled their blood with their sacrifices, and so while we compare the lives of men with their prayers (I say) it is a marvel that God doth not mingle their blood with their sacrifice; Oh take heed any of you that are conscious to your selves, or your hearts closing with any known sin, take heed the next time you go into God's presence in prayer and confess your sins, and judge your selves, take heed that God doth not then remember your sins; Now will I remember them, even in the time of their holy duties; you think that's the time of our greatest pleasing of God, but it may prove to be the time of Gods remembering your iniquities against you.

And visit their sins.

God visits either in Mercies or Judgments, and in the godly visiting, it is to be understood concerning those things that seem'd before to be neglected, as in the 21. of Genesis, God visited Sarah when God seem'd to have neglected her: and so in Exod. 4. he visited the children of Israel, that is, when he seem'd wholly to have neglected them: and so, I will visit their sins, though they may think I have neglected them yet I will visit their sins. Whence observe,

God visits mens sins when they think they are most neglected by God; God hath his time to make diligent enquiry for all their fins, in Exod. 32. 34. In the day when I visit, I will visit their sins upon them, then all their sins shall come up together, and that's the reason that God is content to bear with wicked men and wink at their sins for the present, why? because God hath a day for to visit them, this sin which they commit now, they shall not hear of it till a great while hence, but I have a day to visit, and then this and the other sins shall come. Days of visitation herefore were wont to be called days of vexation, but the day of Gods visitation will be a day of vexation indeed to ungodly men. Micah 7. 4. The best of them is a brier, the most upright is sharper than a thorn, the day of the Watchmen and thy Visitation cometh, now shall be their perplexity. In Isa. 10. 3. And what will you do in the day of Visitation, and the Dissolation which shall come from far? To whom will you flee for help? and where will you leave your glory? So I may say to many guilconsciences, Oh thou poor wretched sinful creature, what wilt thou do in the day of Visitation? thou canst tell now, thou canst go home and be merry and do what thou list, but what wilt thou do in the day of visitation?

It follows: They shall return (or as some translate) they will return to Egypt.

And so it notes their sin for which God will visit them, and the course that they would take when God was about to visit them, They will return to Egypt. Whither will ye flee in the day of visitation? We will fly into Egypt say they, if the Assyrians power grow too great, we will go into Egypt for help, and this may seem to have reference to that story in the 2. of Kings, 17. 4. The King of Assyria found conspiracy in Hosea, for he had sent messengers to So King of Egypt.

The Note from hence is this; Carnal hearts when God is visiting them for their sins they have plots in their heads to shift this way and that way for themselves. Vain deluded soul! thy thoughts should be, how should I make up my peace with God? how should I seek the face of God? thou art thinking.
thinking of this and the other shift, whereas thou shouldest only be thinking of making up thy peace with God. And thus it is with kingdoms, when God is visiting kingdoms you shall have many that sit at the Stern, that all their thoughts are about carnal helps, whereas their great thoughts should be, how they might fall down before God, & seek to make peace with God & the Kingdom: thus it was here, I will visit them, and they think to return to Egypt. And if you take it as a Judgment, it is threatened that they should return to Egypt, in Deut. 28. at the latter end, there it is put in the close of all the former Judgments, That they should return to Egypt.

The Note is, That it is one of the most dreadful Judgments upon a Nation, after God hath delivered them from a bondage, to deliver them to the same bondage again: And as it was grievous to be delivered into the bondage of Egypt, so more to deliver us into a spiritual Egypt: If we should again come under the power of those that have persecuted us and those that have oppressed us, that they should have their full power over us again, oh our bondage would be seven fold more than it is: And yet what cause have we to have our hearts tremble and shake when we think of our abuse of the beginning of Deliverance that we had? but of all judgments let us pray to be delivered from that judgment, that we may never go back again to our prisons.

But just with God it is that those who inherit their progenitors sins, they should inherit their progenitors judgments. You continue in their sins, you shall have their Judgements also.

But were they ever carried into Egypt, was this threat ever fulfilled?

No, They were not carried captive into Egypt, but they fled into Egypt for Refuge, and there they lived and died miserably.

Hence observe, All places are places of misery when God forsakes a people, As all places are comfortable when God is with a people.
people. Many men take their course to seek to refuge themselves, to help themselves, and perhaps they have what they would have in part, but when they have had what they would have, even the having of what they desire proves to be the execution of the wrath of God upon them: you have a mind to go to Egypt, you shall return to Egypt faith God. It follows in the last verse.

VER. 14.
For Israel hath forgotten his Maker.

THey have forgotten their Maker, but Ile remember them faith God.

When men think least of God, then is God's time to come upon them for their sins, when they are in the greatest security of all: whereas if you would remember your sins God might forget them, or if you would remember God your sins should not be remembered, but you forgetting God, your sins are remembered. It is an abominable thing for us to forget God by whom we had our memory, by whom we are remembered, we should never have been thought of if God had not given us what we have, and therefore for us not to think of God it is a vile sin. Now God is forgotten when he is not honored, minded as our confidence, help, refuge, our only good, when he is not obeyed; if we do but remember sin, we cannot but honor him. How many forget what manifestations once they had of God? they are passed by from them, and other things take up their thoughts; Oh! what an appearing was there of God to many of your souls heretofore, and what conference between God and your souls? what lustre of God's Spirit upon you? and you thought you should never forget those things; but now other things are in your hearts, Oh! such men and women have cause to fear that they are under much wrath that they should forget their Maker. God challenges remembrance under this title: Remember thy Creator in
The days of thy youth. There's no creature but the rational creature that can reflect upon the cause of their being, the first cause, and therefore God would not lose the honor from this creature; Indeed the Ox knows his owner, and the Ass his Masters crib, the beasts can take notice of those that bring them good things; but to reflect upon the cause of their first being, (I say) that's proper to the rational creature, and therefore it is an honor that God expects from you, and will not lose it.

The word here Creator, their Maker, it is not now meant for Gods giving them their being, but Gods advancing and blessing of them so as to bring them to that happy condition that now they were in, They have forgotten their Maker, Oh they have forgotten that God that hath advanced them. So I find the words used in 1 Sam. 12.6. 12.6. The Lord that advanced Moses and Aaron; but the words in the Original are, the Lord that made Moses and Aaron: that is, when God call'd them to the publick work, God made them. Indeed for a man to be call'd to publick service is a great honor that God puts upon a man, God makes a man then; as many times we use that Phrase ourselves, if a man be raised to any preferment we say, such a man is made for ever. Oh that man which God casts his favor upon, and delights to use in publick service, that man is a made-man; But they have forgotten the Lord that made them.

That's the Note from hence. It's God's favor that makes a man. You have an excellent Scripture for this in Isa. 43.7. I have created him (faith God) for my glory, I have formed him yea I have made him. Here's these three words together. God doth not satisfy himself in this, I have given him his being, or all that he hath, but he makes use of of these three several words to signify how all our good comes from God; I do not know such an expression we have in Scripture, I have brought him out of nothing, then secondly I have formed him, I have put beauty and glory glory upon him, yea, and thirdly I have made him; I have raised him to the height of all; God hath created us all, but hath he formed us? We are to look at God's forming as well as at his creation, how God forms and fashions us unto his own will.

They have forgotten God their Maker.

That should have been the other Note, That the greater height of excellency God raises any man to, the more vile and wicked is the sin of forgetting God when they are advanced. Many men will remember God when they are low, but when God hath advanced them, then they forget him, and that's worse. But it follows.

And have built Temples.

How is God forgotten, and they build Temples to the honor of God? You accuse us of forgetting God our Maker; What People in the world doth remember God so as we do, when we are at such charges as we are at.

The word that is translated Temples, it signifies Palaces. The Church is indeed God's Palace: but note from hence, That when God is worshiped in any way but his own, then God is forgotten. Papists they set up Images, and they say it is to put them in mind of God; but the truth is, they forget God in it.

Again, When men's hearts depart most desperately and furthest off from God, they are many times very forward in superstitious worship. As we know it in the primitive times, the hearts of men did close most with the power of godliness, and were more sincere in their worship; but afterwards when they came to have peace, in, and after Constantine's time when they had Temples, then they forgot God most and grew superstitious. When the Christians worshiped God
God in Dens and Caves of the earth, they remembered God more than when they had glorious Temples built for them. Men that have departed from God and have guilty consciences, they must have something to satisfy their consciences. Of late our Kingdom, how desperately was it departing from God, and setting itself against all the power of godliness? But never more for building of Temples, that is, more for an outward pompous and glorious Worship; but they forsook the Temples of God and persecuted them, and the Saints of God that were the Temples of the holy Ghost, they were neglected.

-But what was their reason here (you will say) Why is it a sin to build Temples?

I answer: first, It was in them a sin of Hypocrisy.

Secondly, A sin of Superstition.

A sin of Hypocrisy in this, In that they would persecute those that would go to worship at the true Temple, and yet that they would bestow so much cost in building Temples of their own. And many of the Antients have many large invectives against all such as shall bestow a great deal of outward buildings, and yet let the poor Saints want.

2. It was Superstition in them, they would not go to Jerusalem, to the Temple that God had appointed, yet they would set up Temples of their own. There are many that hate the true Temple, and the true Church, that is, the Communion of Saints, yet magnifie the outward buildings, as if there were no other Church but only that. So the Jews, when God would have them build his own Temple there they were slack enough: in Hag. 2.2. & 4.9. verl. What a deal of stir had God by his Prophet to get them to build his Temple, but their own Temples they would build.

But wherein was the superstition for them to build Temples? Thus: It is superstition for any men to put holiness in any buildings of their own. There were Three things that Their sin in building Temples.

Hag.2. 2. and 4.9.

How superstition in them to build Temples.
that made the Temple at Jerusalem an holy Temple; and none of them can be attributed to any other place in the world.

First, It was set apart by God, so as it was a sin to make any other use of it but holy.

Secondly, It did sanctifie the very duties that were performed.

Thirdly, It was a type of Jesus Christ. There were these three things that were proper to the Temple at Jerusalem. And therefore you must learn for ever from hence, that there can be no argument drawn from the Temple at Jerusalem for the holiness of Temples now.

1. It is a superstition in any man to set apart a place so as it should be a sin to make use of it for any common thing.

2. Which is worse, and that is, For any man to set apart a place so as to think that the very place should sanctifie the duty, because the Temple of Jerusalem did so: Now for a man to think that his prayers are sanctified, because they are within such a building as this is, is superstition: hence a company of poor ignorant people they must go behind a piller and pray, as if they were accepted the more because of the place. It's true, when we come and joyn with the Church, then our prayers are accepted, because it is in a way of Ordinance. So Chrysostom cries out of this superstition; faith he, Jeremiah when he stuck in the mud could pray, and Job when he was upon the dunghil, and Jonah when he was in the belly of the Whale, and therefore why should we tie Gods hearing of of prayer to such and such places? Besides dedication, they had enchantments: Ab augsuribus in augurabantur, suis auguris sanitiorum reddabantur, hoc nifi fieret, Templae esse non poterant (testi Varrone) sed edes sacra dicebantur. Men have been very profuse in this, both Heathens and Christians, and yet I find in some stories that some of the Heathens were against it, they thought God too great to be worshiped in any any place, the principle itself (that God was great) was true, but that therefore he might not be worshiped in any place that had a cover over the head they thought it too much; so it was reported of Zeno the Philosopher, he thought that Temples must not be built. And the Persians that worshiped the Sun, they thought that the whole world was the Temple of the Sun, and would have no other Temple. And Xerxes, the wise men persuaded him to burn all the Temples of Greece, because they would shut up God within walls, so some of the Heathens had such thoughts of God, though ordinarily the Heathens were very abundant in building of Temples to their false gods: And Josephus reports of Herod that he would seem to honor God by building a glorious Temple, in the fifteenth Book of his Antiquity and the fourteenth Chapter, the Temple that was in Christ's time it was of Herod's building, faith Herod, this Temple wanteth sixty cubits in height of that which Solomon first built. And you know the Scripture tells, that those which saw his Temple did weep when they saw the second Temple which was built, and faith Herod because it was not so glorious as the Temple of Solomon was, therefore he would build it and make it as glorious as that was, and so he laid out a great sum of money upon it in building it with white Marble stones, twenty five cubits long, and eight cubits high, and about some twelve cubits broad, Thus superstitious he was. And so many have been in this way, many if they be set upon a way of their own they care not what charge they lay out, but as for those things that concern God they are slack enough.

And Judah hath multiplied fenced Cities.

Judah seeing God's judgments upon Israel, doth not make that use of the Judgments of God upon their brethren, so as to consider their own sins, and fall down before fore the Lord and be humbled in his sight, but when they saw that God's hand was against the ten Tribes, all their care was to fortify themselves; let us build strong Cities that we may be delivered from the miseries that are come upon our brethren; This is that which carnal hearts do, when God expects that they should be put upon humiliation and repentance, and look to it and consider whether they have not the same sins among them that were among their brethren, they regarded nothing but carnal means; It's lawful to build strong Cities, to fence our selves against enemies, yea but we had need lay the foundation of them in humiliation and reformation, and when they are built they may not be rested in, for faith God, I will send a fire and devour them; we must not bless our selves in any strong places as if that could deliver us from the wrath of God.

I have read of a City that fearing their enemies, they sent to a neighbor Prince to come and help them, and charged their Embassadors to tell him their strength they had. I but faith the Prince, have you got a cover to defend you from Heaven, and if not, I will not meddle with you, for you must have something to award God's wrath from you, because you are so wicked a People, and except you have something to deliver you from that I will not assist you. So though we have strong walls, yet we must look for a cover from Heaven, which is our peace with God through Jesus Christ.

Again, They have multiplied fenced Cities.] For outward safety men think they have never enough, to secure themselves from poverty and from their enemies, but to secure themselves from God's wrath they think they have enough. In spiritual things we are content with a little, but when it comes to our outward security we think we can never be too safe; and indeed this will be an argument what it is that your hearts are most upon, that that you endeavor to secure your selves most in, that's your chiefest good, that that you would make most sure of, and if any thing in the world world could make you more sure you endeavor to do it: a gracious heart will never say, May I not go to Heaven though I do no more? but can there any thing more be done? doth God require any thing more of his creature? God that knows all things knows my heart is ready to do all things that he hath reveal’d to me, and if there were any thing more to do, Oh that I knew it that I might fulfill even all righteousness.

But I'le send a fire.

Saith the text, They multiplied Cities, but I will send a fire. When we bless our selves most in our own thoughts we should consider, but what are Gods thoughts? we think we will do thus and thus, and I'le save my self this way or the other way; poor wretch! thou saiest thou wilt do thus and thus, yea but think, what if Gods thoughts be otherwise at the same time? thou art plotting to save thy self, but God is plotting to destroy thee: What if there prove to be a disjunction between Gods thoughts and my thoughts? Wicked men have plots and devices for themselves, but God comes with his disjunctions, I'le do thus and thus. And this we are to hope that God will deal graciously with us in regard our enemies they are full of plots, but God hath been pleased to come in with his disjunctions, Gods thoughts hath not been as their thoughts blessed be his Name.

But I'le send a fire, it may be that they think that their Forts are so strong that they cannot be beaten down, but I'le send a fire to burn them down.

But I rather think this fire is meant metaphorically, I'le send their enemies which shall be as a fire; and so enemies are call’d a fire many times in Scripture.

And I'le send a fire. By whatsoever means fire comes, Gods hand is to be look’d upon in all fires; If there hath been a fire in your streets or houses, you will enquire by wha.
what means it came: look up to God whatsoever the means was, it is God that sends the fire.

And it shall devour their Palaces.

Brave things they are subject to Gods devouring fire, Oh let us as when the Disciples look'd upon the fair buildings of the Temple and wept, faith Christ, There shall not be a stone left upon a stone; so when we look upon our brave Palaces, Oh let us consider how quickly the fire of Gods wrath may come and not leave a stone upon a stone. Let us look up to that place where Christ is gone to prepare mansions for us, and to that building that is eternal in the Heavens, made without hands. And thus through Gods mercy and assistance we have gone through this Eighth Chapter.
CHAP. IX.

VERS. 1.

Rejoice not, O Israel for joy as other people; for thou hast gone a whoring from thy God, then hast loved a reward upon every corn-flour.

ERE begins another Sermon of the Prophets. Gualtier thinks this to be the sixt Sermon that the Prophet Hosea preached to these ten Tribes, wherein he yet goes on in the way as he did before, convincing of sin, and threatening of wrath against Israel; and this Sermon was preached in a prosperous time, when Israel (the ten Tribes) seemed to be in their greatest ruff of pride & jolity. It refers according to Interpreters to one of these two times: Either to some special time when they prevailed against their Enemies, or to the time when they made their League with the Assyrians.

The time when they prevailed against their Enemies, and so it's thought to refer either to the time that we read of in 2 King. 13. 15. the time of Jehoash when he beat Ben-hadad three times, and recovered the Cities of Israel!

Or that time in 1 King. 14. 13. And Jehoash King of Israel, took Amaziah King of Judah, and came to Jerusalem, and brake down the wall of Jerusalem; and took all the Gold and Silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of the Lord, and in the treasures of the Kings house, and hostages, and returned to Samaria. This certainly was a time of great jolity and mirth among the ten Tribes, or in the time of Jeroboam 2 King. 14. 28. and so in the time of Pekah 2 of Chronicles, the 28. that was a time of great jolity and mirth to the ten Tribes because of their prevailing, the text faith, They slew in Judah an hundred and twenty thousand in one day, all valiant men: and the children of Israel carried away captive of their brethren two hundred thousand, women, sons, and daughters, and took also away much spoil from them, and brought the spoil to Samaria. Now in this time their hearts did swell much, for in ver. 10. the Prophet Obed came to them and faith, Bebold, because the Lord God of your fathers was wrath with Judah he hath delivered them into your hands, and ye have slain him in a rage that reached up unto Heaven. And now ye purpose to keep under the children of Judah and Jerusalem for bond-men and bond women unto you. But are there not with you, even with you sins against the Lord your God? It seems to be almost the same expression as we have here in the text, as if he should say, Now you purpose to keep the children of Judah and Jerusalem for bond-men and bond-women, and you insult and rejoice, and you think you have gotten the day and you have prevailed; but are there not sins among you? just as he faith here, Rejoyce not, O Israel, for you are gone a whoring from the Lord, as if he should have said, though God hath given you a victory and you think you have matter of much joy, yet rejoyce not O Israel as other people.

Expos.

As other people. Why?

First, Because the conquest you have gotten it is over your your Brethren, therefore rejoice not as other people, do not rejoice in your slaying your Brethren as other people (the Nations about you) would rejoice in the slaying of them.

That's a sad War when the Conquerer hath cause to be sad at the very Conquest. It were no great matter though if other people had gotten the victory they should triumph, why not? though you have gotten the day, yet these Wars are Wars that you should not triumph in, for by this means the Nation of the Jews is grown weaker and is in more danger to be made a prey to the common enemies, and therefore do not you rejoice as other people might rejoice in such a Conquest. And indeed such are our Wars and Victories at this day, we must not rejoice in our Conquests as other people, not to rejoice as if French or Spaniards came among us, or as if we were in a foreign Nation, for our Conquests weakens our own Nation, it is the destruction of our Brethren, and therefore in this we are not to rejoice as other people in their conquests.

Or secondly: according to others it doth refer to that time when Menahem made a League with the Assyrin, 2 King. 15. 9. (for there's no such way to understand the meaning of the Prophets than the reference to the time that they preached in, and that they aim at) we read that Menahem made a League (that was the King of the ten Tribes of Israel) made a League with the Assyrian that great King, that he might be with him to confirm the Kingdom in his hand.

Now people use when Leagues of pacification, and association are confirmed between them and others, to triumph and rejoice by outward expressions, to manifest their great content in them. Oh! now there is a peace made, now we shall grow stronger than ever we were, and be delivered from many troubles that were heretofore upon us. Israel blessed themselves in the Assyrian, in that they had got such a rich and mighty Prince to be on their side, that now they had made their peace with him, they thought thought they were safe enough, now they were secure, and contemn'd all threats, and derided all that the Prophets should say against them, now the Malignants they lift up their heads, and insult over them that would say, God's Judgments would follow them if they did not joyn with God's people in the true Worship of God, they sung away care, and none thought of any danger in regard of their sin, they could not endure to hear of any complaining of any thing that might disturb their jolity and conceived happiness, that they promised to themselves the continuance of. But now saith the Lord by the Prophet, Rejoyce not with joy as other people, be not too confident with whom you have made such a sure League, for they may prove to be your undoing, it may prove to be the instrument of the greatest wrath of God against you that ever you had, and indeed he was so, the Assyrians that they made their peace withal, and joyned in League with, and rejoiced much in he proved to be the greatest instrument of wrath that ever the people these ten Tribes had; you have made your peace with him, and now you rejoice; but you have not made your Peace with God faith the Prophet. What good can Passifications, can Leagues made with men, peace struck with them do, so long as still ye go a whoring from your God, and break your peace and covenant with him daily, Oh rejoice not therefore!

For observe, Though Leagues and peace made with such as have been enemies are matter of rejoicing, but they may likewise be such as we may have little cause to rejoice in; they have the names of peace and union a while, but suddenly they may change their names, and be call'd a massacre, and ruin, and destruction to a Nation, especially if the foundation of our peace be not laid in reformation; and still a people goes a whoring from their God, rejoice in no peace that you can make with any whatsoever so long as you go a whoring from the Lord:

That's the Note from thence, if it hath reference to the-time

time when people have been worn out with Wars, they are greedy of any kind of peace, they care not with whom they make it, Oh nothing but peace, let us have that, and if there be but a peace concluded once, upon never such unsafe terms, Oh! the Bells must ring, and Bonfires must be made. This seem'd to be the condition of the people at this time, but faith God, you are decieved, this peace you have made will prove your undoing, Rejoice not therefore as other people, for you have gone a whoring from your God.

But those Observations that we may take from either of these two times, from the time that they got conquests over their enemies, or secondly from the time of their peace, put them both together are such as these.

First, Carnal hearts rejoice and bless themselves in their outward present prosperity, in their Health, Strength, Friends, as if all were well with them, although they be under much guiltiness, though there be fearful breaches between God and their souls, and how things are between God and them they care not, so be it all may be well with them for outward things; this is the guize for carnal hearts, they are presently upon the merry pin, and rejoice and delight much if so be that thy may have but any prosperity, though but for a while, if there be no punishment of sin upon them the guilt and pollution of sin never troubles them. Saith Augustin in his twelfth Tract. upon John,
The joy of the world is nothing else but their wickedness unpunished;
if God do not punish them presently then they have a great deal of joy. And in Amos, 6. 4. there you have the dis-cription of the people of Israel more at large (for Amos prophesied in the same time that Hosea did) They lie upon beds of Ivory, and stretch themselves upon their couches, and eat the Lambs out of the flock, and the Calves out of the midst of the stall, that chant to the sound of the Viol, and invent to themselves instruments of musick like David, that drink Wine in bowls, and anoint themselves with the chief ointments; but they are not grieved grieved for the afflictions of Joseph. Well; have not you more reason, you afflicted and distressed Saints, to re-joyce in God without the world, than they have to rejoice in the world without God? shall not all the wrath of God that hangs over the heads of wicked men, and all the guilt there is upon them damp their joy when they have but meat, and drink, and cloath, and a little outward prospe-ritv, and shall the loss of a few creature comforts, such as many Reprobates have to the full, damp your joy, when you have an interest in all there is in God, in Christ, in the World, in Heaven, in Eternity? when all this is the matter of your joy, what an unreasonable thing is this?

A second Observation from the words;

Rejoyce not O Israel.] When men are jolly and merry, they should consider, Well, but would God have us to re-joyce? They were jolly and frolick, I but the Prophet comes in the Name of God and faith, Oh! but God is of another opinion. When therefore we find our selves jo-cund and merry, we should consider, but is God of the same mind that we are of? Many mens rejoycing is so disagreeing to Gods mind, as they dare not so much as consult with God or their own consciences to know what God and conscience will tell them concerning their rejoycing;
the more men can prevail with their own consciences to be silent, the more joy they have, yea some there are that have so much guiltinesse upon their spirits, as they can have no joy, but at such time when they can take advantage of their own consciences, they are fain to take a time when their consciences are asleep or else they can have no joy; Now cursed be that joy that cannot stand with a free working of a true enlightened conscience.

Thirdly, Men may be in an outward prosperous condition, and yet have little cause to joy in it; all outward prosperity may stand with the heavy wrath of God hanging over the sinners head, he may be upon the very brink of destruction and yet prosper outwardly, outward prosperity may.
Come in wrath, the curse of God, the poison of God's curse may be in the Wine as well as in the Water, wicked men that are poor have their Water poisoned, and wicked men that are rich and prosperous have their Wine poisoned, and what difference is there between drinking poisoned Water and poisoned Wine? the swelling of carnal hearts in their prosperity it is a sign that it is poisoned to them. Outward prosperity as it may come in wrath, so it may stand with wrath, and make way to wrath, by it the vessels of wrath may be fitted to destruction; God many times hath a further reach in suffering wicked men to prosper than they are aware of; as Ester, when she invited Haman to a banquet, he drew such a connexion that he was honored above all the Nobles in the land, and he goes away rejoicing and tells his friends of the great honor that was put upon him; but Ester had another design in it than Haman thought of, it was not to honor him but to destroy him. So many people whose estates God raises, they make other manner of connexions from Gods dealing with them than ever God intended, they think God hath blessed them, when the truth is God is working their ruin and destruction; As a painted face is no argument of a good complexion, so a prosperous estate is no argument of a good condition.

Rejoice not for joy.

Carnal hearts in their joy are set upon jollity, their spirits insult and they think of nothing that should moderate their joy, so the words import, Rejoice not for joy; if you will rejoice, let there not be meer joy, but some kind of mixture in it; there should be a mixture of reverence and fear in our rejoicing, we should rejoice with trembling here in this world.

Whatsoever blessings we have from God, yet (I say) we should rejoice with trembling here, remembering first our unworunworthiness of any good we have, there should be that put into our joy.

Secondly, Remember the afflictions of our brethren.

Thirdly, Remember the uncertain and the vanishing nature of all these things we rejoice in.

Put these three things always into the Cup of our Joy, else it will be too sweet, and will clog the stomach.

Mix the Cup of your Joy with these three Meditations.

First, Your Unworthiness of that Mercy.

Secondly, The Meditation of the Affliction of your Brethren, of yours that have done God more service than ever you have done, or are like to do.

Thirdly, That Meditation of the Uncertainty of all these things that your hearts are so taken withal.

These three Ingredients will make a good Mixture, that we shall not surfeit with our condition.

Do not rejoice: that is, Let there not be pure Joy. But the strength of this expression lies in the other.

Expos. 1.

Rejoice not with joy as other people.

1. Be not taken with the world's jollity. First, Be not taken with the bravery and jollity of other people, to think them happy; Oh! It's a fine life to live as they do. The jollity of other people that are in a different way from us, is many times a great temptation to draw the heart to them, because we see they live merrily and bravely. But that doth not reach yet to the main scope of the Prophet.

Rejoice not with joy as other people.

2. Imitate them not in ways of rejoicing. Secondly, Therefore do not rejoice as they do in their Idolatrous Festivities. Dancing and many ways of jollity that they had in their Idolatrous feasts; we must not imitate Idolaters in their Triumphs. This was the sin of many in the primitive times, because they were come new out of Heathenism, they would turn the Heathenish feasts into Christian feasts, and Heathenish customs whereby they were wont before to honor their Idol gods, into the custom of of Christians, to honor Christ in the same way, and they thought this was very good, that whereas before they did honor Idol gods, now they thought if they did but turn this to honor Jesus Christ they thought this would be acceptable. No, this was a great sin, and brought a great deal of evil into the Christian world, and we do to this day suffer in that way; if do tender our respects to God, though it be in the same way that Idolaters do to their Idols, we think we do well: and indeed, here's the original of keeping this time, both of your Christmas and New-years-day, it is but the changing of them from the keeping of the Heathenish time, to the honor of Christ, and of the Saints. I remember this time two years, through meer providence that Scripture came in our way, I will take away their solemn feasts. And there I shewed how these came instead of the Heathenish times. Now faith the holy Ghost here, Rejouyce not as other people do, do not you imitate them, they have their Idolatrous Feasts, but do not you as they do. We must not take liberty to imitate Heathens and Idolaters in their worship, though we think to tender our respects to God thereby.

Rejouyce not as other people.

Not as A people, for the word other is not in the Hebrew: Do not you rejouyce as if you were to continue a people still, for you are to be carried captive and not to continue as a people, do not you therefore rejouyce as if you were in a setted condition; you have brought your selves into such a condition as you are not to look upon your selves as a people, Do not Rejouyce, no not as a people. It's a miserable spectacle to see those who are ready to be destroyed to be jolly and merry as if there were no such matter. It is said of the Dolphin, that it sports most when a storm comes: So, when the storm of Gods wrath is arising upon a people then they are most jolly and merry.

Again. Rejouyce not in that manner as others do: others rejouyce & scorn at the threats of God: So Ephraim had mixt himself himself amongst the Nations, and so did scorn at what was said by the Prophet. Do not rejoice prophane-ly, do not rejoice slightly, vainely, do not rejoice presumptuously, promising to your selves continuance in your prosperity.

But that which I think is especially aim'd at, is this:
Rejoice not as other people, for you have not such cause to rejoice as other people. Why? Israel ! Though you be Israel, yet there is not so much cause for you to rejoice as other Nations have. Israel (the ten Tribes) prides themselves in their Privileidges above other people, they despised all people in comparison of themselves. But now God tells them, that their sins had brought them into a worse condition than other people were in, and they must not rejoice so much as they. And from thence this profitable Note may be raised.

Obser, Many who look upon others as mean and low, with scorn and contempt in comparison of themselves, yet even these may be in a worse estate than those are whom they look upon so much beneath them. For instance: It may be you may be a man of parts and of esteem, and a man employed in high employments for Church and Common-wealth: Another is in a mean low condition, is of little use, a weak-parted man, and yet that guilt may be upon you, that you have not such causetorejoiceasthispoormanhathwhichyouso contemm as one laid by and not worth any thing: It may be you have excellent gifts in Prayer, and are an eminent pro-feffor; another man or woman is no body in your eyes, they are no professors at all; I, but if all were known, you have not cause to rejoice as they have that you contenm.

Secondly. Rejoice not as other people.

Obser, Although we enjoy the same blessings that others do, yet we have not alwaies the same cause to rejoice as others have, though we enjoy the same blessings: I say, it may be others have more cause to rejoice in a little than we have to rejoice in abundance: Do not say in your hearts, Others are merry and chearful,
cheerful, Why should not I be so too? I have as good an estate as such a one hath, & as fair a dwelling as he hath, & as comely children as he hath, why should not I be merry? But it may be there's not that breach between God & such a one as between God & thee, it may be there is not so much guilt upon the spirits of such men as upon thy spirit, therefore thou must not rejoice as they do; though thou hast the same outward blessings that such and such have, yet it doth not follow that thou shouldst rejoice as such do; you have cause rather to have your thoughts work thus, such and such men are cheerful indeed, yea they may, for they have not provoked God as I have done, I am conscious of those sins that I believe they are free from: A man that hath a fore-disease about him in his body, when he sees others that are merry he thinks with himself, yea indeed you may be merry, but if you felt that that I do you would have little cause to be merry.

The third Note is this: Rejoice not as others.

When men have brought misery upon themselves, this is one great argument of their misery. That they shall see others rejoicing, but all matter of joy shall be taken from themselves. It's not for them to rejoice as others do, that which is the cause of the rejoicing to others you have had and abused it, you have abused those mercies of God, and now you must not rejoice as other people do: That place is very notable for this in Luke, 13. 28. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth: When ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the Prophets in the Kingdom of God, and you your selves thrust out. This is the aggravation of our misery to see others in happiness and in a rejoicing condition, and you your selves cast out, you must not rejoice as others do. As if a man were cast into a dungeon neer the street, and there should be a day of triumph, and feastivitie and jollitie, there should be much rejoicing, musick, and bravery without in the Citie, and he lying in a dark dungeon and hears the jollitie of the Citie: this would be a great aggrgravation to his misery, yes, would he think, such that have their liberty may rejoice, but I must not rejoice as they do; and this will be the aggravation of the misery of the damned hereafter, when they shall see Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and all the Prophets in the Kingdom of God, and themselves cast out; it may be the Father shall see his Child in the Kingdom of God, and himself in Hell being cast out; they shall rejoice eternally when I must be in everlasting torments.

The reason follows: Rejoice not at other people: for thou hast gone a whoring from thy God.

The ground of joy or sorrow is the terms that are between God and us; sin hath an evil in it to damp all, our joy, if we would have joy in any thing let us take heed of defiling it by sin; of all sins, the sin of forsaking God, forsaking or corrupting God's Worship, that's such an evil as is enough to take away the joy of a Nation, whatsoever a Nation hath; if it hath forsaken God in matter of worship it hath little cause of joy, though we should have peace and outward prosperity, yet if there be not making up of our peace for our going a whoring from God, let there be all the peace that can be made, yet we have little cause to rejoice in it; but a people retaining the true Worship of God, whatsoever it be in other respects, that people hath cause to rejoice. Yea and as a whole Nation, so any particular soul, particular men or women, Christians that live in a Nation if their consciences can tell them that they have not complied with the times and gone a whoring from God in ways of false worship as others have done, they have cause to rejoice whatsoever befals a Nation; whereas the others that have had complying spirits, though the Nation should prosper never so much, yet they have little cause to rejoice in that joy: let us therefore be solicitous about nothing so much as about the true Worship of God.
Yea but this people might say, Suppose we have some corruptions in the Worship of God, yet we do retain more than other Nations do. Nay faith God, you have gone a whoring; and so, you are more guilty than other Nations. From whence the Notes are:

First, That which we may think a little matter in corrupting God's Worship, God may call it a going a whoring from Him: it's true (migh they say) we may fail in some Circumstances, we go not up to Jerusalem to worship, but still we worship the true God, and we observe the Law of Moses. No (faith the Lord) You have gone a whoring from Me.

I but still, "Why may not we rejoice as other people, to be sure we are not worse Idolaters than they, therefore though we may not rejoice more than others, yet "why not as others? they make Idols to be their gods, "there is nothing so vile among us as among the Nations about us? From whence therefore the Observation is this, that God charges them more than others,

First, That a people may be free from the gross evils that there are in other people, and may have many good things that other people have not, and yet may be in a worse condition than other people.

You will say, How can this be?

Thus, There may be some sins that they have among them that may have greater aggravations than any sins that other people have, that may make their condition (all things considered) worse. We here in this Land have much rejoiced heretofore in this, that we have had the Doctrine of Religion so pure among us as no people more, and certainly except it hath been through some few that of late daies have fought to corrupt it, certainly that must be said, that the Doctrine hath been kept very pure, as the main things of Religion, and in some things we have gone beyond other reformed Churches, as in the point of the Sabbath a great deal beyond them; and so there hath been here in England for Family Duties, never had God more honor honor from any people in the world than he hath had from us in many respects; but yet for all this it seems by Gods dealings with us at this day, that God is more provoked with us than with other people, and the truth is, take these one or two things and I think that no people upon the face of the earth can parallel our guilt, not only no people that are now, but never any people since the world began, as that bitterness of Spirit in the hatred of the power of godliness and the opposing of it, and persecuting of it, never was any people so guilty as we have been; in other reformed Churches men may be as forward and zealous as they will and they are not persecuted as they are here, & though they kept the Sabbath more loosly, yet they never persecuted men that kept it strictly, & there was never heard that stopping of the mouth of the faithful Ministry so generally as here in England, if there were but any stirring Ministry in any place, presently fly upon them; and so it may well be said to us at this day, Rejoyce not as other people. God hath spit in our faces, to tell us that our condition is worse than the condition of other people.

Object.

Yea but still, If we be Idolaters (would the ten Tribes say) they are so too.

Answ.

Here was one particular aggravation upon Israel that was not among other people, and that was this, There was no other people would forsake their gods as Israel had forsaken theirs, Jer. 2. 10. there was never such a thing as for a Land to change their god, (the worst people, for Kedar was the worst sort of people, they were a vile people, and yet) go to Kedar and see and search diligently whether any Nation hath ever forsaken their Gods, But you have forsaken Me. And from thence there may be this Note:

Obj. 3. That to be constant to ill principles is not so great an evil, as to be false against good principles. (If ay) God accounts it not to be so great an evil for men to be constant to their principles though they be evil principles as for men to forfake good good principles; as now if a man hath been brought up all his days in superstition and thinks verily this is the right, certainly this man is not so guilty before God as another that hath been educated in the true worship of God, and hath made profession of the contrary and yet afterward doth apostatize, and backslide: God had rather that men should keep to their principles though they be evil, than entertain good principles and forfake them: There are none so vile in God's eyes as Apostates, there is not so much forsideness and baseness of spirit in those men that will keep constant to their principles though they be evil as in such as will betray their principles that are good.

And then the Principal Observation is this; That the sins of God's People are the greatest sins of all: the sins of the Saints are the greatest sins of all, and they are to mourn more than any. In Amos, 3. 2. You only have I known of: all the families of the earth, therefore will I visit you for your iniquities; your sins are greater. And that in Rom. 2. 9. Tribulation and anguish upon every soul of man that doth evil, of the Jews first, and also the Gentile. And we have these two excellent texts in Jer. 18. 13. Ask ye now among the Heathen, who hath heard such things? the Virgin of Israel hath done a very horrible thing; that's the aggravation that it is the Virgin of Israel that hath done such a horrible thing. But especially that text in Jer. 32. 30. For the children of Israel, and the children of Judah have only done evil from their youth. Now Hierom hath such a Note upon this. What, the children of Israel (faith he) and Judah only done evil from their youth? What, hath none done evil but they? he gives this answer. He that hath the knowledge of God and goes from it, he alone sins in the eyes of God; as for unbelievers they sin too but it is as if God law it not, and as if God minded it not, as he faith in the Acts, that he winks at the daies of their ignorance, but they only sin that have had the knowledge of God. We read of the Philistims that they ventured to carry.
carry the Ark upon Carts; God did not manifest himself provoked against them that carried the Ark so, but when the Levites would presume to carry it upon carts, the Lord makes a breach upon them and strikes Uzziah with death; he did bear with it in the Philistines, which was a little before, and it may be they presumed and thought the Philistines carried the Ark upon a cart, why may not we? That which God will bear from others he will not bear from his own, their sins are against Covenant, and that's a special thing, there hath not been that solemn Covenant between me and other people as between you and me: This is a mighty aggravation against the sins of God's people, more than against any people in the world, that they are against Covenant.

Oh! remember this, you that do often covenant with God, when you are in Prayer, Oh! how do you renew your Covenant with God? What promises do you make with God in Prayer, and yet you grow again loose, and false, and vile afterwards? Oh! you must not rejoice as other people; you look upon a Drunkard that reels in the streets, and hear a Swearer blaspheme the Name of God, yea, but that may not be so great an evil as the vanity of thy spirit, And why? The looseness of thy heart, and those secret sins thou art guilty of, because thou hast so covenanted and bound thy self to God: the Drunkard was never made sensible of his sin and wrath of God upon his conscience; but the wrath of God hath been upon thy conscience, and thou hast engaged thy self to God, if he would shew mercy, Oh! thou wouldst walk holily and strictly before him: Now dost thou think that thy sins are as the sins of other people? They never had such Soul-quickning Ordinances, but go up and down to Taverns and Alehouses, and never know what a powerful Sermon meant upon their hearts, and had they such means as thou hast, then it's like it would be with them far better than now; and the Name of God is not so much polluted by them as by thee; thee; thou that art a Professor of Religion the eyes of all men are upon thee, and in thy sin thou dost not only disobey God, but thou dost pollute the Name of God, thou art a humbling-block unto others, and the cause of the hardning of many hundreds in their sins; and therefore thy sin certainly is worse than others. This would be a great Point to shew how the sins of the Professors of Religion are worse than others, and therefore it is not enough for you to say, We are all sinners: No, we must not excuse ourselves in this, that others are guilty as well as we, Oh! but consider what aggravations there is of thy sin more than there is of the sins of others; It is a sign of a very carnal heart to think to go away thus, it's true, I sin, and others sin as well as I do; yea, but a true penitent heart will not only consider that he is a sinner, but what aggravations are there upon his sin more than upon the sins of others? and so will lay it upon their hearts, It's true, such and such sin, but had they what I have had, it would not be so with them; my sin that hath broken through so many terrors of conscience, and that God hath fought by such means to keep me from my sin, it is a sign of the violence of my spirit indeed that hath broken through so much as I have done: it is therefore an abominable thing to make our profession in holy Duties a Medium to make our sins less, Doest thou think that this is a means to make thee escape that wrath? Certainly this is a great aggravation of thy sins.

We have a generation of men among us, that because they are Beleevers, therefore they need no sorrow for their sin, they must have only joy. Now certainly thy being a Beleever may aggravate thy sin so much the more, and may make it so much the more vile, and may pierce thy heart so much the more; for if thou best a Beleever thou knowest what the pardon of thy sins cost; therefore, certainly God's mercies towards thee are the aggravation of thy sins: The truth is, suppose our sins were not so great as the sins of...
of some other people are, yet it is not alwaies an argument that we may rejoice as other people.

Why so? (you will say.)

Thus: Suppose our sins be but equal, or less than the sins of other people, yet it is more than we know whether God will pafs by our sins so much as by the sins of others, What if God out of his Prerogative damn thee for a little sin, and save others that have committed great sins? We have such examples in Scripture, as in the example of Saul, the thing that God cast away Saul for, in its felf it was not fo much as that which David had been guilty of,
he had been guilty of greater sins than that which God cast away Saul for, Saul might have laid, this is an offence, but is this like Murder and Adultry? What if it be not, God will pardon David, and cast away Saul. Oh! do not you think to rejoice as other people do; Why, may not God do with his mercie as he pleafes, it is his own; God may pardon one, and damn thee eternally: And therefore let no finner pleafe himself with what others do, for he is not to do as others do. Now it follows.

Thou haft loved a reward upon every corn-flour.

Explicat.

Israel saw the Nations have a great deal of plentie upon their Corn-flours, which they attributed to the serving of their Idol gods, therefore Israel thought to comply with them out of the love to the plentie they had, and since the time that she had complied with the Nations about her, she prospered more she thought, and this she loved, by this she was exceeding hardned in her waies of Idolatry, and bleft her felf in them. This is the scope. God made many Promifes for provision for Israel in his service, but they made accompt to get more in following the waies of the Gentiles, than in following Gods waies: Like Harlots, though they have liberal provision from their husbands,
yet they hoping to get more by others, they love braverie, and jolitie, and they see that other Hariots they live more merrilie, and go finer in cloaths, and can be whol nights in chambering and wantonness, and have good cheer, and they love this, and though they have allowance enough at home, yet they leave their husbands and follow whoremasters. Jut thus it was with Israel, though she might have God's care over her, and provision for her in the waies of his Worship, yet she beholding the Gentiles living more bravely she would follow after them: At first (as you heard) she hired Lovers herself, but now she loves a reward upon every Corn-flour, now she expects greater advantage; this indeed was the matter that put her on, the loving a reward upon every corn flour; she might have many pretences, Why she did not see but that she might do such and such things, and they were not directly contrary to God's Word, but whatsoever she did pretend in the altering the way of God's Worship, yet this was the great matter that prevailed with her heart, it was, The loving a reward upon every corn flour: And thus it is with very many that are superstitious, come and speak to them of their waies, they will have very many fair pretences, they think that they have this and that warrant out of the Scripture for it, but all the while there is a pad in the straw, there is their living, and trading, and estates, and friends, that they have an eye upon, and it is that which by affes their hearts and spirits. But divers things have been spoken to the same purpose of this, that we met withall before, only this one Note,

Idolaters do love their Corn and outward prosperity, because it is a reward of their service to their Idols: So the sweetness of our comfort should be in this, because they come from God as a reward of our faithfulness. Shall Idolaters when they look upon their plenty and attribute it to their Idol gods, shall it be so much the sweeter to them? let all our comforts be so much the sweeter to us when we look upon them as coming from God as a reward of our faithfulness. In Psal. 119. 56. (faith David) This I had, because I kept thy Statutes. You will say, Can we look upon any thing as a reward of our righteousness? Free Grace, and the Gospel reward may stand together, God may reward according to our works, though not for our works, and God is pleased to call it so for the encouragement of his people. It is very sweet to those that keep close with God when they prosper outwardly, that outward prosperity if it follow our keeping close with God is very sweet, as the Cypher when it doth follow the figure it doth add to the Number though it be nothing in itself.

But now we come to the second Verse.

Ver. 2.
The flour and the Wine-press shall not feed them, and the new Wine shall fail in her.

As when a Father sees his admonitions not regarded by a stubborn Child he doth withdraw his allowance from him; and sometimes you will deal so with your little children as they shall go to bed without their suppers, to shew your displeasure against them; so God deals here, you have had many admonitions, now I will withdraw your allowance.

The flour and the Wine-press He doth not say, the Field but the Flour, I will let them bring their Corn to the flour; and he doth not say, the Vine, but the Wine-press; the Notes are these.

Obs. 1. God often lets wicked men come neer the enjoyment of a mercy, and them cuts it off: as many times the Saints comes neer afflictions, and when they are at the very brink of afflictions then deliverance comes to them.

Obs. 2. Secondly, God doth use to strike wicked men in those things that their hearts are most set upon. They would have their flour and Wine-press to afford unto them plenty, in that thing.
thing God strikes them. Now observe it, whether in God's ways that are against you God doth not strike you especially in that which your hearts are most set upon, if he doth, know there's the finger of God, and God would have you take special notice of it.

The new Wine shall fail.

The words are in the Hebrew, It shall be unto them. The like word we have in Hab. 3. 17. The labor of the Olive shall fail: in the Hebrew shall lie, (that is) it shall not perform what it seems to promise to you;

We are ready to promise to our selves great matters from the creature, or rather think that the creature promises much to us, but we shall find all but a lye; let us learn to promise nothing to us but from the Word that will never lye. Whatsoever you promise to your selves (I say) let it be grounded upon the Word, but if you promise to your selves great matters from any creature, you will find a lye in the Conclusion. We often lye to God in not answering our good beginnings, and it's just with God that the creature should even lye to us, and not accomplish what they seem to promise to us.

Lastly, That which men think to get in a way of sin, they Obs. 4 shall fail in at last; The way of the wicked shall deceive them, they shall not find what they expected in the ways of sin. The Saints they shall find more than ever they expected from God, but the wicked shall find less than that which they expected from the Creature. But there is not much difficulty in this Verse; therefore we pass it over briefly.
Ver. 3.

They shall not dwell in the Lords Land.

Before God was to them as a father taking maintenance away from them, leaving them to suffer want; but here his anger encreases, & here he puts them out of his house: as a Father, first he withdraws allowance from his flour Son, and when that will not do, then he thrusts him out of his house: So doth God here, The wine-press & the flour shall not feed them. And not only so, saith God, but, They shall not dwell in the Lords Land. I will cast them out of my house, cast them out of my Land, I will not suffer Ephraim to dwell any longer there.

First, God would make them to know that it was his Land, and that they were but Tenants at will, and that they did enjoy the Land upon conditions of obedience, as appears in Lev. 18. 26. as if he had said, you are Tenants and hold the Land by this Tenure, we read in Lev.

Lev. 25. 23. of an Ordinance that God made there that no Land in Canaan should be sold for ever, but only to the yeer of Jubile, the richest man that was that bought never so much Land they could not buy it for ever, he could not have such a Tenure as runs amongst us, To have and to hold for ever. But you will say, what is the reason? it is given in the 23. vers. The Land shall not be sold for ever. Why? For the Land is mine: for ye are strangers and sojourners with me; I have brought you to the Land, and ye are but sojourners with me in my Land. God may dispose of all as he pleases: It's a good meditation for us to work upon our hearts thus, That we are Gods Stewards, the Lord is the great Land-Lord of all the world. When you go abroad into the fields, now you that are godly you may see more Land than is your own, but you cannot see more Land than is your Fathers.
The Lords Land.

It may be said of all the Land in the world, he that is thy Father is the great Land-Lord of the world; howsoever men respect their Land-Lords and are afraid to displease them, but how little respect is given to this great Land-Lord of the world! The earth is the Lords and the fulness thereof; well, but though all the world be the Lords Land, yet this Land was the Lords Land in a peculiar manner, the Land of Canaan it was the Lords Land more peculiarly in many respects:

First, It was a Land that God had espied out for his People. In Ezek. 20. 6. as a special place. God was overlooking all the world; where should I have a good Land (or Country) to set my People, and the text faith, God had espied it out.

Secondly, It was the Land of Promise, therefore the Lords Land, in Heb. 11. 9. By faith he sojourned in the Land of Promise as in a strange Country. No Land in Scripture is called the Land of Promise but only this.

Thirdly, The Lords Land, it was a Land given by Oath in Gen. 24. 7.

Fourthly, It was a Land which the Lord brought His People into by a strong hand and outstretched arm: Many Scriptures you have for that, as Ezek. 20. 6. &c:

Fifthly, It was a Land divided by Lot, and so the Lords Land, not only all the Land, but every piece in it, and the possession that any man had it was ordered by God himself, by Lot.

Sixthly, It was a Land wherein God dwelt himself, a Land that God call'd his own rest; Here will I rest for ever, Psal. 132. and God swore unto them that hardened their hearts in the wilderness; that they should not enter into his his Rest, that is, that they should not enter into the Land of Canaan. It was the Land wherein there was the Ordinances of God, and the Worship of God, and his Honor dwelt there, and so it had a peculiar blessing upon it above all the Land that was upon the face of the earth.

Seventhly, It was a Land over which God's eye was in a more special manner; there's a most excellent Scripture for that in Deut. 11:12. A Land which the Lord thy God careth for, the eyes of the Lord thy God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year even to the end thereof.

Yea further, This Land, it was a Typical Land of the Church, and a Typical Land of Heaven, for so the Apostle (speaking of that place in the Psalms, That he swore in his wrath, that they should not enter in his Rest. The Apostle in Heb. 3:7. seems to apply it unto the Rest of the Church of Heaven, and in 1 Chron. 16:15. Be ye mindful always of his Covenant, the word which be commanded to a thousand generations, even of the Covenant which he made with Abraham, and of his Oath unto Isaac, and hath confirmed the same to Jacob for a Law, and to Israel for an everlasting Covenant; saying, Unto thee will I give the land of Canaan, the lot of your inheritance. Mark; that he would give unto them the Land of Canaan: This must be remembered to a thousand generations, and it must be a Law to Israel afterwards. Certainly this notes that God aim'd at more by the Land of Canaan than merely to possess them of so much ground.

Further, Yet there are divers Titles that are given to this Land; it is called an Holy Land in Zach. 2:12. and it is called a good Land in Numb. 14:7. that which is translated in your books exceeding good, is, very very good: it's a pleasant Land in Ezek. 7:11. a garden of Eden in Joel, 2:3. a glorious Land in Dan. 11:16 & 41. verses. and the glory of all Lands, Ezek. 20:15. and a goodly heritage Jer. 3:19. Now (faith my text) They shall not abide in the Lords Land. Now from all these Titles we are not only to take notice of this:

That
That it should be a great Judgment of God to drive them out of such a good Land.

And observe, It is a great judgment of God, for God through the sins of a people, to drive them out of a good Land. Truly sometimes, I suppose when you travel abroad where there are fair prospects, you cannot but have such a meditation, Oh! how vile are the sins of this Land, that should provoke God to cast us out of such a good Land as this is? And most of the Titles, though not all, they may be given to our Land that was given to the Land of Canaan; and certainly if God should proceed in his wrath to cast us out, it would be a heavy judgment to consider of, They laid the pleasant Land desolate. Howsoever wicked men may cry out of God's servants that they are the cause of the trouble of the Land, yet certainly it is the wicked and ungodly that are false in the Worship of God, they are wicked men that lay the Land desolate. Also we might here observe that, To be cast out of those mercies that God by an extraordinary providence hath brought to us, is a fore and a grievous evil.

But now the main end that I name all these Epithites, it is this: To shew unto you, the Excellency of the State of the Church of God. The Rest of Canaan was a type of the Rest that God hath in his Church, and all those that are Members of the true Church of God they have a share in it, to rejoice in; to enjoy God in his Ordinances, it is to enjoy that which is typified by all this.

Thou who art a Believer, hast a good Land, the Garden of Eden, a glorious Land, and that Land which is the glory of all Lands, there are abundance of excellent privileges that do belong to the Church of God; and as it is a judgment to be cast out of such a Land as this was, so it sets out the great judgment to be cast out from the Church of God, or for God to deny to give unto us the blessing of his Church; you know what a great affliction it was to Moses to think that he should not come into that good Land, Oh! how how did he pray to God that he might come into Canaan? Certainly it is that which we should pray for, that we might live to come into Canaan that God is a bringing his People into: now let us not murmur as they did in the Wilderness, and their carcases did fall in it, but let us go on and be as Caleb and Joshua, of another spirit, and not fear our Adversaries, but go on in God's way, and the Lord will bring us into the good Land; it's true, we have deserved to be cut off in the wilderness, but certainly God hath a Canaan for his People, a Canaan yet to come for his People, the Lord hath great things to do for his Church, and there are many expressions upon which some think that God even will make use of this Canaan yet for to be the place of his chief Majesty and glory that shall appear in this world; but however that be, yet the Lord hath a Canaan for his people that we may confide in. It follows.

But they shall Return to Egypt, and they shall eat unclean things in Assyria.

For the returning to that we have had before. But besides that, they shall be brought to that poverty and misery to eat unclean polluted bread, whereas before they had abundance: Peter would eat nothing that was unclean till God warned him, but the Assyrians would bring them unclean meat and bid them eat, they would say, We cannot, this is against our Religion, and against our Consciences. Your Consciences! what do we care for them, eat it or starve, so they were forced to eat. Whence observe,

That it is a great misery to be brought under those men that will have no care, no regard of the consciences of men.

But that which is especially aimed at here, God would take away all notes of distinction between them and the Heathen, this was a means to keep them from mixing with the Heathen, but now faith God, All is gone, let them go (faith God) and eat unclean things, as for the Covenant with me it is wholly abolished, I will own them no more than the very impure Heathen, they would make Leagues with the Assyrians, wel, they shall partake with them and be filthy and unclean as he, and they defiled Gods Worship by mixing heathenish pollutions with it, now God gives them up to all Heathenish uncleanness, as they were like the Heathens in inward uncleanness, so let them be (faith God) in outward uncleanness. There is these two Notes.

First, Those that will make Leagues with wicked men, it is just with God that afterwards they should come and be in thrall’d in all the wickedness and abominations of those wicked men. They were indeed at a distance from them before, but when once the peace is made, they come now to be all one with them.

But the main is this, That, when men are inwardly unclean, God doth not care for their outward cleanliness. Thus many professors of Religion defiling their consciences, and becoming like the wicked in inward sins, at length God leaves them up to themselves that there should be no difference between them and the wicked in their outward abominations. Have you not known some examples in this kind?

Lastly, If it be such a judgment to eat unclean things with the Gentiles, even meat to satisfie their hunger, Certainly then it is a fearful evil for any of the Saints to partake with ungodly men in unclean wicked worship. There might be as much excuse for this as one could imagin, why Lord (they might say) shall we starve? True, they might no question eat that which was unclean rather than starve, but yet it was a great misery that they were in, that they could have nothing to eat but that which was unclean: but now the other is, not only an affliction, but sin, and indeed the moral of it is to shew the great evil that there is in joyning with any way of false worship; to joyn false worship it is a great great evil, and an argument that when God leaves us to this, he disclaims us. Cyprian dehorts Christians from communicating with wicked Ministers, from this place: Non sibi plebs in hoc blandiori, & cum pro Hostiam Prophetam commininur & dicat censura Divina, &c. I do not speak of not joyning in Worship, if there be unclean ones there, Ministers, or People. And I am persuaded if it be throughly weighed, there will no body be found to be of that mind; for it is impossible that any Church in the world but in time there will be some that are wicked which will be present: but this is not that that causes many to forbear, (not the presence of wicked men) but find the uncleanness of the Worship, some things that was done actually there, that their consciences told them to be sin.

Secondly, Because they could not do their duty as they should, but if they can have liberty to do their duty, and the Worship be not polluted, I think upon serious consideration, there can be no question made: although there should be some that are unclean admitted, yet if there be in the Church any order and government, that the unclean may be cast out, and libertie that everyone may discharge his duty, as to go and admonish, and take two or three and then tell the Church, and so to deliver his own soul, no doubt but they may communicate.

VER. 4.

They shall not offer Wine-offerings to the Lord; neither shall they be pleasing unto him.

The Prophet in the Name of God proceeds to further threatening of Israel; and this in the 4th verse is a very dreadful one: They shall not offer Wine offerings to the Lord; neither shall they be pleasing unto him.

In their offerings there was wont to be Wine and Oyl; to note cheerfulness in Gods service: thus in Numb. 15. 5. The fourth part of an Hyn of Wine for a drink offering shall show prepares, prepare, and for a meat offering thou shalt prepare two deals of flour mingled with the third part of an hin of oil. But now all joy shall be taken away, there shall be nothing but sadness and sinking of spirit under their misery, no Wine offering.

Hence note, That, those who abuse their joy to their lusts when they have it, it's just with God it should be taken from them, that they should have none to give to God though they would never fail.

Secondly, This makes an affliction to be bitter and grievous indeed, That all joy and comfort in God's service is gone; for that's the scope, They shall offer no Wine offerings, all their joy in the service of God shall be gone; they shall not only have sorrow in their outward afflictions that are upon them, but every time they come to think of any service of God their hearts shall be dejected, all their joy in the service of God shall be taken away: there was a time when some of you were wont to offer Wine offerings to the Lord, that is, to have much joy and comfort in the service of God, but is not all gone? where's your Wine offerings to the Lord? you can now perform duties, but your hearts are heavy and dull in the performance of them, there's no sweetness; there's no enlargement of spirit in holy duties, all the Worship of God is a burden now unto you. Now there is no burden of affliction so great a burden as when the duties of God's Worship comes to be a burden. The Saints, so long as they have a Wine offering for the Lord in holy duties, so long as their spirits in holy duties can be free and joyful, their afflictions are not very burdensome, they are well enough, this is more delightful to them than all the Wine in the world, for they can say of God's love, They love is better than Wine; so they can say of their love to God again, That our love unto him is more comfortable to us than any Wine in the world; Now though they be in afflictions, their estates are gone, that they have no Wine to drink themselves, yet they have a Wine offering to offer unto the Lord. It's no great matter though we have have not Wine as we were wont to have at our Tables, but when we go to worship God, we have a Wine offering for him at any time; and this makes glad the hearts of the Saints more than the hearts of all the men in the world can be glad when their Corn, and Wine, and Oyl increaseth.

They shall offer no Wine offerings; neither shall they be pleasing unto him; they shall not be sweet to him, whatsoever their offerings be. Now that they offer to the Lord, God will take no delight in them; they will be but sourer things unto the palate of God, the offerings of the Saints in God's way they do cheer the very heart of God; And hence is the reason of that phrase that we have, That Wine doth cheer the heart of God and man, it cheer'd God's heart to have offerings offered in a holy manner to him, the greatest joy that God hath in the world is in the offerings of the Saints, which should be the greatest encouragement to them; men by their Wine and good Cheer may make themselves merry, may make their friends merry, but by their holy offerings they do cheer the heart of God, they are as sweet-meats to God, all the Wine and delightful things in the world they are as sweet (I say) to God; as all the Wine and delightful things in the world are for men. Thou hast a cup of Wine for thy friend to cheer him, but hast thou a cup of Wine for God to cheer his heart? that is a gracious holy offering unto God: Surely that which is most sweet to the Soul of God should be most sweet to our souls: You would wonder to hear a man say that he takes as much delight, and he can recreate himself as much, in reading, in praying, in hearing Sermons, in holy conference as you can do in all your good cheer, in playing and drinking of Wine in bowls; you think that men are mad to say, that they have as much pleasure in those things, as playing at Cards, and merriment, and musick, and good cheer: you call upon them to play at Cards with you, or be merry, you say, to them, why should you be dumpish and and never be merry? they tell you again, That they can be as merry and as cheerful in hearing the Word, and praying, and reading, as you in all your playing, and all that that you account delightful. You say to them, That they have no recreation. They tell you, That those things that are your burdens, are their recreation; you think it strange. Why should you wonder? Surely that that sweetens and joyes the heart of God, that must needs be the rejoicing of the hearts of those that have the Spirit of God in them; you have joy and mirth in such and such things; these are sweet to you, yea, but do these things rejoice God, are they sweet to God?

But now, this is the threatening here, They shall not be sweet now to him: nothing that is tendered to God from them shall be pleasing to him; no faith God, now I will have other waies to glorifie my self in upon you, not by your offerings, I'le rather glorifie my self in your miseries, and they shall be sweet and delightful to me. If an Hypocrite hath never so great enlargements in duties, these would not be pleasing to God, Gods palate is more delicate than to call such fowre and falpless things, than those are that comes from them. Saith Tertullian, The Spirit of God is a most delicate thing, it hath a delicate palat, and such swill that hath such mixtures of filth as your services have, how can they be sweet to the delicate palat of the Spirit of God? you are Hypocrites, your lives are naught and filthy and unclean, therefore none of your offerings can be sweet, they are but swill unto that palat of mine.

Their sacrifices shall be unto them as the bread of mourners:

The Hebrew may be taken substantively, or adjectively, as thus: For the bread of mourning, or the bread of mourners; either of both two may be taken according to the original, Now by the bread of mourners is here meant unclean bread; for for so it is interpreted afterwards, It shall be unclean.

But why the bread of mourners unclean? This Text hath reference to what you read in Num. 19. 11. and 14. verses, you may read there, that the dead body of a man it did defile whatsoever touch’d it, yea, whatsoever came near it, and all those that were at Funerals that did mourn for the dead, that came to the place where the dead body was, to mourn with the friends for the dead, they became unclean by the dead body: And that’s observable, that the dead body of a beast did not make men so unclean (by legal uncleanness) as the dead body of a man did. The dead body of a beast made one unclean but only till the evening, in Num. 11. 31. but the dead body of a man made a man unclean seven daies. So you shall find in the former chap. of Numbers, that they must be seven daies before they could be cleans’d; and this was to note: That there were more remarkable expressions of the anger of God upon the sin of man in the dead body of a man, than in the dead body of a beast; one made unclean but till evening, and the other seven daies. But the reason why there was this uncleanness from the dead body, was:

First, To note the uncleanness that there is in sin, in dead works, that those that did meddle with them they were polluted, yea, the uncleanness that there is in coming near unto sinners; the coming but near to them, all that was in the tent was polluted.

Secondly, It was to shew, how little pleasing to God Funeral mournings are, for they were made unclean by them: they were made unclean by their Funeral mournings, for this bread of mourners is the bread that they eat in their Funerals. The Gentils did mourn for their dead in an inordinate manner, exceedingly; and God would have a difference between his peoples mourning for the dead, and their mourning, because that he would keep up his peoples faith, and the hope of resurrection from the dead, whereas had they had liberty to mourn so excessively as the Heathens then did, by this means the very faith and hope of resurrection from the dead might in time even almost have been extinguished, therefore God would have them take heed of that, and therefore he did so ordain in the Ceremonial Law, that all the mourners for the dead they should be unclean for so long a time. As for any that doth give liberty in their natural affections, and doth not hold the reins of them in their mourning for the dead, I would apply to them that Scripture, in Jer. 31. 15, 16. Thus saith the Lord, A voice was heard in Ramah, Lamentation, and bitter weeping, Rachel weeping for her Children, refused to be comforted for her children, because they were not. But now, Thus saith the Lord; Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears, thy work shall be rewarded, and thy children shall come back again. So it followed afterwards. Do not weep as others, let us not mourn as others that have no hope, remember that the mourners for the dead in the Law they were to be unclean for seven days.

Thirdly, it was to note this, That God would have cheerfulness in his service, and therefore the bread of mourners is accounted polluted. Levit. 10. 19. we read of Aaron when there was such an occasion of mourning as ever was (almost) for a man, for the death of his children that were so eminent in office, and were destroyed so with such a visible hand of God (fire from Heaven) when Moses was angry that the Priests had not eat of the sin offering. Thus saith Aaron, If I had eaten of the sin offering to day, should it have been accepted? It would have been but as the bread of mourners. I that have bin struck this day, and am in such a dreadful condition, Would God have regarded the sin offering? God required joy in his services in Deut. 12. 7. 18. verses, and hence that profession was required in Deut. 26. 13, 14. verses, Then thou shalt say before the Lord thy God, I have brought away the hallowed things out of mine house, and also have given them unto the Levite, and unto the Stranger, to the Fatherless, and to the Widdow, according to all the Commandements which thou hast commanded me, I have not transgressed thy Commandments, neither have I forgotten them. And then in the 14. ver. I have not eaten thereof in my mourning &c.

They were to protest this to God, That they had not eaten thereof in their mourning; this was to shew, that sacrifices offered with a sinking heart in sorrow, is not pleasing to God, God loves a cheerful giver. We must not pine away in our iniquities, fulleness and dumpishness even in sorrow for sin it sources our spirits and services, and makes them unacceptable to God; (I say) a fullen, dumpishness of spirit, though it be in sorrow for sin, it sources our spirits and makes our services unacceptable to God. There is a groaning and a fighting one to another, or rather, against one another: that is condemn'd in Scripture in Jam. 5. 9. the words in your books are thus, Grudge not one against another, but in the Original, Sigh not, or groan not one against another; you shall have many that in company with others have a pensive dumpish spirit, fighting and groaning, and making their society to be burdensom to others. Saith the holy Ghost, do not sigh and groan one unto another, there is a fullen dumpish sighing of spirit and dejection of soul that is as unpleasing to God as it is unto men, it pollutes the heart, and pollutes duty.

But (you will say) Is all mourning forbidden? that here the holy Ghost should say, Their offerings should be as the bread of Mourners. Christ saith, blessed are the Mourners, and the Sacrifice of God is a contrite heart.

It's true, an evangelical sorrow is accepted, but that hath sweetness in it, it is not bitter, that's not a dejected spirit, it's not a mourning that causes dejection or fulleness, or straigntness of spirit, but that mourning doth enlarge the heart and makes it active for God; hence in Ezra. 9. 5. although we reade before that Ezra was astonisht at the sin of the people, yet saith he, at the 5. verse, I arose from my heaviness at the evening sacrifice, when the time came that I should sacrifice unto God, my heaviness did not hinder under me in holy duties. But how many are there that sink down in their heaviness, and when God calls upon them for any duty, they cannot arise, they are so over-burdened with heavy spirits? There they sink down in a full way, and shall God accept of such a service as this is? You may please your selves in it and think it is humiliation, but there may be much pride in dejection; there is none so proud a spirit as the Devil is, and yet no spirit so dejected as the Devil is. Lead we know it melts soonest, but it con-fumes in the melting: and many times there may be such a spirit that may be ready to sorrow upon any occasion, and to melt, but it's such a melting as consumes the strength of it that it is unfit for any service that God calls for, now such services as you in such a mourning way tender up to God are not accepted of him. Remember this text, Their offering shall be as the bread of mourning.

Gualter hath a Note from this: God would not accept of the offering of Mourners, they were unclean, yet (faith
he) there are many that seek to get their greatest gain from Funeral mournings, and fall of enveighing against them that get gain that way; as their Priests and Officers that use to tend upon Funerals for gain, he calls them Vulturs and Crows that do flock to dead bodies, and Sepulchers Dogs, (those are his words) that seek to get advantage by Funerals. And we know heretofore what abundance of advantage there was gotten by Funerals, scarce could you bury a child under three or four pounds, such kind of fees there were, and made them even rejoice when others did mourn, and getting a great part of of their livelihood from the bread of Mourners.

And Theophylact hath another Note from this place, The bread of Mourners. That is, those things offered to God gotten by oppression, as thus; suppose a man or woman gets an estate, and gets it in an oppressing way, it may be they are at home and merry, but it may be the poor children or widow is mourning for those morsels that thou are,
Expos. 1. The bread for their soul shall not come into the House of the Lord.

The bread for their soul. That is; When they are seeking God even for their very lives. By Bread, is to be understood, their oblations more generally, not only Bread, but their Omissions. As Mal. 1. 7. Ye offer polluted bread upon mine Altar: it's taken generally for all kind of offerings upon Gods Altar. So, The bread for their souls, that is, those offerings that they did offer for their very lives.

Now from thence the Note is this: That it's a sad thing when a creature would seek to God for his very life, yet then God rejects him and his offering too. Before these people they did reject the voice of the Lord at the Temple, and they kept others from going to the House of the Lord, they thought sacrifices elsewhere would serve the turn as well; but now they shall be far enough from bringing any sacrifices to the House of the Lord though they should desire to do it for their very souls. Thus many who in the time of their prosperity do neglect the Worship of God and slight it, and think there is no great matter in it, but afterwards when they see their very lives, their souls lie at the mercy of God, then they would fain seek God for their lives, they see they are undone if God be not merciful to them, yet then God rejects them, their offering; then for their souls shall not come into the House of the Lord; that is; will not be accepted of God. When a man is crying for any Alms, but for a piece of bread, to be rejected is something; but when a man is crying for his soul, then to be rejected, and by God himself, this is more grievous.

Secondly, The bread for their soul, that is, The bread they have have to maintain their lives withal, if they would offer that to the Lord, it should not come into the house of the Lord to be accepted; for by bread for their souls, may be meant, the bread that they have to maintain their lives, for so we find the Scripture calls the soul, the life of a man, in Mat. 6. 24. Is not the life more worth than meat? the words in the original are, Is not the Soul of man? It is here the bread for the soul, that is, the very bread that they have to maintain their lives, their necessary bread that they have to live on; although they should be willing to offer that to the Lord, it shall not come unto him. Now this is as if the Prophet should say to them, Now you cannot be brought to them to offer your superfluity to God, but your condition shall be such as if you would offer the necessary bread you have to preserve your lives, if you would offer that to God, God will not accept of it: As if a man were so poor that he were ready to starve, and yet for all that such a man would say, Well, though I starve, yet I will offer this I have to live on, and I would offer this to God rather than have it my self, now you would think this should be an argument of a great deal of devotion. But the case shall be now, that though you would seek God with such earnestness, yet the heart of God shall be so hardened against you as they will not be accepted.

Those who in time of prosperity are loth to deny their ease, and loth to lay out any thing of their superfluity for God, but time may come that though they should be willing to bite off their very nails, and pluck out their eyes, and tear their very flesh in indignation for their sin in respect unto God any way, yet this God shall not vouchsafe to have regard unto. Therefore this learn by it, to seek God while he may be found, and not to stand upon your own terms with God in the day of your prosperity, and to say, I cannot spare this and that for him; but if we deny God now what is his due, though we would give to him hereafter that that our lives lay upon, yet it shall not be accepted.
3. Bread for their souls: that is, they shall have no more bread than will serve for their very life from hand to mouth, they shall have nothing to bring to the House of the Lord, they shall be so put to it, when they are in captivity, they shall be kept so strictly, as to have nothing but bread and water, nothing but from hand to mouth; they shall be far enough from having any thing to offer to the Lord, to be accepted of him; if they should think of bringing any thing to the House of the Lord, alack! what have they? nothing but a little bread for their soul.

Obser. From whence the Note is this, To have no estate to offer to God in his service, in the ways of his publick worship is a great affliction. It follows.

Ver. 5. What will ye do in the solemn day, and in the day of the feast of the Lord?

Now they shall remember their solemn days, their feasts, and see themselves cut off from any further enjoying of them, it must needs be a great sadness unto their spirits to think what days once they had, Oh what solemn times and feasts that they did keep to God; for any to sit down in times of affliction and say, I remember what days of joy in the service of God I once had, but now they are gone, Oh! the days that I was wont to have, how sweet were they? but alas! is now past and we must sit down in sorrow and affliction. There was a time (faith God by the Prophet) that you would not suffer any to go up to the feast, but now you shall be far enough from Jerusalem or any other place of Worship, and the very remembrance of those solemn days shall be grievous to you. Oh! what will you do in those solemn days? Those solemn days were days of joy, in Numb. 10:30. Thus I think some carry it, they make those feasts to be the feasts that they should have gone gone up to Jerusalem in; but I take not this to be the scope of the holy Ghost here, but rather thus; by the solemn Days and Feasts of the Lord is here meant, the solemn day of God's wrath and vengeance upon them; now for the making out of that I shall shew first, that in Scripture the day of God's wrath is call'd the solemn day, and the day of God's feast is the day of his wrath, a day wherein God feasts.

First, The solemn day it is the day of God's wrath, in Lament. 2. 22. Thou hast call'd as in a solemn day, my terrors round about, so that in the day of the Lord's Anger none escaped. So that the solemn day is the day of the Lord's anger there.

And Secondly, The day of God's Feast, that time when God doth execute his wrath upon wicked men is the day of a feast to God. In Rev. 19. 17, 18. verses, (besides other texts) An Angel cried with a loud voice to all the fowls that fly in the Heavens, Come, and gather yourselves together to the supper of the great God, that ye may eat the flesh of Kings, and the flesh of Captains, and the flesh of Mighty men, and the flesh of Horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men both free and bond, both small and great: it is the day of the Lord's feast. Now is a solemn day, a day of the execution of God's wrath, because now God executes wrath publickly and brings much wrath together. Thou hast call'd as in a solemn day my terrors round about. You know that in the day of a petty Sessions there may be some justice done, but more privately; But in a day of solemn Assizes, when there is a full Goal delivery, then judgment is done publickly; so God executes justice sometimes upon men particularly, but God hath his solemn day to execute his judgments publickly before all, and then the Lord feasts.

The day of execution of God's wrath upon wicked men is a day of feast, upon this ground.

First, Because the day of their feasts were days of slaying sacrifices, so they should now be slain, and God would account even their bodies that were slain to be as sacrifices.
for this great feast of his. In Isa. 34. 6. The Lord hath a sacrifice in Bozrah, and a great slaughter in the Land of Idumea.

And in Zeph. 1. 7. The day of the Lord is at hand, the Lord hath prepared a sacrifice, he hath bid his guests. And then it shall come to pass in the day of the Lord’s sacrifice, that I will punish the Princes, and the Kings Children &c. He hath bid his guests; so here’s the feast of God, and the slaughter of great men are here, the dikes as it were of sacrifice that God would have at this his feast, the Executioners of Gods wrath are now his Priests to kill his sacrifices. Soldiers and Executioners they are turned the Priests of God for to kill his sacrifice for this his feast. Hence in Jer. 6. 4. Prepare ye War against her, it is in the Original, San&ifie the War; and in another Scripture, those that were the executioners of Gods wrath, were call’d Gods San&ified ones.

And then further, A day of Feasting is, a day of Rejoicing; this day of the execution of Gods wrath upon sinners, especially great sinners that do escape mens hands, it is a day of Rejoicing to God, as in a day of Feast: And this word that is translated Feast, it signifies Dancing, it is a day wherein the Lords heart doth as it were leap within him because of joy, God rejoices in the execution of his righteous judgments upon them; therefore Gods wrath in Scripture is call’d Wine. They shall drink of the Wine of his wrath: the Lord at length when sinners continue impenitent is as much delighted in the execution of his Justice, as men can be in drinking of Wine. In Deut. 28. 63. As the Lord rejoiced over you to do you good, so the Lord will rejoice over you for evil. And in Ezek. 5. 13. Thus shall mine anger be accomplished, and I will cause my fury to rest upon them, and I will be comforted. (It’s a very strange expression.) Oh! let us, my Brethren, take heed how we rejoice in sin, God may rejoice in the execution of his Judgments upon us due to our sin. Men have their daies in joy and mirth in sin; and God hath his daies of joy and mirth in the execution of his wrath. Oh! how sad is the condition of a creature creature when the infinite merciful God shall rejoyce in his ruin! Surely then, if God doth so rejoyce in the execution of his wrath upon wicked men, then the Saints also may rejoyce; in Psal. 58. 10. The righteous shall rejoyce when he seeth the vengeance, he shall wash his feet in the blood of the wicked: Taken from the custom of those Countries, that were wont after their travels to wash their feet with cold water, and that did refresh them: so the blood of the wicked should be refreshment to the righteous. Now this is not an insulting joy over them, but rejoicing in the honor that God hath, and in the good that doth come to the Church by the execution of such men, both unto God and to his people. So that it follows in Psal. 58. 11. Verily there is a reward for the righteous; verily there is a God that judgeth in the earth. The Saints may look upon wicked men when they see them executed and pitty them as men; but they may rejoyce in this, because they see such a spectacle before them as makes this Scripture to be good. Verily there a reward for the righteous; verily there is a God that judgeth in the earth. And in Psal. 52. 6. The righteous shall see, and fear, and laugh: Mark, though he may rejoyce, yet he must have fear mixed with it, he shall see, and fear, and laugh. And note, that Scripture is spoken of a great Courtier, of Doeg, one that was a most desperate enemy to God's people, one that watch'd all the ways he could to do mischief, and especially to do mischief to David, and he was the man that came and stir'd up the King against David, this 52. Psalm, is made concerning this Doeg, and a Prophesie of his destruction, faith the Spirit of God, The righteous shall see, and fear, and laugh: Note. If a man can keep his heart spiritual, sanctifying God's Name in the beholding such an object, those that are eminent wicked men brought to execution, he may Lawfully according to the mind of God, feast his eyes in the beholding of it, such a day is call'd the Feast of the Lord. And the Lord doth not use to feast himself, but he calls his... his Saints to feast with him; in Prov. 11.10. When it goeth well with the righteous, the City rejoiceth, and when the wicked perish there is shouting. And this is according to God's mind it should be so. And therefore Christians above all men should be far from a proud insulting even over these men, but yet when God laies an object before them wherein they may see the answer of so many prayers, and the fruit of the cries of so many thousands that were oppressed, yea, of so many thousand conscience-oppressed ones, that have cried against such a one, if at the stroke of God, they with hearts lift up to him shall give a shout that shall come up to the Heavens, this pleases God, and the holy Angels, and it is musick fit for the day of the feast of the Lord; thus the Saints may do in the day of the feast of the Lord.

Yea, but faith the holy Ghost here by the Prophet, But what will you do? the Saints may do thus when God makes this his feast in the execution of such eminent wicked men, he calls you to it, to rejoice and bless his Name, he bids you look here and see, is it not good waiting upon me? the Saints may do so and bless God, But what will YOU do in the day of the feast of the Lord? What will wicked men do in that day? what will become of all your jollity? what will become of all your showness, and wilfulness, of all your pride, of all your scorning, of all your vain hopes, when this solemn day comes, and when the feast of the Lord comes? In Isa. 10.3. we have a Scripture parallel to this, What will you do in the day of visitation? what will you do, and to whom will you fly for help, and where will you leave your glory? Can you tell what in the world to do? You can tell what to do now, you have your wills, and pride it, and flout it out now, but what will you do in the day of visitation, when God's solemn day and this feast comes? Oh! what can they do but as the great and mighty men, Revelation 6. they cry to the hills to fall upon them, and to the mountains to cover them, for the great day of the Lamb's wrath is come. Those that are the most bold and presumptuous Presumptuous in their sins, when this day of the Lord comes they shall be in the most miserable perplexity not knowing what to do, they know not how to bear that which is upon them, nor how to avoid it, nor what course to take; what can you do in such a day? For,

First, All your comforts they are gone, all such things that your hearts closed withal and made as Gods to your selves, they are gone.

Secondly, Now God himself fights against you, in Isa. 13. 6. Howley, for the day of the Lord is at hand, it shall come as a destruction from the Almighty. But it may be you look only upon such and such men that are the Instruments. No, but it is a destruction from the Almighty, and therefore what can you do?

Thirdly, Conscience in that day that will terrify you.

Fourthly, You shall not know whither to go for help: To the creature, that cannot help you, your vain hopes in the creature hath the very heartstrings of them broke, you thought that you might shift and help your selves there, but now you see there is no help there.

What then? you cannot go to God, then the very thoughts of God must needs be terrible to you, and then what will you do?

Further, For these miseries they are but the beginning of sorrows, this day of the Lord it is but a preparation for another day; there is yet a more solemn day of the Lord in coming than this present. Oh! what will ye do in the day of the Lord? Howsoever a man may resolve to set a good face upon a thing; Oh! but my Brethren, though you cannot see daunting in a countenance, yet did you but see, the black bosom, and the woful guilty spirit that there is by sin within, you would know that they could not in the world tell what do do in the day of the Lord.

It's strange what a man may do even before death, in the presence of death.
presence of men, although his own conscience tells him quite otherwise, and though men are ready to be taken with dying mens expressions, yet many times there is much decept in them.

Why you will say? What a man doth profess when he is ready to die, certainly it must needs be a truth.

There is a notable story concerning this that Bishop Latimer hath, in one of his Sermons, he tells of the desperate stoutness of a certain mans heart even when he was to die: as he was riding he comes to a place where the execution of a man was to be, he turns aside, and when the people saw him they made way, and he comes to speak with the man, and both he and all that were about him could not get out of him to give glory to God for the guiltiness of the fact for which he was to be executed, but stood out in it, that he was not guilty; and when they could get nothing out of him they turned the ladder, and the rope being cut and he down, they thought the life had been gone from him, but at length they saw a little motion in him, and by rubbing and chafing of him they got life, so as he was able to speak, and then he confess all; that he was guilty of those very things that he had took upon his death that he was not. Thus it's possible for men in the stoutness of their hearts even at the last rather to venture their souls upon it; and well may they that ventur'd their souls so much before upon other things, think that they may make bold with God at such a time as this is. But howsoever there is much dejection of spirit, and they know not in the world what to do. Well, it's happy for us to consider what we do, and to lay to heart what we have done, that so in such a day of the Lord as this, we may know what to do; the Servants of God who have walked conscionably before him, they know what to do in the day of publick calamity.

For first, They can bless God that ever they knew him, that ever they knew his waies, that ever he put it into their hearts to fear his name.

Secondly,
Secondly, They know what to do in a day of calamity, they can exercise their faith upon that Word in which the Lord hath caused them to trust, they can make it to be the support of their souls, and the joy of their hearts, even in such a day.

Thirdly, They know what to do, they can sanctify God Name in his righteous judgments, they can see mercy and the love of a Father in the forest and heaviest afflictions that do befall them.

Fourthly, They know what to do; they can ease their souls by pouring them forth into the bosom of a gracious and reconciled Father.

Fifthly, They know what to do; they can see beyond all these present evils, they can see Immortality and Glory, they can see that on the other side a little beyond these troubles and afflictions, there is an everlasting joy and day of peace coming to them. A Job can tell what to do, he can profess that though God kill him he would trust in him. A David can tell what to do, In the multitude of the sorrows that I had in my heart, thy consolations refreshed my soul. A Habacuk can tell what to do, Although the fig-tree should not blossom, nor fruit be in the vines, the labor of the Olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat, the flocks shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no heard in the stalls: yet will I rejoice in the Lord; yet will I joy in the God of my salvation: Thus you see the Saints they know what to do in such a day; and this is the excellency of grace, that it can never be put to it, in any strait, but it can tell what to do; as David said to Achish in 2 Sam. 28. 2. Surely thou shalt know what thy servant can do. So the Saints, in time of common distresses they should set their graces so on work that all may see what their faith, and humility, and patience can do, that they may be able to say, well, you shall see now what the Servant of the Lord can do: If one should say to one that hath made profession of Godlinees, You speake much of the excellency of grace, but what can you do with it? The answer that such a one may well give, is this: When you cannot tell what to do in the world nor which way to turn yourselves, yet through God's mercy I can tell what to do. Grace will be able to carry a man through fire and water, that faith of mine, and the grace that I have gotten by the Word, that you can scorn at, it's that doth through God's mercy enable my soul to rejoice, yea, to triumph in Tribulations. Can you do that? You can rejoice now when you are in a Tavern, but in the day of Tribulation, when a dismal day shall come to the world, what will you do then? I thank God I have that that can rejoice my heart in such a day as this is; and that that I have gotten by the Word, and by prayer, and by the Ordinances, can enable me to do that that you cannot do; that's something, that when a man in times of Tribulation can carry himself above all, so that men or devils are not able to put him in such a case as he cannot tell what to do. It follows.

For lo, they are gone, because of destruction.

But do you say to us, What will we do in such a day? Why, we know well enough what to do, we have a way to help us; if all your threatenings should befall us, yet we can have help: why, 'tis not like that all this misery and disolation that you prophesie of, it's not like that it will come suddenly; then surely we know what to do, we will get to Egypt, that's not far off: and if we cannot live here in our own Country, we will go to Memphis, that's a brave City and there we may live well enough; Many of us are Merchants, and Memphis is as great a place for Mercandize as where we live, and we will get thither.

Obs. Thus carnal hearts have alwaies some shifting thoughts and some plots in their heads thinking of waies to provide for themselves, and indeed it's this that takes off the hearts of men from humbling themselves before the Lord and making king their peace with him, because they think they may shift off God's strokes thus and thus, therefore they do not fall down with trembling hearts before the Lord, and cry unto him, Lord, what wilt thou have us to do? but they know what to do themselves; and were it not for this, that their hearts were thus taken off by shifts, Oh! what humiliation would there be then before the Lord, what submitting to him, what seeking of him? Isa. 57. 10. Thou art wearied in the greatness of thy way; yet saiest thou not, There is no hope: thou hast found the life of thine hand, therefore thou wast not grieved. Thou thoughtest thou couldst tell what to do, therefore thou wast not grieved. When God doth intend mercy to men, he takes them off from their vain hopes, from all their shifting reasonings, and then mercy is at hand. When the hearts of men are brought to this, to cry, Men and brethren, what shall we do? and as Jehoshaphat, We know not what to do: but our eyes are towards thee: I say, when men's hearts are taken off from all their shifts, and they come to this pass; As for any thing in our selves we know not what to do, but only our eyes are towards thee; then is mercy at hand, and never till then. And therefore all the time that you are reasoning thus in your own imaginations, all that while you are far from mercy.

For lo, they are gone to Egypt, because of destruction.

The Prophet speaks here of a thing as if it were done already. Although they were in Samaria, and in the Cities of Israel, yet faith the Prophet, Lo, they are gone to Egypt: the wrath of God was too hot for them in their own Country, and away they are gone and got to Egypt, for a refuge.

Carnal hearts in straits will rather make anything to be their refuge than God. And my brethren, just these for all the world have been (I fear) and it may be yet are the thoughts of many among us; Why, (think they) Ministers of God they they threaten Judgments, that God hath a controversy against us, and we see now some tokens of Gods wrath upon us; Well, let the worst come that can, we hope to shift some way or other, we may get into Holland, or Germany, or France, or New-England, if the worst come that can, I hope we may have time enough to get one way or other to make shift to live; and these back-doors that their eyes are upon, have made them less solicitous about, and less helpful in the great things that God calls all with a loud voice to join together with all their strength, that they may deliver their own Land from that heavy wrath that hangs over you. Well, notwithstanding mens thoughts are for shifting, it will prove that all will be vain. Saith God, You think to shift to this place and the other, you may be disappointed, for Egypt shall gather you, and Memphis shall bury you, my wrath and fore displeasure shall pursue you thither. It's a vain thing for men to seek to fly from the presence of God: But certainly in some cases a man may fly from danger: As in regard of mens Relations and Stations, they see that their work is done in one place, and God by providence opens them a door to another, though not out of distrust, but if when God calls for further work here and there is no door opened by providence, but what's broken open by themselves out of a distrust and foolish fear only to provide for the flesh, I say, such may expect wrath to pursue them wheresoever they go, their safest places may prove to be their graves, Egypt shall gather them, (that is taken from the gathering of dead bodies) Memphis shall bury them: Memphis was a principal city in Egypt that now is known by the name of Grand Caer, your Merchants and Marriners they know that City that here the holy Ghost speaks of by that name; and then it was called Memphis upon the name as some think of one of the King of Egypt's Daughters. A City very famous in Egypt for the Pyramides and the Kings Sepulchres that were there, and the City that stood very commodious for traffick because because it stood upon the River Nilus and there was multitudes of streets, I am loth to name you the number for indeed it is incredible, only this thing is remarkable that generally all the streets had at each end of them two gates so that they might be locked up as a Tower; and it may be the holy Ghost may allude the rather to that, in saying, Memphis shall bury you, because every place was shut up, and it's the same City that you read of in the 19. of Isai.

Now say they, We will go to Memphis a brave place for traffic, and a very commodious City, a very safe City that hath all the streets like so many Towers and we will go and help our selves there. Yea, but Memphis shall bury you faith God.

From thence the Note is, That it's a great affliction to be forced to leave ones own Country, and never to return again, but to lay our bones in a strange Land. The Lord hath sent many of his servants into other Countries to live among strangers, some there are that have gone among strangers, yet through God's mercy they have not so gone but God hath given them liberty to return again, and though their going hath been (as you know) much dispersed of late, yet when more weighty work may give leave I make no question but you will be fully satisfied so as you shall acknowledge a special hand of God even in their going. But here specially the Jews did account it a great misery to die out of their own Land. Buxtorfius in his book called the Jewish Synagogue, relates such a Tradition that the Jews have, They do believe that the Resurrection at the great day shall be at Jerusalem of the Jews, that wheresoever any of the Jews have lived and died, yet they shall rise up at Jerusalem, therefore when many of them that lived a great way off did begin to grow old they would leave their station and go as near to Jerusalem as they could: for this is their Tradition, that their bodies shall come through passages of the earth all along to Jerusalem, and that they may prevent the the trouble of coming to far under the ground, therefore they remove their dwelling to dwell neer Jerusalem. And this is the vanity of spirit that they are left unto. But though that be a vanity, yet certainlie it's an affliction to anie to be out of their own Countrie, and there to live and die; but if it be a great evil to fly from ones own Countrie for fear of destruction, and to have the place they fly to be made as their grave, what a great evil is it then for men meerlie out of love for advantage to leave places where before they did or might enjoy communion with the Saints, to leave the Ordinances of God, to go into other places among Papiists, and Heathen where they cannot have the freedom of Gods Worship? Now such as these are should find these places to be labyrinths of miserable perplexity to them, it is just with God it should be so, seeing they out of love to gain would thus venture themselves, and therefore let men take heed of this how they go upon any private respects from places were Gods Worship may be had to places where they cannot enjoy it. It follows.

The pleasant places for their Silver, Nettles shall possess them; Thorne shall be in their Tabernacles.

The word that is translated pleasant places for Silver, it is, the desire of their silver.

First, it may have reference to this, to their furniture of silver, that nettles shall grow where they wear their fine sil- ver things, their fine Cupboards of plate, and houshold stuff that they did take so much delight in, as in Lament. 1. 7. Jerusalem remembered in the daies of her affliction, and of her mis- series, all her pleasant things that she had in the daies of old. Mark but these two things from this text, Jerusalem in the daies of her affliction and miferie. My Brethren, there may be daies of affliction, and yet no daies of miferie, the Saints may meet with daies of afflictions, but not of mifer- ry; the wicked when they meet with daies of affliction, they they meet with daisies of misery; but the thing I note that text for is this, They shall remember all the pleasant things that they had. Oh! they shall think then, what fine Cupbords of plate they were wont to have, and all their fine things; so here, here's a threatening that there should nettles grow in the very place where their fine household stuff stood, such a place of the house where such a fine Cupbord of plate was, all shall be so demolished that perhaps Nettles and Thorns shall grow there.

And then secondly, The places where they hid their Silver, as you know in times of War men will hide their Silver, and they think they may come back again and have them, but faith God, you shall go far enough from them, and I make no question but another Generation may find treasures of silver in the Countries, in the midst of Nettle bushes and Thorn bushes.

Thirdly, It is their delightful houses adorned with silver, that were so glorious to their eyes, al now is gone faith God, and Nettles and Thorns shall grow up, they shall Inherit, so the word is; you hope to leave these brave houses to your children to inherit, but now faith God I have other Heirs for your houses than your children, I have Thorns and Nettles to inherit them, for so the word is in the Hebrew, They shall inherit. It's a lamentable spectacle to see places where fair buildings have been that now Nettles and Thorns should grow, as it is like to be if these Wars hold in divers places of this Kingdom, that was the complaint heretofore of Troy, There was Corn grew where once, Troy was; it was made a plowed field, but to have Nettles grow it is worse, for where the plow goes there are inhabitants, but where Nettles and Thorns are that's a desolate wilderness. Travellers tell us, that in manie places of Germany, when they go by where brave buildings were, there's nothing now but bushes and nettles; the Lord deliver us from such a heavy stroke as this is, this is threatened in Isa. 32. 13. Upon the Land of my people.
ple shall come up by ares and thorns, yea upon all the houses of joy in the joyous City. Would it not be a sad spectacle to see such a City as this to have the buildings overthrown and to have Nettles and thorns in your fairest streets come up? yet sin is such a ruinous thing as this. And then in Isa. 34. 13. Thorns shall come up in her Palaces, Nettles and Brambles in the Fortresses thereof, and it shall be a habitation for Dragons, and a Court for Owls; the Owls they shall keep Court there. In our Courts we know what abundance of sin was there, now the Owls shall keep Court there instead of these Courtiers that lived so bravely there formerly. Oh my Brethren! sin is a leprosy that infects the doors of our houses: there's a notable story in 2 King. 25. 9. It said of Nebuchadnezzar, That he burnt the House of the Lord, and the Kings house, and all the houses of Jerusalem, and every great man's house burnt he with fire. There is a great deal of sin committed in great men's houses, and at this day how have the great men of the Land almost in all places shewed a spirit of Malignity against the work of Reformation, Oh how just with God is it that the houses of these great men should suffer; this that here is threatened in my text, and many of them have been spoiled already, and if God give them not hearts speedily to see the evil of their ways it's very probable that within a few years this text of mine may be fulfilled upon them,

They shall possess them.

It may be they think though the War did keep us from our houses a while, nay though they should be broken down, yet our Lands will hold, they cannot take away them. Nay faith God, flatter not your selves with thinking to come to it again, for you shall never come to them, for Nettles and Thorns shall possess it. And thus we have done with the sixth Verse, but a very little of the seventh Verse. And so,
God hath his set time for the Execution of Judgment.

What good is it to a Malesfactor that he is let alone a while in the Prison, when he knows that at such a day of the Month must be the day of his Execution?

The day of Visitation and Recompence, i.e. of Enquiry for all thy evil.

Your Judgments they are none other but, Recompences; you may have vain pleas and reasons to justify yourselves, but when God comes to visit you he will deal with you in a way of Recompence proportionable to your ways; If you would fall down and acknowledge your sins and your need of Mercy, then it may be you may find Mercy; but if you will stand to justify your selves, then expect that God when he comes, will come in a way of Recompence.

And now my Brethren, Oh! what a desperate venture is this, that men will venture to deal with God in a way of Recompence, when as you may be dealt withal in a way of mercy?

You will say, Who are those that will deal with God in a way of Recompence?

Certainly those that will plead and justify themselves, and will say, God knows I do what I can, and this is not so much my fault as others: Then expect that God when he comes to deal with you he will have your pleas to be fully examined, and if it prove that your pleas will hold, you shall have accordingly; and if it prove that your pleas shall shall be found false, then you shall be dealt withal in a way of justice. Will you venture? dare any of you venture upon your Pleas to stand it out? if you say, you do what you can, you will be tried by it, and you shall be recompenced accordingly; and if it be found indeed that you do what you can, you shall be saved; but if it be found you have not done what you could, you shall perish eternally. Will you venture? certainly, whatsoever you stand pleading to justify your selves by, you may expect that God will deal with you in a way of Recompence.

The daies of Recompence are come.

Expos. Twice come: as it is said, Babylon is fallen, is fallen. Israel was in a way of Recompence and would hardly be moved with any apprehension of danger, and therefore you have it twice repeated: From thence the Note is this.

Obs. 3. That the apprehension of an evil presently coming, that terrifies the soul. You have a notable text for that in Ezek. 7. 6.

Exk. 7. 6 An end is come, the end is come; and then in the next words, Behold, it is come again. In one little verse three times, An end is come, the end is come; behold, it is come. And in the verse before, it comes, and in the verse after, it is come; five times God tells them that, it is come. Then faith my text, Israel shall know it.

Wicked men will not know till they feel; when they are struck, then they will know. The best knowledge of Gods displeasure it is from the causes, but if men will not know from thence, they shall know from the effects. In their prosperity they had many false Prophets that soothed them up, so, that they were kept from knowledge, but now, when they had felt Gods stroke, then they should know; but he doth not tell you what you should know. They should know these things.

First,
First, They should know what a great God it is they have to deal withal.

Secondly, They should know how vile a thing sin is.

Thirdly, They should know the vanity of all their shiftings.

Fourthly, They should know the dreadfulness of Divine wrath.

Fifthly, The faithfulness of God's Prophets.

Sixthly, They should know the wisdom of those who dare not do as they did.

Seventhly, They should know the follie and vanitie of all the false Prophets that did seduce them before; they should know, that the Prophet is a fool, and the spiritual man is mad. Oh! the knowledge we have of these things in time of affliction, is another manner of knowledge than we know in the time of our prosperity: It was the speech of a German Divine in an affliction, In this disease I know what sin is, and how great God is in this disease. And yet he was a Divine, why did he not know before? No trulie, I never knew what sin and God was so before.

Now Israel shall know.

The knowledge that men have of the truth of God in time of affliction, is a working knowledge. I appeal to you; How manie of you in the time of your sickness and afflictions have known things after another manner than ever you knew them before? It follows;

The Prophet is a fool, and the spiritual man is mad.

In the time of Affliction they shall cry out that those are fools that did seduce them. One that died not long since by the Exchange, cried out of his keeping companie with lewd Ministers that did encourage him in his waies, and that did harden him against Religion and the Saints of God.
In former times we know how men would close with wicked Ministers, and how they would be hardened in scorning at Religion, and Puritans, but these will have cause upon their sick beds, and death beds, to cry out of them, for they would tell them that they need not be so strict and so pure: take heed now how you be deceived by those that account themselves spiritual men, they here in the text upon experience find that the Prophet did but be-fool them, and those that had such glorious titles of spiritual men, that they were but mad; and if you take not heed some that are here may find it hereafter true upon their death beds, that they may cry out of such and such Ministers that did persuade them to such and such things. But truly tis no excuse to men, though they should be led aside by Ministers and others, for you shall find what's the reason that they were given up to Prophets that were fools, it follows in the text: For the multitude of their iniquity, and for their great hatred. Thou hadst a wicked and a vile heart that did hate Gods people and the ways of godliness, and therefore it was just with God to give thee up to those that thou seest now to be fools and mad-men; Oh! it's just with God when mens spirits are against the true Prophets of God, to leave them to Ministers that should cozen and undo their souls everlastingly.

Ver. 8.

The watch-man of Ephraim was with my God: but the Prophet is a snare of a fowler in all his waies, and hatred in the House of his God.

In this, and the former Verse God charges (as the cause of much evil in Israel) the false Prophets, but yet through the Peoples sin, for it was through the multitude of their wickedness that they were so guided by those false Prophets, whom they followed in times of their prosperity. But God would have a time wherein they should know they they were but fools, and the spiritual man but mad. And this was likewise because of their great hatred, the great hatred of the true Prophets, their spirits were against them, and therefore God gave them up to those that were false: the same argument follows here in the eighth verse,
The watchman of Ephraim was with my God: but the Prophet is a snare of a fowler in all his ways, and hatred in the house of his God.

The watchman.

Such who profess themselves watchmen, that take upon themselves glorious titles, Prophets and Ministers of God are called watchmen: and these made great profession that they would be as careful to foresee, and labor as much to prevent danger to the People as any of them all, they profess to be very useful unto the people, and to be as much for God as any, but they were a snare; and this title of their, and this profession of theirs proved to be a snare unto the people. Many vile things are hidden under fair and glorious titles, as many excellent things are disgraced under base and ignominious titles: You know what a deal of evil was lately covered among us by names and titles, as the Clergie, and the Church; and likewise what abundance of good had dirt cast upon it by titles, as Conventicles, and Puritans, and the like; and now the titles of things may be changed into others, but may be as dangerous some other way, as formerly these titles were both one way and the other: Let people for ever take heed of titles and examin-what lies under them, be not led away one way nor other, either by fair or specious titles, or by ignominious titles;
Ordinarily people that do not examine things to the bottom, they are taken with names and titles. But somewhat of these heretofore.
The watchman of Ephraim.

The people of Israel, the ten Tribes they had no mind to the true watchmen, because they threatened hard things against them, they were willing to close with any others that would preach more pleasing things, so they might set one against another, and this quieted them; although the truth was, that these watchmen were a most grievous snare to them.

Thus many who have carnal hearts, and are not able to bear the evincing and threatening power of the Word in the mouths of the true watchmen, of faithful Ministers, they seek to help themselves by the opinions & judgments of other Ministers, and so think they are safe when they have the opinion and judgment of some that are learned, and have repute of godliness too, for so certainly these watchmen had here; and then they can set the opinion and judgment of one, against the opinion and judgment of the other, they think they are safe now and may be quiet, yet this proves a dangerous snare.

When there is clear conviction of a truth, it is a dangerous thing out of a lothness to yeeld to that, to seek the opinions of others. I confess when a man hath the opinion and judgments, and if out of love to the truth that he might be confirmed in the Truth, or that he might know fully what the Truth is, for him to seek help from others is a good thing; but if out of dislaft to a Truth, if because the heart is weary of it, and would fain not have it to be true, because it may bring some trouble, upon that ground he goes to seek the opinion of some other, and hopes before he goes that he shall find the opinion of others to be contrary, and so he may have something to quiet his spirit; this is a great snare to the souls of those that have been guilty of it.

The Watch-man of Ephraim: Ephraim had Watch-men as well as Judah.
No cause so ill but will have some in the place of Watch-men that have the repute of wise, learned, and judicious men to maintain it.

The Watch-man of Ephraim was with my God.

They professed more than ordinarie judgment in the knowledge of God's mind, and acquaintance with the ways of God, and yet they were snares to the people. Whence observe:

Every man in his erronious opinion doth pretend to be with God, and for God; and without this indeed he could never be a snare to those that profess themselves to be the people of God.

With my God.

It must needs be a great grief to those who have the true knowledge of God, and indeed have interest in him, to see others who are false to maintain that which is evil; and yet to pretend to God, as if they were for God, and for the glory of God, and to set up God as much as any. The Prophet seems to speak in grief and trouble, these Watch-men of Ephraim, those among the ten Tribes, they will pretend to be for God, to be for my God.

Vatablus hath a further Note upon this, (saith he) Ephraim made to himself a Watch-man, and would hear him, and would hear them together with his God, like mad-men would hear them together with God, and so they would worship Idols and God too, they would seem to respect the true Prophets and false Prophet, both which is a meer madness, (thus he.)

Vatablus Ephraim fecit sibi speculatorum, id est pseudoprophetas eos qui vult audire simul cum Deo suo, audire et solere tam Idola quam Deum, tam falsos quam veros prophetas que est mera insania.
The Watchman of Ephraim was with my God.

They would not wholly depart from God, and yet they would maintain false worship, they would mingle both together.

But then, The Prophet is a snare, a snare of a Fowler.

That is, he catches poor simple deluded souls as a Fowler catches the bird with casting baits that are pleasing unto the bird, hiding from the bird the snare that presently comes upon it: so faith he, the Watchmen of Ephraim do thus. First they come to the people with very fair and specious things, and labor to drop in those principles, and do not discover what inferences they intend to make of them afterwards, they do not discover what designs they have, and what their scope is, for the present they come to them, and desire them to yield to such things that seem to be as fair as any thing in the world, and with much pretence that it is only for their good, and they intend nothing but good, now when they have brought them to yield to such things, they know that there are some inferences to be brought from those things that will make them to yield to other things, which had they been presented to them at first, they would never have yeelded to, but the inferences lay at a distance as the snare doth, and they not seeing what would follow they are brought to yield to such things, that afterwards they cannot tell how in the world to avoid, but they must yeeld to further things: thus the Watchman is as a snare of a Fowler, that laies things that seem to be very plausible at first, but intend afterwards to bring the people to yeeld to other things that would be abhorred if at first they were presented to them.

Applic. Good people, as long as you live take heed of the snares of Watch-men in this kind: God would not have you submit.
submit to any thing, nor do any thing but out of faith.

You must understand the ground from Scripture, and especially in the matters of Gods Worship before you yeeld and submit to any thing, for otherwise though things may seem to be very fair at first, yet they may prove to be but snares before you are aware. Again

And hatred in the house of God.

First, This Watch-man is an object of Gods hatred, in Gods House; wicked Officers in the Church bringing in their superstition, and importuning and urging the delusions of their own hearts, seeking to comply with the times to preserve themselves in credit and esteem, and enjoyment of their livings, they are an object of Gods hatred, these were the Watch-men that did comply with the times and sought their own ends, they were the object of the hatred of God; no people in the world whom God doth hate more than such kind of Watch-men in his House. And at this day we see how God hath cast shame and loathsome-ness in the faces of such. They are hatred by way of exclamation: ὥς ῥεῖ ὀναδίσημον ἀβαμίναν δομὸν Δεί. Oh hideous and abominable thing that such Watch-men should be pertaining to the Sanctuary.

Or otherwise by way of efficiency, Watchmen are hatred, that is, they cause hatred, they cause my people to hate the true Prophets, and the Servants of God that would worship God in his own way; and indeed, there are no men in the world that are such causes of the hatred of the faithful Ministers of God, the Saints of God, as wicked Watchmen are. Who are the men that do stir up hatred and persecution against the Saints and People of God in former times, but evil and wicked Ministers?

Hatred in the house of my God.

But now, Wherein doth the false Prophets seem to be enveighed against?
I find some (and I confess not without some probability) understand all these of the true Prophets; and then the sense will run thus: You accounted the Prophets of the Lord, who declared the mind of the Lord faithfully to you, to be no other than fools and mad-men, but you shall know that they were no fools, that they were no mad-men; for I find in 2 Kings. 9. 11. Wherefore came this mad fellow in? saith the Captain of Jehu, and in 2 Chron. 36. 16. They mocked the Prophets and Messengers of God. Here it is thought Ezekiel's friends and acquaintance bound him, as thinking him mad, chap. 3. 5. And so we read in the Gospel of Christ's kind-folks, they laid hands upon him as thinking him to be mad; and so Paul in 2 Cor. 5. 13. Whether we be beside our selves, it is to God. The true Prophets were thought to be as fools and mad-men, and they were scorned and contemned as those that were spiritual mad-men; but faith the Lord, they shall know in the time of their visitation whether they were thus or no: you shall find by your woful experience that these were no such mad-men as you thought them to be. And in time of affliction men have more honorable esteem of the true Prophets of God than at other times, those that were jeered at before, Oh! they were so wise, so precise and holy, and such tender consciences! Now they shall know how vain their thoughts were of them, when God's hand is upon such men as jeer at the Ministers of God for being so holy and the like, yet when the hand of God hath been upon them, they have sent for these men to pray for them above any men. So we read of the people of Antioch, though many of them did give their hands for the banishment of Chrysostom, yet being terrified by an Earthquake, immediately sent for him again. And so in Job, 33. 23. speaking of the time of affliction, If there be a messenger with him, an Interpreter one among a thousand to shew unto man his uprightness. But further,
Because of the multitude of thine iniquities, and thy great hatred.

If you understand it of the true Prophers, the sense will run thus, You shall know in the time of your visitation, whether they were mad-men and fools or no; it was upon the multitude of your iniquity and great hatred that you accounted them so, to be such fools and mad-men before, it was because of the Malignity of your spirits and the hatred against the right waies of God; you had many exceptions against them, but the truth is, you saw nothing, but the Malignity of your hearts lay at the bottom, you accounted them fools and mad-men because of the multitude of your iniquities. Men who are not so able to judg of things sometimes in controversy, yet they may have this rule to help them to judg of Ministers and of their cause, (who they are that are most like to be in the truth) by this rule,

What is the side that men incline most to as they grow most in godliness? And what side men incline most unto, as they grow more loose and formal in their waies?

Consider of that, If there be a Side or Partie, you are not able to judge which is in the truth, there's some good men on one side, and some of the other; but you being weak and not able to examine the ground of things, take this Rule as a help: What is the Side that men most incline to as they grow in godliness? And what side is that that men most cleave to as they grow most loose and most formal in their way and profiting? When (I say) men whose multitude of iniquities encrease, and according to the encrease of the multitude of their iniquities, so they incline to a Party; I cannot but be the more suspicious of it, when I see the other way that the most conscientious men are, and the more the fear of God prevails in them, and the more strict they grow in their waies, they do more incline.
encline to another side; I cannot but think that there may be much of God there. And yet it's true, that the greatest Hereticks that ever were have pretended great holiness, that must be granted too. But still, if this opinion were not of God, those that did indeed grow up in true holiness, the more holy they were, the less did they favour that way, though it had never such a pretence of holiness. And if it be but a pretence of holiness and not true, then certainly the more loose and formal professors grow, the more will they close with that way (if it be but a pretence;) so it is here, their hearts were taken off from the true Prophets of God through the multitude of their iniquities; the more they grew to loosness the more were their hearts taken off from the true Prophets of God.

Further: The watchman of Ephraim was with my God.

Still take it as concerning the true Prophets, that is, Even Ephraim wanted not watchmen to shew them their danger in departing from God; though the ten Tribes did decline from God, yet such was God's goodness to them as they had watchmen that were faithful even among them.

They were with my God.

That is, They had such Whatch-men as lookt upon God, as having to deal with God and not with men, as sent from God, as pleading for God, and hence they could not be taken off from their way, either by threats or flattery, they might have have had preferment as well as others, they needed not have been the But of the hatred and malice of men no more than others, if they would have done as others did. No, but they were with my God, the fear of the great God was upon their spirits, and they dared not do as others did, they resolved to be faithful with God, to approve themselves to God, come of it what would would come they went on in their way, they left their means, and estates, and liberties, and lives, and all to God, it was for God to provide for them, it was for them to look to it that they did continue faithful to God. And thus the sense runs, If they were the true Prophets that were among the ten Tribes, then it is as an aggravation of the sins of the ten Tribes, that though they had many false Prophets, yet they had Watch-men that did continue faithful with God.

And with my God.

Those who have interest in God they rejoice when they see faithful Ministers of God keep close to God, to set up God in all their ways, when they see them not to be set upon their own designs, not to warp this way or that way, but to make it to be their bent and aim to set up God, and to bring men to the knowledge of God, Oh! they rejoice in this. So the Prophet speaks with a joy, (if it be spoken of the true Watchmen) Oh! blessed be God that yet notwithstanding all the defection of the times and corruptions that there were, yet that there were Watch-men among Ephraim that were faithful with God, Oh they had no other designs but to set up God, and were willing to deny themselves in any thing so be it they might bring souls to God, thus the Prophet rejoices.

And certainly it's a great deal of joy for the Saints to see Ministers of God to have clean spirits this way, to have no designs of their own, but to set up the honor of God among people. But even these Prophets as faithful as they were, yet they were accounted no other than a snare of a Fowler, and are even hated in the house of their God, they are accused of being politic subtiles men, who have cunning plots and reaches to set up their own way, that they are as bad as Jesuites, and such kind of Aspersions as these are the Devil casts upon them, and gets many good people.
people to drink in these things, and those who otherwise were accounted Godly and of great use in the house of their God are now become even hatred in the house of their God, the Devil hath so prevail'd to bespatter and asperse them with such stories about them and reports of them as even these men that were the most faithful with their God, yet now are looked upon as the troublers of the times, and as snares to people, and are even hatred in the house of their God, even by many people that otherwise have good affections: no way doth the Devil drive on his own designs more efficaciously than by this. Then by making the most painful, faithful, zealous Ministers of God to become even hatred in the house of their God, even among good people that are professors of Godliness. Thus Jer. 18. 22. They have digged a pit to take me, and laid snares for my feet. Isa. 29. 21. They lay a snare for him that reproveth in the gate.

Further, Hatred in the House of his God. (Understand it still of the true Prophets) And then the sense further goes thus: Yet he continues in the house of his God, here he makes this his encouragement, that he is in the house of his God, he is in God's work though he be hated for it. Gods Ministers they should not be offended though they find the like dealings among the professors of Religion, yet still they should continue in their work and imployment with all faithfulness that God sets them about, and then all aspersions will wipe off in time, they will vanish and come to nothing.

Calvin carries the sense of this somewhat different from what hath been said, in a middle way between both, and if not according to the full scope, yet it comes very near, thus he takes it; he takes the former part of the verse for true Prophets, and the latter part of the verse for the false Prophets, as if he should have said thus: There was a time that Ephraim had Watchmen with my God, and with his people, they had Elisha, and Elijah, but now the Prophet is a snare of a Fowler, and hatred, in the house of my God. This is a woful change in places where people have had Watch-men that were godly, wise, zealous, faithful with God, but now these are gone, they are dead, many of them are banished, and many are with God in Heaven, and they have others now among them, as a just Judgment of God who are a snare to them, and hatred in the house of God, others who do succeed these blessed servants of God that are gone, they are like storms, and tempefts, that do succeed fair and Sun-shine weather, and if we take it thus for both, the true Prophets in the former part of the verse, and the false Prophets in the other; then there is a special emphasis in the change of the phrase [my God; and his God] the Watch-man with my God, and hatred in the house of his God; the God of the true Watch-men, and the God of the false Prophets are not the same: those who pretend to worship God, and yet worship him in a false way, they worship another God, they have not the same God; and no mervail though there is hatred between true Prophets and false then; they must needs have hatred one against another who have divers Gods, My God, and His God, and yet both pretended to be for the same God.

Yea, but faith the Prophet here, No, whatsoever their pretences are, they teach people the Worship of God not in a right way, God is not their God: And who they are that have most interest in God, let God Himself judge; not by giving the one more of the favour of the times than the other; for the false Prophets had more of this now: but 1. By the most appearing of the Spirit of God in men. 2. By the witness of mens consciences when they are going to appear before God. And 3. By what Christ shall own at his appearing. Oh! that I could tell how to sweeten these times I speak unto you of. God by providence hath cast me upon this Scripture. I know not how to give you the mind of God in this Prophesie but by being thus plain.
An Exposition of Chap. 9.

The watchman of Ephraim was with my God: and their hatred in the house of his God.

Only one Note by the way that Arians Montanus hath upon the words, saith he, This Phraele, Hatred in the house of his God; it's taken from such men as live in some great families, and seem'd to have a great deal of power with their Lords, and abuse the power they have with their Lord, being continually by his table & bed side, they are a means to cause a great deal of hatred, and at length to undo others and themselves: So these Prophets are just like these men, they are in the house of God, and seem to have much intimacie with God in his House; but the truth is, they abuse this their intimacie to the hurt of themselves and to the hurt of others. And thus much for the Explication of the Eighth Verse. It follows.

Ver. 9.

They have deeply corrupted themselves, as in the dais of Gibeah.

Their wickedness hath deeply rooted its self, so the word here signifies; there's little hope to prevail with them, labor what you can, their superstitious and Idolatrous waiies have gotten such deep root in their hearts that there is no getting of it out. Sin, and especially that sin of superstition so deeply roots its self in the hearts of men if it be let alone but a little time that there is no getting of it out.

And indeed there is little hope of the Reformation that it now in hand, that ever we should see it come to the full beauty and perfection of it until even God himself, either by some extraordinary hand of his should root out those superstitious principles that there are in many men, or at least by his own hand root out those that have such superstitious licitous and Idolatrous principles rooted in them. We wonder that men cannot be taken off from superstitious ways, Oh! they are deeply rooted, it's not an easy matter to eradicate those ways and vile words of theirs; it's a blessed thing to take sin betimes, and you that are young that have not other wickedness, and especially superstition rooted in you, you are those that it's like God will make use of for the bringing this Reformation to perfection, you shall see the glory of it, it may be when others are gone and dead you shall come to see what God intended in all these firsts that have been among us, we find by experience the fruit of this in the hearts of men, what a deal of first was there to take them off at first? Oh! but the root abides still in men's hearts, and there's this experiment of it, of the depth and root that superstition take in men's hearts. That though men be content not to practice those superstitious ways that they did before, because now the times do not favor them, yet this we find, that men cannot be brought to leave off those things as sinful, but as inconvenient, they will be content to forbear the practice of them, but you have but few men, I had almost said but few Ministers, but so far I may be bold to say, that many Ministers, but especially those who were any thing forward in superstitious ways, such as did not before account them a burden, though they do leave them off at this time, yet not as things that are sinful, they never could be brought to that, to acknowledge them to be sinful, and so to charge themselves in sinning against God, but they are content to leave them off as things that are inconvenient and as may be burdensome to other men; but the leaving them off after such a way is no other, but if the times should favor them again there is a principle retained in their hearts, so as they would be in readiness to submit to them again, and to do them as formerly, this bitter root of Superstition abides in their hearts; that's the meaning of this phrase, they are deeply rooted, that is, their superstition, on and false worship is deeply rooted in their hearts. Well, let their superstitious be rooted as deep as it will, yet as Christ faith in Mat. 15. Every plant that my Father hath not planted shall be rooted out: God will either root thee out, or the superstition of thy heart out of thee. And seeing the false worshipers have superstition so rooted in their hearts, Oh! how should the true worshipers of God have the truth rooted in their hearts never to be rooted out; so Saint Paul in Col. 2. 7. Rooted and built up in him, and established in the faith &c.

They have deeply corrupted themselves, as in the days of Gibeah.

This must cost us a little further time for the opening of it fully: Rooted in their evil ways as in the days of Gibeah. What hath this reference to? the Scripture doth note the City Gibeah for two notable things; one, that it was the City of Saul, and so then upon that some carry it thus:

Exop. 1. That as heretofore they cast off my Government when they chose Saul to be their King over them, so now they cast me off as then formerly they did.

But I think that's not the scope, but rather, As in the days of Gibeah; This hath reference to that notable story that you have in the 19. and 20. chapters of Judges, there you shall find what was done in the days of Gibeah. You shall find the story of a Levite that had his Concubine gone from him and playing the whore, he went to fetch her again, and as he was returning home (the substance of the story is this) as he was coming home he would not go by no means (as his servant would have had him) to Jebus, because those that lived there were not of the Children of Israel, but he would be sure to lodge in a City that did belong to the Children of Israel, and when he comes to Gibeah, there expecting to have protection from that City, being they were of the Children of Israel, yet he found it quite otherwise, the people of the City were notorious abominable wicked people and they came by violence in the night to break open the doors where he lodged that they might commit sodomy and filthiness with him, but they obtaining him not, get his Concubine and abuse her all night together one after another, till with a long abuse of her they kill’d her, and she lay dead at the door, upon which horrid thing, this being committed in a City that did belong to the People of God, this Levite takes a knife and cuts his Concubine (being dead) into twelve pieces, and sends them all abroad throughout the coasts of Israel, and bad them think upon it and consider what should be done.
And upon the sight of that, and hearing the occasion of it,
the people were amazed and said, Never was such a thing done, or seen since the people of Israel came out of the Land of Egypt. Wherefore all the People even from Dan to Beersheba they all assembled to consult what should be done, in the 20. chap. they resolved to go against the City of Gibeah; in the 11. verse the text faith, All the people were gathered together against the City, at one man: and in the 13.
verse they required those Delinquents to be delivered up to them. Now those Children of Belial they stood it out and would not deliver them up; yea, and they got the Benjamites to joyn with them, twenty six thousand Armed men to joyn with them to stand in defence of these notorious Delinquents, they got up an Army which one would not have thought that among the People of God there should have been gotten up an Army to have defended such notorious villains as those were, yet they did, but the people of Israel joyned all together and were resolved that they would have such notorious wickedness to be punished (there was four hundred thousand joyned together) Now in the 18. verse, they asked counfel of God what they should do, & God gave them leave to go, and bid that Judah should go up first, so they went to require these Delinquents and went up against them, but the Benjamites the first day got the victory and slew two and twenty thousand men. Upon that the Children of Israel went up to God
God again and wept before the Lord, and God gave them leave to go again, & they went, & the Benjamites came out again & slew eighteen thousand more of them: These wicked Malignants got the Victory two daies and slew fourty thousand of the Children of Israel that went not only by Gods leave, but by his sending, and yet for two daies together they fell before those wicked and vile wretches; but yet afterwards they went and wept and fasted, they knew that their cause could not but be good, and they were resolved they would go to God again and humble their souls before God, and fast, and pray, and then they overthrew those wicked Benjamites, and thence of Gibeah; and whereas there were twenty six thousand came out against them, there was twenty and five thousand and an hundred men slain by the sword, and the City of Gibeah was burnt with fire; so God executed wrath upon them at length. This is the story that the Prophet hath reference to.

Now these men are wicked, as in the daies of Gibeah; look how it was in the daies of Gibeah, so now it is; there's many remarkable things to be observed from that story, in reference to this which the Prophet doth quote it for, the story in general was thus, That they stood out to defend wicked ones so as they did; it doth concern us fully in our times, and our wars are almost the very same now as then they were, for what is the main cause of our War but to fetch Delinquents to the execution of Justice? and who would have thought that such Delinquents whose burdens we groaned under in former times, and we accounted the great evil of the times, that these should find an Army to defend them? Yet perhaps sometimes we may be overcome by them, and they may for a while prevail, but let us fast before God and humble our selves more thoroughly, and certainly God will own his Cause in time as there he did. But particularly from the story first observe,

Obf. I. That when we make use of men as a shelter and to seek protection from them, if they shall deal vilely with us and accuse us, and make make a prey upon us, this is a most abominable and cursed wickedness in the eyes of God; This Levite came from Jebus and would not lodg with them, but to Gibeath, thinking to have had protection there, and yet these deal vily: Doth any man put himself under any of you for protection, and do you deal falsely? Oh! this is an abominable thing in the eyes of God.

Secondly, That sometimes we may meet with worse usage from such who profess Religion and more strictness in their ways, than from those who outwardly are further off from profession. It may be if they had gone to Jebus they would not have met with such ill usage, as they did when they came to Gibeath; sometimes it is so that they that make profession of Religion they are guilty of more ill usage to the servants of God than others that are prophane and ungodly, or of another Religion.

Oh! let men take heed of this, how they behave themselves towards their Brethren, that they may not have cause to say, Lord, were we among the Indians or among some moderate Papists, or under some of the Prelates again we should not find such hard usage as we do from some of our Brethren who profess thy Name and seek Reformation; this were a sad thing (I say) if ever there should be cause for the Servants of God to make their moans to Heaven and cry to God. God forbid.

Thirdly, Whereas Israel thought themselves holy and devout for God in the multitude of their sacrifices, and their devotion, and their services that they tendered up to God, yet God looks upon them as filthy and wicked, as the men of Gibeath were that committed sodomy and such kind of filthiness, faith God, You have corrupted yourselves as in the days of Gibeath; whatsoever your fair shews are, and your sacrifices be that you offer, yet you are lookt upon as thus vile and abominable before God.

From whence therefore the Note may be, That men may have very fair shews in the Worship of God, and do that which may seem to be much for the honor of God, and yet God looking with other eyes than men do, God may behold them as filthy, a-bonable, and loathsome in his sight. God will not be put off with words of Reformation and the Service of God, for men may have such base ends in it, and may mix so much of themselves to corrupt the right way of God, and to keep out the right service of God with shews of serving him, that this may make them and their services to be as odious to God as the most filthy thing in the world; that's the clearest and plain Note from thence. We do not read of such abominable filthiness of body as was in the daies of Gibeah, but because of the corruptions of God's Worship that they carried fairly, yet the Lord lookt upon it as filthy, as that was in the daies of Gibeah.

Obs. 4. Fourthly; For men after wickedness is committed, to stand immodently, and boldly in the defence of it, and to be so far from the acknowledgment of their sin, as they will rather venture deperately the undoing of themselves than they will come in to acknow-ledg or let Justice have its course: this is an abominable wickedness in the eyes of God. Thus they did in the daies of Gibeah.
And thus you are ready to do, not only to commit horrible wickedness and sins, but to stand in the defence of it;
there is this desperate stoutness of spirit, and hardness of heart in many men, that when they are once got into the way of sin, rather than they would yield and submit, they will venture the undoing of themselves: the men of Gibeab did so; and they were undone accordingly.

Obs. 5. Yea further, Not only to stand out ourselves in evil, but to join with others to defend them, though it be the venturing of our own undoing and others, this is further wickedness; yet how many have we of the Gentry and Nobility of the Kingdom, that do not only seek to defend themselves, but join with the greatest Malignants of the Kingdom, with those that are the greatest cau.ses of evil, and were like to be the utter undoing of us all? to defend them from Justice will venture the ruin of their own families; whereas were it that the Malignants were given up, they might have saved their estates families and all; Oh! that ever God should leave men in such horrible wickedness as this is! This is just as it was in the days of Gibeah.

Sixthly, Those who do so stoutly stand to defend wickedness and other men who are wicked, yet they may for a while prosper; even the men of Gibeah and the Benjamites may prosper.

But yet in the next place, at last, these men shall perish, twenty five thousand and an hundred of these twenty six thousand perished, and all the men of Gibeah, and the City was burnt. So, let men stand out as stubbornly and stoutly as they will, and say, What care we? they will lose their lives and estates rather than they will submit and yield, well, they may lose all at length; you have yet (it may be) a day (some victory) and prevail'd at some time, yea, but let not mens hearts be hardened by that, nor let none of the other side be discouraged, for certainly those that stand desperately out in defending of wickedness they shall perish at last; so did the Gibeonites.

Yea, But what is this to us (might the Prophets Auditors say?)

Yes certainly it's much to you, for this aggravates your sins, the sins of forefathers (that's the Note that the Prophet makes use of) what was done in days of Gibeah.

From whence is this Note,

That the sins of forefathers is an aggravation of Childrens sins, when they commit the same and others like unto them. And yet such is the delusion of many poor people that they excuse the present sins by the sins of former times:
As thus; suppose Ministers or others should complain of the sinfulness of the times, and declaim against the sinfulness of the times, you shall have some can say, Why do they keep such a stir of the wickedness of the times, were they not as bad as they are now heretofore? Oh delusion!
This is the great aggravation when that thou livest in those fins thy forefathers did, thou art it seems the child of a wicked parent, and how just had it been with God to have cut thee off presently for the sins of thy parents? and doest thou say, that thy wickedness is no other than the wickedness of thy forefathers? Certainly if the times be as ill as they were heretofore, they are worse than they were heretofore, for the evil of our forefathers is an aggravation of our present evils; if we continue in them: As the treachery of a parent would be no excuse for the treachery of a child, for him to say, my father was a Traitor: for me to excuse the sins of the present times with the sins of the former times, and say, that they were as ill formerly as now; it is just for all the world such kind of reasoning; but this is not the reasoning of the Spirit of God, he aggravates the sins of Israel in Hosea's time with the sins that were in the daies of Gibeah. God may let men alone in their wickedness for a long time, untill they grow to the helght of their wickedness, and then God comes upon them. When the sins of the Amorites were full, Now, he will remember their iniquities, he will visit their sins. But for this phrase of God's remembering, and visiting, that we have had before, therefore we pass it over, and come to the tenth verse.

G g

Ver. 10.

I found Israel like Grapes in the Wilderness: I saw your Fathers as the first ripe in the Fig-tree at her first time

The scope of the holy Ghost in this, it is to upbraid the ten Tribes for their wretched ungrateful dealing with God, their sin is aggravated by Gods love towards them and their forfathers.

I found Israel like grapes in the Wilderness.

Expof. That's thus; look as a man that hath been travelling in in the parched wilderness, and is dry, and weary, and faint, he doth come to a place in the Wilderness unexpectedly and finds clusters of Grapes, from whence he hath abundance of refreshment to cool and moisten him, and Oh how refresh'd is this poor man when he is parched in the dry Wilderness and beyond all expectation comes and finds a Vine full of clusters of Grapes? this would be the most pleasing thing to such a man that could be; thus faith God, Such kind of delight had I in your forefathers. He names Grapes and Figs here because they are the most delightful fruit of all kind of fruit to weary travellers: Now if this be so that God hath such delight in his people as a man would have in Grapes thus in the Wilderness, Oh! how should God be our delight when we are in the Wilderness? If we being his people are so delightful to him in the Wilderness, surely then God himself should be delightful to us in our wilderness, Oh! let God in his Ordinances be to us in our troubles and afflictions as Grapes to a traveller in his Wilderness; surely if God will account us to himself so delightful, there's great reason that we should account him to us as delightful: Some of Gods Servants have been forced to fly into the Wilderness, and though they have not had such outward refreshments as we have here, that have set under our own Vines, and Fig-trees, yet God hath made them to find Grapes in the Wilderness, they have set under Gods Protection and his Ordinances, as a man in the Wilderness should set under a Vine of Grapes and refresh himself with them.

I saw your Fathers.

We should lay to heart Gods Love to our Fathers, and seek to continue it to ourselves: It's a sad thing to look upon degenerate Children who have had fathers whom God took delight in; Your Fathers were as clusters of Grapes that did refresh the very soul of God; as it is said of Wine, that...
that it doth cheer both God and man; so the grace and holiness of your forefathers. Oh! how refreshing were they to the heart of God? But what are you, you are sour in the taft of God, what delight can God take in your un-savorv and rotten corrupted spirits? Oh! it's a comfortable thing when a child is able to say, as Exod. 15. 2. My God, and my fathers God, God was my Fathers God, and delighted in my Father, and blessed be his Name he is my God, and I hope he hath some delight in me: You who are the children of Fathers whom God delighted in as Grapesin the Wilderness, it's a mighty engagement for you to look to your selves that your hearts and lives be not corrupt, but follow the steps of your fathers, that God may delight likewise in you. But further;

As the first ripe in the Fig-tree at her first time.

There's a great deal of elegance in these expressions. The Fig-tree bears twice in the year, and here it is, The first of the first time. Their Fathers were as delightful as Grapes in the wilderness, and as the Figs, the first Figs in her first time.

Now we know that we prize fruit that is first ripe, as Cherries when they are first of all come, when they come it may be two or three into the Market, and Peafe, and such kind of things when they are the first ripe of all, how they are prized? you shall have many will give any price for them. We say when Cherries come at first, that they are Ladies meat, or Longing meat: Now the Lord is pleased to condescend so much to express his love to his people, as the love of a longing woman to Cherries or other fruit, when they come first of all; as a woman hath a longing after things when they come and are first ripe; faith God, Never did woman long after any fruit when it was first ripe more than my soul hath longed after you to do you good, I have taken as much pleasure in you as ever woman could take.
take when she had her longing in the most dainty first ripe things: This is the meaning of the holy Ghost here, to shew the Love of God to his Saints. Many expressions we have in Scripture, as in Jer. 12. 10. they are call’d his Pleas- s'ant Portion, and the dearly Beloved of Gods Soul, Jer. 12. 7. and the peculiar Treasure of God, Exod. 19. 5. and here there are two as elegant expressions, as Grapes in the Wilderness, and as the first ripe of the Figs in the first time: Thus is Gods exceeding goodness to us, though we be sapless in our selves, and have nothing in us to procure delight, yet God in his own free Grace is willing to express himself thus to his People, Oh! what delight should we have in God who takes such delight in his Servants? And this expression of God we think may very well hint unto us a meditation concerning the delight that God hath in young ones that do begin to give up themselves unto him, the Lord loves the first fruits, and the first ripe of things: in Mich. 7. 1. Wo is me, for I am as when they have gathered the Summer fruits, as the Grape gleanings of the vintage, there is no cluster to eat; My soul desired the first ripe fruits. So it’s true, by way of allusion at least, we may apply it, the Soul of God is a longer, God is a longer. To what? To the first ripe fruits, to the first of your years, to you that are young ones: We prize highly Nettle buds when they bud out first, Oh! so graciousness when it buds out in youth at first, Oh how pleasing is it to God! in Exod 23. 19. God would have the first of the first fruits, he would not only have of the first fruits, but the first of the first. God stands much about the first still. And in Leviticus, 2. 14. there you read, that the Lord is so eager to have the first things? (as a long- ing woman) that he will not stay till they be ripe, he will have the green ears of Corn dried in the fire; as many women that long they will not stay untill the thing be ripe, but if they can have it ripened by any art, though not by the way of Nature they will seek to have it ripened so, and then they must needs have it; so faith God, my longing is so after the first of things that I will not stay till they be fully ripe, but the Corn, though it be green ears; if they may be dried by the fire, I'll have them then. And so in Cant. 2. 12. The flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing of birds is come, the Fig tree putteth forth her green Figs; and in Cant. 6. 11. I went down into the Garden of Nuts to see the fruits of the valley, and to see whether the Vine flourished, and the Pomegranates budded. Oh! the Lord looks up and down in Congregations that are as the Gardens of God to see such: and so in Cant. 7. 12. Let us get up early to the Vineyards, let us see if the Vine flourish, whether the tender Grape appear, and the Pomegranates bud forth; there will I give thee my Loves. Oh! let us go and see whether the tender Grape appear, or the Pomegranate bud; there will I give thee my Loves. Where God doth see grace beginning and budding in young ones, there God manifests himself; there will I give my Loves. And this only by occasion of God's expressing himself like a longer after the first things. Oh! give God his longing you that are young ones, and begin to be godly betimes, you satisfy the heart of God as the first fruits satisfy a longing woman. It follows:

But they went to Baal-Peor, and separated themselves to that shame.

But faith God here, What a But comes after all this? God doth manifest his delight in them as in the first ripe Grapes in the Wilderness, and the first ripe fruit, and yet behold, Oh! there's a but for all this.

It's not the greatness of God's love that is enough to engage carnal hearts: this is an evil and a fore thing to see: there was a time that God accepted of this people and delighted much in them, but now they are departed: Oh! it's ordinary for people to degenerate, though a few years since, how forward and zealous were they for God, and for Reformation, but within a while they grew cold, and dead, and and formal, and flight, and begin to leave off all their good beginnings, and decline from God, and from his Truth.

_They went to Baal-Peor._

God complains of this people as a Husband of an Adulteress: Though I delighted in her, and loved her, though she had all the content she could desire, yet she goes and forsakes me, and gives up her self to a filthy unclean Whoremaster: God takes it exceeding ill that he loses his love. And I beseech you observe: There's nothing goes nearer to an ingenious heart, than the loss of Love; he had rather lose his Money than his Love (such an one hath requited me ill for my love:) this (I say,) goes to the heart of a man, and there's nothing more grieves him than that he finds his love is ill bestowed. So certainly it goes to the heart of God that his Love should be ill bestowed upon people.

_They went to Baal-Peor._

Many loathsome and obscene things are reported concerning this Baal-Peor, (this god that was the god of the Moabites) that is unfit for chaste ears to hear, therefore we shall not mention such things; Much filthinesse was committed in the worship of this their Baal-Peor, and yet (faith God,) notwithstanding all my love to their fore-fathers, whereby they might have drawn an argument that they should have had blessings upon themselves, if they had continued in the waies of their forefathers, yet they went from me & went to Baal-Peor. From whence the Notes are:

First, The more shameful any thing is, the more abominable is it to forsake God: It's an abominable thing to forsake God, for the gaining of Heaven and Earth (if it could be gained by it) but for to forsake God for a Baal-Peor, God takes this ill: (but that we met with before.)

Secondly,
An Exposition of
Chap. 9.

Secondly, This is the evil of man's heart, That there is no evil so base and shameful, but he is ready to forsake the blessed and glorious God, that he may cleave to that. As it is reported of the Panther, that it doth love the dung of man so well that if it be hung up at a height, it will leap and skip for it till it bursts in pieces. So, many there are that are set upon such base things, that they are content to part with all good that there is in God and Jesus Christ, if they may but have them, they are content to undo themselves to all eternity.

Thirdly, So to leave God, as to give up our selves to baseness and wickedness, Oh! this is most abominable: To be over-taken with a sin is vile, but for one to give up himself, or her self to wickedness, this is abominable: and yet this is that that many are guilty of: at first perhaps sin is fair-man-nerd, and faith, Do but take some dailies with me at first, but after the soul begins to give up itself in a most desperate way in sinful courses: many an Apostate doth thus that had some comfort before in God, but now having gotten a haunt of wickedness they have lost all their comforts in God and Christ, and now faith this desperate soul, I cannot have comfort in God and Christ, and therefore I will have it in the satisfying of my lusts. Oh! my Brethren, what a shame is this? So far as thou art able to be guilty of shaming even God Himself and Jesus Christ; therefore in Heb. 6. 6. Apostates are said, to put Jesus Christ to open shame; an Apostate that leaves the ways of God and separates himself to his lusts, he doth put the Lord Jesus Christ to an open shame. Oh! how should God's people separate themselves for the Lord, and be wholly his, seeing Idolaters separate themselves to their Idols? Let them look upon themselves as a people separated for the Lord.

And their abominations were as they loved.

That is, First, as they loved, so they were guided, they were not guided by the Word, nor by any Divine Rule, not by right Reason, but according as they loved, they followed what they had a mind to, never regarding what God's mind was; The judgment is soon gone when the heart is taken with a thing. Ordinarily people love that way they go, not that way the Rule guides them to, but what way their affections carry them on in; this is a very sinful thing for men to be acted with, and carried upon, merely by the violence of their affections, and especially this is evil in the matters of God's Worship, there we may not do things as we love, that is, because we think such things are very fair and there appears no hurt in them to us, and they like us well; yea, but we must examine whether we have warrant out of the Word for that, we must not do as we love, but according as the rule is.

Secondly, They were abominable as they loved; they were turned into the very likeness of what they loved: and indeed our loves what ever they are upon doth turn us into the likeness of the thing, The understanding turns the object into a likeness to it, but the heart is turned into the likeness of its object.

Austine hath a notable expression for this, faith he, Such is every man as his love is, Doth a man love the earth? he is earth; doth a man love God? (what shall I say, faith Austine) he shall be even God too. And indeed the Scripture faith we are partakers of the Divine Nature, Oh! what care had we need have of what we love, Doest thou love a base filthy thing? then thy soul is base and filthy too. Doest thou love the glorious and blessed God? then thy soul is made like to God: Chuse therefore good objects for thy love, love the Lord, and love his holy ways, love things that are excellent and glorious, and by the loving of those things thy heart will come to have excellency and glory put upon it; but if thou lovest that which is drotsky and filthy, thou comest to have a base and drotsky heart of thy own. Mans soul is like to the Cameleon that is changed into the color of the object it looks upon.

They were abominable as they loved.

Expos. 3. Every man or woman is as he loves.

Thirdly, They were abominable as they loved. That which is here translated of the Concrete, I find it may be as well translated of the Abstract. They were abominable as their love: and so it's carried by Interpreters, that is, they were abominable as their Idols were that they did love, and their Idols were call'd Love in the Abstract; as a man calls his Wife, his Love, so they call'd their Idols their Love, and they were abominable as their Love was, that is, look how abominable Baal-Peor was, so abominable were they; so the Psalmist saith, that, they that make Idols, are like unto them.

Expos. 4. But fourthly, which I think is especially the scope of the holy Ghost here, They were abominable as they loved, (though the other may be taken in) this Scripture hath reference to that that you read in Numb. 25. 1. there you find that the people of Israel by the wicked counsel of Balaam, when they could not be cursed, yet Balaam did counsel them that they should come and bring their daughters before them, and so to intice them to commit uncleanness with their daughters, and then they should intice them to Idolatry, that was the wicked counsel of Balaam, they committed whoremong with the daughters of Moab, and they called the people to the sacrifices of their gods. So They were abominable as they loved: that is, they being inticed to bodily uncleanness, by the Moabitish women, these drew them likewise to the worship of their Idols. And so their loves to their Whores was that which drew them to this wickedness.

They were abominable as they loved; that is, they setting their love upon these wicked women, that did intice them to uncleanness, according to that love of theirs were they brought brought unto the love of Idolatry. Solomon's wives drew him to Idolatry. And it's usual for people to be of that Religion that those are that they love, if so be that their heart be taken with any, if they love any it's usual for them to be of that Religion that those are of that they love, according to their kindred, according to their friends, according to the stock that they marry in, so is their Religion. Many that have been forward in ways of Religion, and yet marry into a carnal stock that hath no favour of Religion, you shall find they will grow cold according to what their wives dispositions are, according to what they love, so their Religion either burns hotter or grows cooler; as it was usually laid upon Abab for his wickedness, such a one was his wife: and to other Kings, the daughter of Abab was his wife, his Religion was according as he loved. And my Brethren, if those who are in a false way can draw whom they love to it, then certainly those that are in the Truth should as well labor to draw those who they love to the imbracement of the Truth: Wives that are naught wil draw their Husbands to that which they love, to Idolatry, to false worship; Popish wives have drawn more husbands to their Popery, than Godly wives (I fear) have drawn husbands to the Truth; Why should not gracious Wives labor to draw their Husbands to good by love, as well as wicked Wives to draw them to wickedness by their love. And indeed those who would gain others to good must first gain their love. The women of Moab gained the love of the people of Israel, and so gained them to themselves in the matters of Religion. So if you would do any good to people, first labor to gain their love; let women that have evil husbands that they would fain gain: how would you gain them? not by reproachful speeches, but do you (though they be never so evil) walk lovingly towards them, that they may be convinced that your souls do love them, and so do you by your loving carriage gain their love, and that's the way to gain them.
to your God by that means. So divers of the women in the primitive times that had Heathenish Husbands, we have many stories of them, that by their gracious loving carriage to their Heathen Husbands they gained them to the Truth of Religion. And so Ministers, if they would gain people to God, they must gain their love, so walk before them in such a gracious, holy loving way towards them, as they may gain their love, and then they will gain their souls; if there be wrangling between Minister and People, there's little hope that they will gain and do any good among that people, for people will do as they love very much; And so your neighbors and friends if you would gain them to God any way, gain their loves to you, for it's a mighty motive in matters of Religion for people to do as they love. And thus much for this tenth Verse.

Ver. 11.

As for Ephraim, their glory shall fly away like a bird from the birth, and from the womb, and from the conception.

A Pathetical expression, he makes a stop at Ephraim. Oh Ephraim! how sad, how much to be lamented is thy condition?

As for Ephraim, their Glory &c.

By it is meant, all their pomp, riches, strength, prosperity, but especially by Glory here is meant, their numerous progeny in which they did so much glory, Ephraim (the ten Tribes) did prosper very much and were a very great multitude more than Judah. This Scripture hath reference unto the prosperous estate especially in the time of Jeroboam the Second, of which you read in 2 King. 14. Ephraim was in a very prosperous condition and had prospered very much.
Their Glory.

Children and numerous progeny, is accounted a glory unto people. That in which they do much glory, in Prov. 17. 6. Childrens children are the Crown of old men; (the Seventy) are the Glory of old men. Parents use to glory and pride themselves much in their children; (faith one) Oh! lovely pride of the Mother! So it may be said of many sons and daughters of children, Oh! the delightful pride of the Father and the Mother in such and such children.

They accounted it their Glory, For,
1. By their children themselves are multiplied. And,
2. They see what excellency soever there is in the child, they look upon it as their own, as themselves the cause of it; and men and women love themselves much, and because they are pieces of themselves therefore they glory in them. And;
3. They have some hope of continuation from Generation to Generation in their children; and this is their Glory.

But let Parents learn to give God the glory of their children, and to bring them up to the glory of God, then they may rejoice in them indeed as a great mercy of God. In Prov. 10. 1. A wise Son maketh a glad Father, but a foolish Son is heaviness to his Mother. Why is a wise Son said to be the gladness of the Father? Why? Doth not a Mother rejoice in a wise Son too? And why is a foolish Son said to be the sorrow of the Mother? Why? Doth not the Father sorrow and mourn for a foolish Son? The holy Ghost not without reason doth express himself thus; A wise Son makes the Father glad.

First; because the Father usually hath a more strict hand over his Son in his education to bring him to wisdom more than the Mother, ordinarily Mothers are tender over their children, and they cocker them and so make them fools, fools, some they cannot endure that they should suffer any hardship, and hence their children proves foolish and fit for nothing, and great forrows to them.

And secondly, A wise Son is fit for employment abroad in the world, therefore rejoices the heart of his Father; but a foolish Son is fit for nothing but to be at home in the Chimney corner with his Mother, and as he grows up grows stout and stubborn against her there. And if children be a glory to their Parents, they should labor to be such as they may be a glory and not a shame to them indeed. There are many which instead a glory to their parents are a great shame to them, as it was said of Augustus Caesar, he had three daughters that were wicked, and he used to call them his three Impostumes, and his three Cankers upon his body. And to children that should be the glory of their Parents, and the glory of a family, many times they are but the very Impostumes, and Cankers of it, and the shame to their Parents, every time they come abroad in the world. And if you expect that your children should be a glory to, you must not be a shame to them; sometimes children are a shame to their Parents, and sometimes Parents are a shame to their Children. It follows.

Their glory shall fly away like a bird.

Men glory in their outward pomp and prosperity, and their children, but both these shall fly away like a bird. That is,

1. Suddenly.
2. Swiftly.
3. Irrecoverably.

A Bird that you have in a Cage, you have kept it perhaps many months, and upon some advantage gets out and in a moment she is gone, suddenly, and then she goes away swiftly that you cannot follow her, and then Irrecoverably bly that you can never take her. All outward glory is uncertain; in Prov. 23. 5. Wilt thou set thine eyes upon that which is not? Certainly riches they make to themselves wings, and fly away as an Eagle into Heaven; fly away like a Bird, and that Bird, the Eagle, that flies so swiftly that there is no getting her again: How many lately in Ireland, and in our own Land, that have had estates in the evening, and all hath been gone away swiftly like a bird before the morning? They have been rich in the morning and have been even beggars in the evening. Let us take our hearts off from glorying in all outward excellencies, and seek that glory that is abiding, that is constant, that is everlasting: We should look upon all outward comforts now as upon the wing; if ever you had cause to look upon all the outward comforts in the world as upon the wing, you are to do it now, never make account of any settlement in any comforts in the world, at this day they are all upon the wing; we cannot reason thus. We have enjoyed such prosperity thus long, and therefore we shall still enjoy it longer: No, all outward comforts flies away like the bird: that comes in one moment that before came not in many years. In Jer. 9. 23. Thus saith the LORD. Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might, let not the rich man glory in his riches: But let him that glorieth, glory in this, That he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord, which exercise, loving kindness, judgment, and righteousness in the earth: for in these things I delight saith the Lord. Your delights are in other vain things, in estates, in bravery; but in these things I delight, saith the Lord God, and if you will glory, do you glory in those things that I myself delight in; your glory in the midst of your prosperity which flies from you like a bird, but the Lord that is the glory of his in the midst of their adversities, flies to them like a bird: (I say) the glory of the wicked in the midst of their prosperity, flies from them like a bird, and the Lord God who is the glory of the Saints flies to them in their afflictions like a bird. Thus you have this very phrase in Isa. 31. 5. As birds flying, so will the Lord of hosts defend Jerusalem; defending also he will deliver it, and passing over he will preserve it. [As birds flying] it's a metaphor taken from the bird when she sees the young ones in any danger of the Kite she flies with speed to save them, as birds flying, so will I defend Jerusalem. Your glory gets away and flies from you in your prosperity, but the glory of the Saints flies to them in their adversity.

Secondly, The Glory of their posterity shall flee away like a bird; that is, The Lord will cut off their numerous posterity, their young men, that there shall be few enough left among them. They gloried in their number. The blessing of God upon Abraham's seed came very swiftly after it began to come; and now God threatens it shall go away as swiftly: As you may find it if you observe the story of the increase of the Seed of Abraham, if you reckon it from the time of their going into Egypt: there was (you know) but three score and ten souls that went into Egypt of Abraham's seed: but when they came out of Egypt, which was but two hundred and fifteen years after they went in; for the four hundred and thirty is to be reckoned from the Promise to Abraham until their coming out of Egypt, and it is clear that there were two hundred and fifteen years from the Promise to their going into Egypt, so that there were but two hundred and fifteen years from their going in, to their coming out; and see how swiftly they did increase, from three score and ten souls (for there was no more then, but) there came out from twenty years old and upwards, men of war, six hundred thousand, three thousand, five hundred and fifty; there were increased of Abraham's seed in two hundred and fifteen years, six hundred thousand, and three thousand, and five hundred and fifty, as you may see in the book of Numbers; besides, the Levites, with the number of the males, from a month old and upwards, was twenty and two thousand; besides the women and and all the other children: and this was in that time when they were in bondage. Thus the Glory of Abraham's seed came very swiftly. And now it shall fly away like a bird, they shall decrease more than they did increase.

Godliness brings blessings swiftly, and Wickedness it causes blessings to depart away swiftly again like a bird.

It follows;

From the birth, and from the womb, and from the conception.

God's Curse follows the wicked close: sometimes in their birth; sometimes in the womb; and sometimes hindering the conception. You see how God hath us at advantage, how he hath us in his hand at every turn; he might if he had pleased smite us in our conception; if he had spared there, stifled us in the womb; if spared there, made us stick in the birth.

Therefore we learn to acknowledge God's mercies in the general, that he is patient, and long suffering, and gracious to us; let us consider at the several passages of his mercy, to bless God not only for our general preservation, but how he did preserve us in the very conception, preserves us in our mothers womb, and then in the birth, and then in the cradle, and in our childhood, in our youth, and in our middle age, in our old age, for we lie at his mercy at every point of time.

Their glory shall fly away like a bird; from the birth, and from the womb, and from the conception; of some I'll hinder the conception, some others in the womb shall die, others when they come to be born there they shall perish in their birth, and so at every time my curse shall follow them, from the conception, from the womb, and from the birth.

Yea and Fourthly, Though perhaps some may escape in the conception, and in the womb, and in the birth, yet it follows;

Use.

VER. 12.

Though they bring up children, yet will I bereave them.

The Curse of God is here threatened to pursue them, and overtake them, though they escaped the Curse that others are under.

Many think that when they have escaped some Judgment that hath come upon some others, then they are safe enough and all is well; But thy preservation from some Judgment that hath struck others, may be thy reservation to greater Judgments that God intends for thee afterwards.

2. It is a judgment to be deprived of children in the womb, in the birth, but when you have endured much pain in bearing and bringing forth your children, much labor and trouble in bringing up your children, when many a thoughtful care in the education of them, much sorrow and grief they have cost you, and now when they come to be hopeful, almost to mens and womens estate, and you think to have comfort in them, now for God to take them away, this is very sad unto parents, it goes exceeding much unto their hearts to be bereaved then; yet such things as these have befallen many heretofore; and Parents though the condition must be acknowledged very sad, yet they must submit to Gods hand in this. Perhaps some of you have in the breeding of your children endured much, and through many difficulties they have been brought till they have grown up to be almost at mens and womens estates, and perhaps they have been tenderly and hopeful, you had hoped to have had them to have been the staff of your age, and yet God suddenly hath made them fly away like a bird, perhaps be drowned, perhaps some other way, in a most uncomfortable manner the Lord hath bereaved you of them. You will say; The condition is sad more than ordinary. Therefore God calls you to Sanctifie his Name more than ordinary, to exercise grace;

Especially of unforeseen deaths.
more than ordinary, and the exercise of grace in such an extraordinary stroke of God upon you may be as great a good and comfort, as great a blessing unto you as the enjoyment of your child would have been. If a tender mother that through all her care, and pain, and labor, after breeding and bringing up a child, should have him taken away in some untimely death (as you call it) she would think her condition the saddest of any living. Be it known to you, perhaps some may be here, or know others of their friends, that have had such a hand of God upon them, be but convinced of this one thing which I know you cannot deny, That the exercise of grace suitable to this work of God that is now upon thee, or again thee, conceive it as thou wilt, I say, the exercise of thy grace suitable to this work of God is a greater good to thee than the life of thy child could have been, it could never have done thee that good as the exercise of grace may do in this condition when it is suitable to this stroke of God upon thee; and this indeed is the only way to make up any losses of children, or loss of any goods, be it a child, be it a husband or the dearest friend, a wife, or thy estate, yet the exercise of thy grace is better than the enjoyment of them all. It follows;

There shall not be a man left.

Ibereave them when they bring them up, (the words are [not a man,] and left is not in the Original) that they be not men. And sometimes God lets the children of men and women live, and yet they never come to be men, but strikes them in their understandings that they are bereaved of them so far that they never come to be men. I remember it's reported of Sr Thomas Moore that his wife was mightily desirous of a Boy, (that was her word) and she had one that proved a fool, and faith her husband to her, You were never quiet till you had a boy, and now you have one that be all his life a Boy.

Obs. 3.

Sr Tho. Moore.
I will bereave them that there shall not be a man left.

But I rather think the meaning is, I will take them away that they shall not live to be men, strong men of war. You boasted yourselves that you had so many of your children that were such valiant men of war before, but I will bereave you of them (faith the Lord.)

Yea, no to them when I depart from them.

Surely, even no to them; he puts a sureness upon this, Woe to them when I depart from them. As if the holy Ghost should say, What do I threaten this or the other evil, the great evil of all, the rise of all evils is, God's forsaking them, Woe also to them when I depart from them.

Expos. God departs from a people, or a particular soul, when he withdraws his goodness and mercy from them: and the reason why wicked men for a time do enjoy good things, it is, because God's time is not yet come to depart from them; but when God's time is come to depart from them, then all vanishes suddenly: As the light continues so long as the Sun is in the firmament, but as soon as ever it is gone it grows to be dark, the darkness of the night comes suddenly. A man hath strength and health so long as his vitals hold, but as soon as ever the vitals are struck, the carcass of the body, if that be strucken the strength and health goes. The general presence of God with his Creature keeps strength and health, it's God in the creature that keeps its comforts, and upon God's departing all vanishes and comes to nothing. Thou hast thy prosperity now, and thou thinkkest thou mayest enjoy it still; but how canst thou tell but God may suddenly depart, and then all is gone? The alteration of man's condition is not only from Natural causes, but higher, from God's departing. Carnal hearts think themselves safe if they do not see how Natural causes shall work their ruin, they see nothing, but as they have enjoyed much much good from Natural causes, so they see them working still for good to them.

Yea, but know that thy prosperity, or thy adversity depends not upon Natural causes, but upon a higher cause, though thou hast the confluence of all Natural causes working for thee as much as ever, yet if God pleases to withdraw himself thou art a lost creature.

And so it is with a Kingdom. When God pleases to depart from a Kingdom, he doth then take away Wisdom from the Wife, he gives them up to their own Counsels, to perverse Counsels, he blinds them that they cannot foresee their danger, nor see means to help them, but they shall take waives as if they intended to destroy themselves. If God do but leave them, whatsoever their wisdom was before, all their endeavors they shall be blasted and come to nothing; & in this it is we should sanctifie Gods Name, and acknowledge it, acknowledge our immediate dependance upon God for all our outward good we enjoy, whatsoever second causes we have to help our selves.

Wicked men will not take notice of him in their Comforts, they cry out of this and the other cause of their evil, but it's Gods departing from them; that is the great thing they should take to heart. Particular evils must not be taken so much to heart as this of Gods departing: Whatsoever our condition be, yet if God be not departing we are well enough, though in the fire, though in the water, I will be with thee faith the Lord. Mark the ground of the confidence of the Saints in the time of affliction: In Psalm 46. (Luther's Psalm it's called, that is, a Psalm that Luther was wont to call to his friends to sing, when he heard of any danger that they were in, or any sad thing fallen out, Come (faith he) let us sing the 46. Psalm, And mark the confidence of the Saints) We will not fear though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea. Though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof; though the beaten rage, and the Kingdoms be removed, yet all shall not trouble us. Why, what's the ground? 'The Lord of Hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge. And it's twice repeated in the same words in the Psalm, God is not gone, God is not departed, therefore no great matter what men can do unto us: But if one be in misery and have God departed, Oh! how dreadful is that condition! It was a dreadful speech of Saul, in 1 Sam. 28. 15. I am sore distressed; for the Philistines make war against me, and God is departed from me. Oh! when the Philistines make war upon a people, when there is enemies at our gates, and then our consciences shall tell us, that God is departed from us, this is a sad condition. It was a woful speech of Saul; God is now departed when I have most need of him: Woe to them then. For,

First, The root of all evil is very deep that is upon us when God is departed: It doth not lie in this particular, or that particular, we might make shift to get over them, the spirit of a man might sustain his infirmity; but the root of the evil it lies in the departing of God. And what can the Creature do when God is departed? As the King of Israel when the women said, Help O King. Saith he, If the Lord doth not help thee, whence shall I help thee? And as all creatures say, If God be departed, we cannot help, nay, the very Devil cannot help if God be gone: In 1 Sam. 28. when Saul was sore distressed and he would raise up Samuel, and the Devil came in the likeness of Samuel, saith he, Wherefore dost thou ask of me, seeing the Lord is departed from thee? No Creatures in the world, nor Devils can do good when God is departed, then the evil is only evil when God is gone. An evil may have much good in it, and God may sanctifie it for abundance of blessings to his People so long as he continues with them; but if he be gone, then the evil is only evil: And if God be gone all protection is gone, and therefore thou liest liable to all kind of evils whatsoever. And however for the present things do seem to be good that are remaining, yet the blessing of it is gone if God God be not with thee. And this evil that is upon thee it is no other but the forerunner of eternal evil, and the creture certainly then must needs sink when God is thus departed. Oh! If to be that it is so woful a thing for God to depart from a people here in this world in regard of the withdrawing of outward things and mercies from them;
what is it then for the Lord to depart for ever from the foul? What an alteration doth the departing of the Sun make? Take a delightful Sun-shine Summers day, and how beautiful is it? Now compare that with a winter's dark dismal night: What makes the difference between these two?
The presence of the Sun in the one, and the Sun is departed from the other. It is but the presence, or the departing of one creature. Oh! if the presence or the departing of one creature makes such a difference in the world, what doth the presence or the departing of the infinite God do to the foul? Let the Saints who enjoy God's presence prize it, and pray as the Prophet did, Lord leave us not.
Oh! how vain is the heart of man that will depart from God? If thou depart from him, he departs from thee too, and wo to thee whatsoever thou hast when the Lord is gone and departed from thee.

The Lord departs from particular men and women, as well as from Kingdoms and Nations, and wo to them also: when God departs from a particular man or woman
he doth withdraw his common gifts and graces, and comforts that they were wont to have, he doth curse all means for good unto them; and he gives them up unto temptations; those are the three special things that God doth in departing from any particular soul, he withdraws the common gifts and graces that they had, and the comforts that follows, and curses the means that may do them good; and gives them up to the strength and power of temptation.

You will say (it may be) Many a soul that doth desire further presence of God may be afraid out of this that God is departed. Now
Now though God (no question) may in some degree withdraw himself even from his Saints, so as they may be afraid that God is gone and departed from them; yet there's this one evidence to thee, let thy condition be never so sad, yet if thou beest a Saint (I say) this is one evidence that God is not wholly gone, if he leaves any kind of shine behind him so far as makes thy heart to be longing after him; God doth not so depart from his Saints but he leaves some luster, some little glimmering of himself behind, so much as the soul sees which way God is gone, so much as serves to draw the heart of a poor sinner after himself and makes it restless and unquiet till it comes to be in God's presence again; As when a Candle is taken out of a room, the room is darker than it was, yet there's a glimmering left behind in that, if you go quickly you may follow: When God departs from hypocrites, he departs so as he leaves nothing behind him, and they have not so much of God as makes them make after God, and so they turn away from God and seek to make up the loss of God in some other thing; but a Saint of God that hath God beginning to depart in any degree, when God is gone, he will not turn aside to seek to make up the loss of God in any other thing else, but he hath so much of God as doth strongly carry his heart after him, that he looks, and sighs, and groans, and cries after the Lord, and as David in Psal. 119. 8. there he shews us that God was in some degree departed from him, (in his own sense at least) but mark his expression there, and that one Scripture may much help any soul that is afraid that God is departed: I will keep thy Statutes: O for sake me not utterly. Oh Lord, me thinks I feel that thou art a going, I feel that I have not those comforts I was wont to have, those stirrings of thy Spirit as I was wont to have, but O Lord, yet for all this, I will keep thy Statutes (faith David) I am resolved though I should never have further comforts from thee, yet Lord I will keep thy Statutes, do with me what thou wilt, I'll I'll do what I can to honor thee, and Lord forsake me not utterly. So long as thy heart can close with this text and say thus as David, Lord, I will keep thy Statutes, though I feel not thy presence with me as I was wont to do, yet Lord I will do what I can to honor thee, though I be in a sad condition, and thou seemest to leave me, yet Lord I will keep thy Statutes. Oh Lord forsake me not utterly. So long as thou canst make use of David's expression as thine own, it is an evidence God is not so departed as he uses to depart from Hypocrites, and wicked and ungodly men. And if it be so woful a thing when God departs, truly then when God is about departing we had need cry mightily to him, both for Kingdoms and particular souls. When a Malefactor stands before the Judge and is crying for mercy, if the Judge be a rising off the Bench, then he lifts up his voice, and then shrieks out indeed, Good my Lord, then he sees if the Judge be gone off from the Bench, he is a lost man: so when we see God going, as many footsteps of God's departing from us there have been, and are, and yet still God leaves a light behind, blessed be God we have a light of God's presence, and God is no further departed from us, but so that he hath left so much of himself as we may know where to have him. It follows.

Ver. 13.

Ephraim, as I saw Tyrus, is planted in a pleasant place: but Ephraim shall bring forth his Children to the Murderers.

What, God departed? Wo to us when God departs from us. Why? but Ephraim might bless himself in his prosperous condition in which he was, Ephraim (might say) What do you speak of God's departing? We are in a good condition, it's but your melancholly fears that makes you speak of such fears as these are, we were never stronger, nor never had better fortifications, nor never prospered better than we do; and as I told you, this to build the most delightful places; it signifies also a secure place of habitation, now (faith he) Tyrus it was upon a Rock, and therefore they had little ground for Orchards, or Gardens, or Plants, but only such as were made by art, and with a great deal of cost and charges, and (faith he) As men when they are striving with Nature, if they mean to do anything at all, they will do it to purpose, and fetch out the most curious plants and bestow a great deal of cost to cover them from the coldness of the winter, as we see in places that are near the Sea, that merely by art they fetch out a place for a Garden or Orchard, they are mighty chargeable. So Ephraim was compared to such a plant, that is, God was at a great deal of charge for it, and very careful he was to preserve them. As you heard the last day, God compared his love to his people to a longing woman that longed for the first ripe fruits; so God's love was towards his people, and here God compares his respect to his people; as a man or woman would do to a tender plant that is in a Garden or Orchard that is made with abundance of cost and charge, look how careful they would be to preserve some tender plant in covering of it, and keeping of it from being mixt with the frost, (faith he) such was my care towards Ephraim, howsoever they have served me. Thus to aggravate their sins God doth shew his care of them (thus Calvin.) But faith the text for all this, though my care hath been thus over them, yet they shall bring forth their children to the murderers.

We should labor to do what we can for God though we apprehend he hath left us.

Obler. God never shews so much respect to any man or woman, but upon their forsaking of him, wrath doth follow. Yet after all this they shall bring forth their children to the murderers, as if so be their children had been born for no other end, but to satisfy the mouth of the sword, to be objects of the fury of the murderers; and those children that they shall bring forth in their war, they shall send them forth, just as if a man did send a company of beasts to the slaughter-house.
They shall bring them forth to the murderers.

Sometimes indeed in war men are led forth even by the treachery or the spight at least of Commanders in the war, only that they might be a prey to the murderers; if any wicked Officers in an Army have a spight against a man, or any particular company of men, ordinarily their spight is most against godly men in their Army, a wicked, swearing, deboil Officer that hath a spight against godly men in an Army he will set them upon the most desperate service, there enjoyn them upon pain of death to do service and not to stir, on purpose that they might be cut off, or at least hoping that they will fall into the hand of the murderer. Just in this case like to David, for his own ends in another way, that would set Uriah in the forefront and would have others withdraw from him, on purpose that he might fall by the enemy.

They shall bring forth children to the murderers:

Many children have been brought forth to the murderers even in this way. (But for the Observations from the words.)

First, The Curse of God slayes not upon the Parents, but goes forwards to the children; It's for the sin of the parents that the children are to be brought forth to the murderers, and especially it slayes not upon Idolaters, but goes to their children. There are two branches in this Note.

1. The Curse of God slayes not upon the parents, but goes towards the children; in Deut. 28. 18. Cursed shall be the fruit of thy body, and especially to the children of Idolaters. In Psal. 137. 8. O daughter of Babylon, who art to be destroyed: happy shall he be that rewardeth thee as thou hast served us, happy shall he be that taketh and dasheth thy little ones against the stones. And in Isa. 13. 18. Their Bones also shall dash the young men to pieces, and they shall have no pity on the fruit of the womb;
Exposition of Chap. 9.

2d Commandment: Their eye shall not spare children. So in the second Commandment, the Lord threatens to visit the sins of the fathers upon the children, to them that hate him, to the third and fourth generation.

Object: You will say, Why should children suffer for their parents sins?

Answer: You will kill young Vipers and Snakes though they never have stung. So, God sees guilt enough in the children of wicked men and of Idolaters, so that in Justice he may destroy them; but he doth rather take advantage to destroy them, because they be the children of wicked men and of Idolaters: As if a man commit treason, he deserves death then for his own fault; but if the King hear that his Father and Grandfather were Traitors, he shall die the rather because of them. So it's true, the children of godly people have sin and guilt in them, as well as the children of wicked men; Yea, but the children of wicked men having guilt, and so liable to God's Justice, God will take the advantage the rather to do them Justice because their parents was wicked and ungodly; and this is righteous enough with God.

And the children of Idolaters above all shall not be spared, and especially those that live to many years, because there is no sin that is so much strengthened from their Ancestors, and the example of their Forefathers as Superstition and Idolatry is; Why should we be wiser than our Forefathers? What's the argument of our superstitious vanities, but our Forefathers did thus? And therefore that's observable, That there's no Commandement in the Ten threatens God's judgments upon the children, but the second Commandement, Because that there's no Commandement broken from the example and plea of forefathers as the second Commandement; and therefore let the children of Idolaters and false Worshipers look to it, that they repent from the sins of their forefathers; Instead of pleading for the sins of your forefathers, you should fall down and humble your your souls for the sins of your forefathers, or otherwise that's the very reason that God will punish the sins of the forefathers upon the children, because their fathers did worship God in a false way, and they will do so too.

And then another Note is this, That as this is a heavy fruit of Gods Curse upon a people for the Parents sins, for Gods Curse to follow to the children: so this is a special fruit of God's Curse upon children, That they shall be brought forth to the Murderers. In times of War if you make not your peace with God it's just with God that things should be ordered so that your children should be brought forth to the Murderers. Oh! you tender hearted Mothers, who are loth that the wind should blow upon your children, look upon them and pity them, how can you endure to see their blood gush out, how can you endure to see your little ones sprawling in the streets, or upon the pikes of the Soldiers?
If your hearts cannot endure this, seek to make your peace with God, to deliver your selves and your children from this curse that hath befallen many. We know not what these wars may bring forth, what they have done in Ireland
we have heard much of, how the Parents have lookt upon their children brought forth to the Murderers; and though it's true, in many Cities and places where the Enemy hath come they have not generally (at least) broke forth to such abominable cruelties as this is, but who knows what a Summer or two may bring forth; for certainly where War continues it drives on with more and more rage.

You will say then, Oh! let us make peace upon any terms.

No, let it rather be your care to make your peace with God, that's your way to deliver your children from being brought forth to the Murderers; for if it be a false peace it may be but a further way to bring forth your children to the Murderers. It is an extremad Curse of God, in this especially, when it shall come before their very Parents fight, for so the Prophet speaks as if they should be brought forth.
forth even before them: Many of the Heathens have very Pathetical expressions about the sad condition of Parents when their children are slain before their eyes: as that of Primus Son Polites that was slain by Pyrrhus, he cries to his gods, Oh! if there be any thing in Heaven that doth take care of such things, come and revenge this (faith he,) when as Pyrrhus slue his Son before his eyes. Thou hast before the very face of the Father even sprinkled the blood of the child upon his face: he was not able to bear it though he saw himself ready to die next, but cries to the very Heavens to revenge it. And that was a very sad story of the Emperor Mauritius, that his Sons, and Wife, and Daughters were brought before his eyes and slain before him: This is the woeful evil that falls upon Kingdoms. And if your children did but understand this very text that now I am opening, they would even look upon you and cry with tears in their eyes, Oh Father! Oh Mother! Repent, repent, and seek God for your selves and for us, Oh! repent, and make up your peace with God that we may not be brought forth to the Murderers.

Oh! but if this be so great an evil for Parents to have their children to be brought forth to the Murderers here, how great an evil then is it for Parents to bring forth children to be fewel for Gods wrath for all eternity, to be the firebrands for Gods wrath to burn upon, millions of years to all eternity? You then that are Parents, and have children, look upon them and have such thoughts as these that may break your hearts, Oh! what a sad thing would it be that such a babe that came out of my womb should be a fire-brand for Gods wrath to burn upon to all eternity?
Oh! how had I need pray and bring up my children in the fear of God, lest I should be such an unhappy Father that out of my loyns, should not only bring forth a child to the Murderers, but for the Devils in Hell? But let not this discourage you that are godly to venture your children in lawful Wars, for when you shall labor to make up your your peace with God, in such a cause if you be willing to sacrifice your children to God, if thy child should be brought forth even to death, yet he is but brought forth even to Martyrdom, rather than to the Murderers: Thou shouldst rather rejoice that thou hast a child to bring forth in such a cause, then to be overprest with sorrow that the life of thy child hath been taken away with the Murderers; & some of your children though with the loss of their own lives, yet they have been a means to keep you, and us all from the hand of the Murderer, to keep the City and the Kingdom from being over-run with Tyranny, Idolatry, and all kind of Prophaneness, and it may be worth the lives of your children that good that hath been done.

Revel. 12. 11. And they overcame by the blood of the Lamb, and by the Word of their Testimony, and they loved not their lives unto the death. Therefore rejoice ye Heavens, and ye that dwell in them. They loved not their lives unto the death: therefore rejoice ye Heavens, and them that dwell therein.

When parents shall be willing to give up their children in the Cause of God, even children shall be willing to sacrifice themselves in Gods Cause, (I say having made up their peace with God) then when they love not their lives unto the death, there shall be joy in Heaven, and they shall overcome in dying even as Jesus Christ did. I remember I have read of Zenophon, when he was sacrificing to their Idol gods, he wore a Crown upon his head, and there came news to him that his child was dead, he presently pulls his Crown from off his head in token of sorrow; but then asking how he died, answer was made, That he died in the Wars: Then he calls for his Crown again. So perhaps some of you have lost your Children, nature cannot but work, yea but then ask how they lost their lives, they lost their lives valiantly in a work that did as much concern the glory of God as ever any War did, and seeing they died so, rather bless God than be so sorrowful that they fell into the hand of Murderers. It follows.

Ver. 2.
Ver. 14.

Give them, O Lord: what wilt thou give? Give them a miscarrying womb, and dry breasts.

This follows, upon this that they shall be brought forth to the Murderer's hand. Then, Lord, give them; what wilt thou give them? Give them a miscarrying womb, and dry breasts.

Expos. Some think this was an Imprecation by a spirit of Prophesy, as if the holy Prophet had his heart fill'd with the wrath of God, Give them Lord; what wilt thou? give them a miscarrying womb, and dry breasts.

But rather according to most Interpreters, I think this expression is rather an expression of Commiseration, (that is) foreseeing the lamentable condition that the ten Tribes should be in ere long, the Prophet pities their condition, and would fain come in and pray for them, and he begins, Give them, O Lord (saith the prophet,) and then he makes a stop, as if he should say, but O Lord what shall I say for them, Give them, but Lord I know not what to ask for them, I am at a stand when I consider what they are, what the many mercies they have had already, what warnings they have had, how hardened they are in their sin, and how thy word is gone forth, but Lord give them: shall I say, Lord give them deliverance, give them peace, give them prosperity still, Lord I dare not, that I cannot ask, all means have been used for to bring them unto thee, and yet they stand out against the Lord; thou knowest they are dear to me, they are of my flesh, and I should be glad that they might be saved, but thy glory is dearer to me then they are, and therefore for that I cannot pray: and therefore the Prophet prays, Give them, seeing all this misery must befall them, what, shall the enemies be let out upon them? shall they and their children be made a prey to the Murderer? Lord, rather let no more be born of them, rather cher let those children that otherwise should have been born and might have lived in their own land, Lord God, let them not be born rather than come to live to so great misery; so he doth not pray for a miscarrying womb and dry breasts absolutely, but comparatively. From whence the Notes are.
Ver. 14. the Prophete of Hosea. 263

First; That men's sins make many times God's Ministers and his Saints at a point that they know not what to say in prayer. Truly, though there hath bee a mighty Spirit of prayer through God's mercy in the Kingdom, yet considering that since God hath come to shew himself willing to deliver us, and Christ hath been coming even upon his white Horse in peace to take the Kingdom to himself, since that time such a spirit of Malignity hath appeared against Christ and his Saints as ever was in the Kingdom; it puts many of the Ministers and Saints of God to a non-plus in their prayers, and straightens their very hearts in the day of their fasting, when they are to seek God, that the Lord would give forth mercy. The Lord knows that the condition we are in is more unfit for mercy than we were at the very first day; Thus a Nation, thus particular people may put the Servants of God to a stand in their prayers, and straighten their hearts; Oh! were it that people had gone on in the embracing of Reformation as they seem'd to do at the first, Oh! how enlarged would the hearts of the Saints have been in prayer? Oh Lord! give England mercy, give England deliverance.

And then a second Note is this, That the fruitfulness, or the barrenness of the womb, it is from God. Give them, give them a miscarrying womb and dry breasts. This is from God; in Gen. 30. 2, when Rachel cried for children, Give me children or else I die, the text faith, that Jacob's anger was kindled against Rachel, and said, Am I in God's stead? Paulus Phagius (that learned man) faith, that the Hebrews have this speech, that there are four keys that are in God's hand that he gives not into the hand of any Angel.
1. The Key of the Rain; and that you have in Deut. 28. 12. The Lord shall open unto thee his good treasure, the Heaven to give thee rain unto thy Land in his season.

2. The Key of Food; in Ps. 145. The eyes of all wait upon thee, and thou givest them their meat in due season; thou openest thine hand and satisfieth the desire of every living thing.

3. The Key of the Grave, in Ezek. 37. 12. Behold, Oh my people I will open your Graves, and cause you to come up out of your Graves.

4. The Key of the Womb, and that is in Gen. 38. 22.

These four Keys God keeps in his own hand, and therefore God's providence is to be observed in this, and there ought to be a submission to his hand in it.

Thirdly, Sin may bring such evil times upon a people as better those who live to such times had not been born, or died before those times had come; Give them a miscarrying womb and a dry breast, if they should have children that should live to endure all the miseries of those times that are coming, they had been better not to have been born, or have died long before this time faith the Prophet, We must take heed of wishing this upon every little affliction that doth befall us, as it is the frowardness of many people even with God himself, that if their children do but anger them to wish they had never been born, or cold in the mouth many years ago, I wish I had gone to your Grave: Parents many times are ready to wish their children that they had never been born of them; but this is frowardness against God himself, and wickedness; those that are so ready to wish their children had not been born, they are the least sensible of the sin that doth cause the affliction upon which they do wish such a thing as that is.

Give them a miscarrying womb, and dry breast.

First; There may be either such miserable slaughters as that.
that Parents might even wish that they never had any Children.

Or Secondly, They may live under such cruel tyranny for their souls and bodies.

Or thirdly, They may be drawn from God by false Religion, and so may be in a condition worse than if they had not been born.

Hence Parents to whom God denies children or takes them away, they should quiet themselves in God's dispose, especially in such times as these are: it may be God hath taken away your children to deliver them from greater evils: as in the house of Jeroboam, there was but one child that had any good in it, and faith God, That child shall die, and gives the reason, Because it had some good in it. So that God takes away many that he hath the most love unto, and lets others to live that he hath not so much love unto.

Yes, (some may say) If I were sure that their souls were safe, though God doth take them away, if I were sure of their salvation, then I would be content.

That's true indeed, If your children were saved, what hurt is that to be taken away here and received to Heaven, and there to live for ever with Christ, not to sin, or sorrow more: but howsoever you may satisfy your selves in these three things.

First, That they are under an indefinite promise, though not an universal:

Secondly, Suppose he should not be saved, then it were better that he should be taken away than to live to sin more against God, he might have lived to have done a great deal of mischief in the world if he were one that God did not intend to save, and therefore quiet thy self; However God sees further than thou dost, either when he denies thee Children, or takes them away in such times as these are.

Further, In times when publick evils are threatened, they are are good times to die in; If better not to be born in evil time, then certainly it is no great evil to die in evil times. Good men are taken away from the evil to come. As if a woman had her breast to be launc’d or cut off, would not the tender Father take the Children out of the room in the mean time? Who knows but God may have the breast of his Church (our Mother) even to be cut off for a time, yet may suffer heavier things than ever the hath done, and if God shall take away his tender Children that will not be able to bear such a light as that, what great evil is it? As we reade of God towards Moses, when Gods Glory was to pass by, he puts Moses into the hole of a Rock; and truly the graves of the Saints are but as the holes of the Rock till the Glory of Gods Justice passes by a people.

And thirdly, If the sins of Parents may be the cause of such things to Children as better they had not been born, let those that have Children take heed that they lay not up such wrath for an Inheritance for their Children, as that their Children afterwards should even with they never had been born of such Parents, especially if Parents be careless in the education of their Children not to bring them up in the fear of the Lord, hereafter their Children may curse the time that ever they were born of them, and say, Oh! that I rather had been of the off-spring of Vipers, or the generation of Dragons than that I had come of such Parents, Oh! that my Mother had had a miscarrying womb, or that she never had had breasts to give me suck. Certainly this will be the voice of many Children against their Parents one day: Look to it that there be never a Father nor Mother in this place that may give cause to their Children thus to wish they had never been born of such Parents. And certainly if the enduring of sorrows and misery in this world may put them into such a condition, what then will sin and being the authors of miseries to others do? Those Children that are abominable and wicked in their lives, and
and are causes of mischief to others, how much cause is it that it had been said, that it had been better his Mothers womb had miscarried: as it was said of Jude, that it had been better that he had never been born: And so it may be said of abundance at this day, what abundance of evil are some at this day the cause of unto others? What woful disturbances, distractions and calamities do some men bring upon a Nation? had it not been better that their Mothers wombs to have miscarried, and their breasts not to have given them such?

And again, What horrible wickedness are some guilty of? How many Mothers this day have cause to say, Oh! that my womb had miscarried of such a Child! Oh that my breasts had never given such a Child suck! Oh that ever one should come out of my womb to do so much mischief, to take up Arms to fight against his Country, to fight against the Saints, to bring in Slavery and Tyranny, that ever any out of my womb should have a hand in such a mischievous way as this is! Oh! these breasts of mine every time I look upon them, I wish they had never given such a one suck, for it may be they will suck my blood too. Certainly if ever there were a time to wish their wombs had miscarried, and their breasts never given suck, these are the times many may do so. And this seems to have allusion to that which Christ saith in Luke 23:19. Blessed are the wombs that never bear, and the paps that never gave suck. I say, concerning many particulars in the Kingdom in this time, it might have been said, Oh! blessed had the womb been that such men were in, had they never been born, and the paps that they suckt, that they had never given suck. This would not have been an interpretation, but a good prayer, if it could have been foreseen, if any Prophet could have foreseen this, that thou shouldst have been a Child, and he should have been an Actor in so much mischief as hath been done in this Kingdom of late, if any Prophet could have foreseen this, thou wouldst have said Amen to his.
his prayer, Lord give this woman a miscarrying womb and dry breasts that she might never have born nor given suck to such an one. It follows.

Ver. 15.
All their wickedness is in Gilgal; for there I hated them.

W HAT this Gilgal was I opened in the 4th Chapter at the 15. Verse, it was a very famous place for many remarkable things: Stones were set up in remembrance of so great a mercy in coming over Jordan, and there was the first Passover that ever they had, and there they were circumcised, and the Lord said unto Joshua, This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you, from whence it had the name; they were not circumcised in all that time in the Wilderness, from whence it was called Gilgal, because the reproach was rolled away; I shewed abundance of mercy to them in Gilgal, there they eat the fruit of the Land, and there the reproach was roll'd away, and the monument of my great mercy in bringing them over Jordan; but now they have turned this place to the most abominable place in the Country, for because there were such great things done in Gilgal, they thought that it was a holy place, and therefore they might justify their superstitious ways, though God afterwards did choose another place for his Worship, yet they thought to sacrifice and worship in Gilgal, they thought it might be justified, because it was a place where such great things were done. Now faith God, I never intended that, all their wickedness is in Gilgal.

Superstitious men are proud to put holiness upon places that have had remarkable things done in them in reference to Religion. This phrase we have had occasion to meet with before, and therefore I pass it.
All their wickedness.

That is, Their chief wickedness, as if God should say, there is a great deal of wickedness among them; there are Murders and Thefts, and abundance of other evils, the breaches of the second Table; but yet above all, their wickedness is at Gilgal, they think to make use of that place where I shewed so much mercy to them, they think to justify their superstitious worship, but I ple have them know that I hate this, There I hated them faith God, I abhor this that they think to be justified by. So that the Notes are.

Above all sins, the sin of Idolatry is that that God looks upon as the great wickedness for which he doth hate and abhor a people. Because in that sin men think by their own waies of worship to make God amends for their wicked waies, and present their own waies of worship, to justify themselves in all other kind of wickedness.

And again: For men to abuse that wherein God shews mercy: For them to take advantage or occasion by that to turn it into sin against God, this is that which God hates. For there was much mercy they met withal at Gilgal, and they made God's mercy an occasion to their wickedness. To make that which should engage us to God to be an occasion of wickedness against God this is abominable in God's eyes: As you reade in the Law, that you must not seath a Kid in his mothers milk; that which is the milk to preserve the Kid, that must not be a means for a second death, to seath or boil it in faith God, that's unnatural, and but cruelty; so for us to deal with God to take those things that should be a means to engage our hearts further to God to be occasion of further sinning against God, that's abominable; there faith God, I hated them.

Concerning Gilgal. Their Idolatrous Priests told them (as 'tis propable) that that place was a holy place, and surely God that had appeared so to them there would accept cept of their services in that place rather than any other, and so though God had after chose another place, yet still they doted upon this place, [Gilgal] and that which was so famous for Gods Worship became as infamous for superstition and wickedness.

Polanus upon the text compares that Town in Germany, [Wittenberg] to this Gilgal. Those places where the Lord hath been more gracious to people, the Devil seeks to corrupt those places most of all; as in Wittenberg was the beginning of Reformation by the means of Luther, and now (faith he) the Devil hath made it the Theater of divers Heresies, and still makes it more and more; that very place which was a place of Gods mercy to the Country: so here, that place that was the greatest place of mercy, is here the greatest place of wickedness; the Devil envies it so much the more, and all their wickedness is here.

All their wickedness. That is, the chief wickedness, their Superstition and Idolatry is the chief and the great wickedness that provokes God against a people; not only because of the presumption in it, but because it’s an Inlet to all other kind of wickedness. Hence observe:

1. Where there is false worship in any place all manner of wickedness follows. And people do most stick unto their superstitious waies more than to any thing, and therefore that’s the chief wickedness, yea and they think to satisfie God with those waies for their other sins, All their wickedness is there.

A further Note from hence is, That to sin in face of mercies, where there are the Testimony of Gods abundant mercies, that is very abominable to God. That’s a great aggravation of sin, to sin in the face of the testimonies of the mercies of God, what, where so much mercy, yet here wicked and abominable? Doth God fill thy family, thy chamber, thy closet, thy bed, thy shop with the Testimonies of his mercy? Take heed how thou finnest there where there are abundant Testimonies of Gods mercy to witness against thee, and to aggravate thy sin.
But I find some Interpreters, and that not one or two, but many, (and that makes me speak of this Interpretation) that refer this wickedness to the casting off the Government that God had appointed, and the bringing in of a new Government. At Gilgal was the place where they would have Saul to be their King, and cast off the Government by Judges that God had appointed among them. Gilgal was the place; now this was the ground of all their other obstinate wickedness, and God remembers this a long time after and faith, All their wickedness is in Gilgal, and there I hated them.

From hence the Note is this, That it's a hateful thing to cast off the Government that God would have us under, it is hateful to God; the Jews had both their Civil and Ecclesiastical Government by Divine Institution, they were both mixed in one there. And though now we have not our Civil Government by Divine Institution, but it's left to the Creation of man, according as in prudence men in several Countries shall think best; but Ecclesiastical Government certainly is as much by Divine Institution now, as ever it was, and it must be so, because it is spiritual, and nothing can work in a spiritual way upon the inward man but that which is by Divine Institution, therefore whatever the Government be (I will not meddle with the particulars) yet we must take heed how we cast off that which is appointed by God, for that's hateful, there I hated them; we had need therefore search and examine to find what that is, and if we think it be not so clear as their Government was to them, we must take so much the more pains to examine, and not think it long that there is so much time spent in seeking to find out what the Government should be, do not think it a light matter: many people they think it but a circumstance, and things that we need not trouble our selves so much about, and why should there be so much time spent in searching it out; Learn from hence to look upon it as a great matter, as a matter upon which the welfare

As a thing of great consequence.

Obs. 3.

Civil and Ecclesiastical Government united in Israel.

Civil Government Ecclesiastical Government
fare or the evil of a Kingdom doth much depend, for so it was here, faith God, because they cast off the Government that I would have, there I hated them. Thus you may take in both, the meanings, both the Testimonies of Gods mercies in Gilgal at first, and the place where they cast off my Government and would have another, I hated them there faith God.

Obs. Some sins provoke God to hatred.

Again, There I hated them.] There are some sins that provoke God to anger, and some to grief, but some to hatred, and that’s dreadful when our sins shall provoke hatred, the Lord hates the works of iniquity. This is the great difference between the sins of the Saints and others, the sins of the Saints may anger God, may grieve God, but the sin of others they provoke God to hatred. I hated them.

Obs. God manifests his displeasure in the places where sin is.

Again, There I hated them.] (There) Sometimes God manifests his hatred in the very places where men do sin against him. As a mans spirit will rise if he comes to a place where he hath been wronged by any; If you should come into the very place where your children have been murdered, or wives ravished, would not you have your hearts rise with indignation, in this place was my child murdered, in this place was my child ravished; so faith God, every time he looks upon Gilgal, Oh! here was this wickedness committed, there I hated them. Hence it is that many guilty consciences dare not go into the place where they have committed sin, There I hated them.

It follows:

I will drive them out of my house.

They shall remain no longer in a Church-State, they shall remain no longer so to be in my House.

Those who under the colour of being under the Church of God, yet live in the ways of wickedness, God will unchurch them even in regard of the outward appearance of a Church.
I will drive them out of my house.

God cannot endure wickedness in his house; neither should we; God accounts it his dishonor to have wickedness and wicked men in his house, and so should we, as in the Church, ungodly men should be driven out of the house of God; we must not make God's house an Hogs-fly, an unclean place for all Swine to come in, but they should be driven out as Christ drove out the Buyers and Sellers out of the Temple; yea, and so should all Christians drive out of their families wicked and ungodly servants: Psal. 101. 7. He that worketh deceit shall not dwell within my house (faith David). And he that telleth lies shall not tarry in in his sight. It's a dishonor.
a dishonor for any who make profession of Religion, that though themselves be not scandalous in their own lives, yet there are those in their house that live scandalously, they have as wicked servants in their houses as any; this is a dishonor to Religion: God drives out wickedness out of his house, and do you do so to yours.

And I will love them no more.

Expos. By [Love] here is meant, the communication of outward good things, for that carnal hearts account to be the only love of God: Indeed if they may have but outward prosperity here in this world, they make that an argument of God's love unto them: Well (faith God) though you have had many such kind of arguments of my love, (such fruits of my love) yet I will love you no more, I will take away all those privileges and good things that you have enjoyed, there are privileges and good things that come from no other love but that which may be taken away; Oh! let not us be satisfied with those, let us be satisfied with nothing else but that which comes from everlasting love. You may have your outward estates, you may have comely Bodies, Health, Strength, Success in your labors, comings-in plentifully, yea, you may have Church Privileges, and yet all this not come from the everlasting love of God, that can never be taken away; these fruits of God's love may be taken from you, and God may say as concerning all these, I will love you no more: but there are fruits of love, the sanctifying Graces of God's Spirit, the fruits of Electing love, and God can never say of these, I will love you no more.

No more.

After many deliverances that this people had in a way of love, God resolves with himself that he will have done with them, he will love them no more, he will deliver them
no more: God may withdraw the fence of his love from his people for a while, but he manifests his love again, the afflictions of the Saints they are but a little cloud that soon passes over, the Sun soon breaks in again upon them, and Love shines; but the Sun of the wicked and ungodly sets, and never rises again: this is dreadful when a man's ruin, or a peoples ruin is thus seal'd by God, whatever mercies you have had heretofore, yet now there's an end of all, Adieu mercie, adieu love, I had gracious manifestations of them once to my soul, but they are now gon, I must never enjoy them more, now God hath changed his administrations towards me, I must expect nothing but wrath, the hand of his sore displeasure to cause ruin, and to be sunk everlastingly: Oh! let thy provocations of God be no more, do not thou ad unto them; I have dealt fally with God, dallied and trifled with the Lord, many times promising fair, but when I was delivered then have dealt wickedly with thee; but no more Lord: Oh! take heed, if thou add'st any more unto thy wickedness left that this dreadful sentence be pronounc'd in Heaven against thee, I will love thee no more. The words are in the Original, I will add no more; I have done enough already, I will do good to this wretched creature no more; my Goodness and Mercy hath had their turn, no more; Spirit strive with them, no more; Ordinances, no more do them any good; Mercy meddle no more with them, I will love them no more.

All their Princes are revolters.

This is a very strange expression: What all? Yes, even from Jeroboam to Hosea's time, every one of them, the Princes of Israel were wicked men, for two hundred and fifty yeers space, in all successions every one were naught, and falle, and ungodly, all were revolters. It's an elegant Paranomasia that in the Original, Princes revolters, the words have a greater elegancy in the Original than in our English;
English; the Seventy they turn it by this word, Men that could not be persuaded, they were all of them men that could not be persuaded; they were set upon their own way, their own ends, and would have their own politick fetches, and let Prophets, let any of the Godly come to shew them the mind of God, they were resolved in their way, they would not be persuaded, but were willful, and they would have this way, and whatever came of it they would venture their lives and the loss of their Kingdom but they would have it, in a desperate way they were set upon their wills, some of it what would they would go on in this way.

Men that are great in Power and Authority they think it a dishonor to them to be persuaded to alter their minds, but rather will go on desperately to the ruin of themselves, and the ruin of their Kingdoms, rather than they will hearken to counsel; they were all of them men that would not be persuaded: and Luther upon the place hath this expression (faith he) Being lift up in the pride of their hearts by their Power that they had, they would be above the Word it's self, they think it much to have their hearts come under the Authority of the Word. This is the wickedness of mens hearts when they grow great they swell above the Word of God.

They are all wicked, all of them revolters.

Some of them there were that made some kind of shew at their first coming in, when they came first to the Crown they gave great hopes (some of them) that they would have better times than they had before, and that things that were evil in former Princes Reigns would now be reformed, but within a while they went all the same way; you know Jehu, and so some others went in a fair way at first, but they all turned to be revolters; from whence our Notes are: First, See what Creature Engagements are; see what engagements will work in the hearts of men when they are engaged in their honors, and in their preferments, in their great places of Dignities and Powers, and Profits and Gain, see what they will do: evil Princes being engaged and afraid of losing their power; if any should go to Jerusalem to worship, they all went in one stream, not one of them was taken off from their great Engagements; indeed many in smaller matters may be taken off to God, but if it come to a great matter, then none; perhaps some poor Ministers that had little livings (you know) heretofore, they would be taken off, and see the Truths of God, and the sinfulness of Ceremonies; but where did your Deans, and Bishops? where did any of the Prelates that had great Engagements? they would never see the Truth that now almost every body sees, their great Engagements hindered them. And so the great Engagements of Princes hindered them though the Truth was clear enough.

Secondly; This is brought as the cause of the evil of the People, they were all wicked, no marvel though the people were so, According to peoples interests so they are, as they see those above them go that have power over them, that way people will go. Ephraim was wicked, because all their Princes were revolters. Those that are in places of power they drive the people along before them, for (I say) God hath little honor in the world but as it sutes in mens Interests, according as they have Interest this way or that way.

Thirdly, They are all Revolters.

From this the Note is this, That Princes though they should be used with reverence, yet must not be flattered, but their sins must be shewed plainly unto them, [They are all Revolters] though they can hardly hear it. Touch the Mountains and they will smoke, touch the great men, reprove but them, and presently the heat of their wrath rises and they smoke even with indignation. But yet those that are faithful about them they should trust God with their places, and estates, and with their lives; Oh had we but those about Princes that would deal faithfully and shew to them how far the guilty 游击队 of blood may be upon them, and the evil of it might be upon them. Certainly it would be otherwise with us than it is at this day: had we but Latimers and Deerings (that worthy Preacher in Queen Elizabeth's time) It's said of Latimer, that sending a Book to King Henry the Eighth, he writes in the first Page of it, Whoremongers and Adulterers God will Judge: and Deering in his Sermons even before the Queen speaking of disorders of the times, and these and these things are thus and thus, and you sit still and do nothing: and again, even before her face, preaching to her, (faith he) may we not well say with the Prophet, It's the mercy of the Lord that we are not consumed, seeing there is so much disobedience both in Subjects, and in Prince: Certainly much much good might come had we men of such Spirits as heretofore have been. All their Princes are Revolters.

Note

Fourthly, When Princes one after another are wicked, there's little hope of good then to a people. The Saints under the persecution of one they groan and cry to God, but another comes and oppresses them more. We had need therefore pray for those in high places, for Princes, for it concerns much the people, as we shall see more after. It follows.

VER. 16.

Ephraim is smitten, their root is dried up, they shall bear no fruit.

Ephraim is smitten.] God had threatened Ephraim long before, but now he is smitten; not threatened only, but smitten.

The phrase Observe this Note, (the manner of the phrase is as if he were smitten from Heaven by a Thunder-bolt, in a dreadful manner God himself smote him) observe this, God will not always forbear sinners, at last God smote; he threatens a long time, but he smote at last: God may be a long time bending his Bow, and making his Arrows ready, and preparing paring the instruments of death, but at length he smote;
and when he smote he smote terribly. How sad is the condition of a wicked man who hath had many warnings, and much patience of God hath been shewed towards him;
and at length this is the news that one neighbor tells another. Oh! such a man is smitten of God, the wrath of God hath pursued and hath over taken such a man, the fearful stroke of God is upon him, and this certainly will be the news of wicked impenitent sinners, secure sinners, this will be the news that will be told of you, such a one is smitten; Oh! and what sad reports are there at this day in all Countries about us, even through the world, what's the news throughout the world almost but this (the Christian world) England is smitten, the Lord hath smote them? the Lord hath smote us with a dreadful stroke and still he continues smiting of us. That Scripture in Isa. 5. 25. is made good upon us this day, The anger of the Lord is kindled against his people, and he hath stretched forth his hand against them, and hath smitten them, (mark what follows) The Hills did tremble (Oh that our hearts did) and their carcases were torn in the midst of the streets: (and so it hath been with us:) And for all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is stretched out still: And thus it is with us. And the principal cause that is there given of such woful smiting, it is as you may observe in the 20. and 23. verses, the crookedness of mens spirits in turning things quite contrary and cross to that which God would have them. As thus, They call evil good, and good evil: they put darkness for light, and light for darkness; bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter: Justifying the wicked, and taking away the righteousness of the righteous. This is the cause of this smiting, and never was there such perverseness in the hearts of men to turn things quite cross, to cry out of Truth for Falsehood, to cry out of the Waies of Christ as the Waies of Sedition, and the great troublers of the Kingdom, to cry out of the Saints that are for peace, as the great Stirres up of the Kingdom, and to ju-Malignants escape: Faithful men are discountenanced.

The Lord hath smitten us this day as he did the people in 1 Kings, 14. 15. The Lord shall smite Israel as a reed is shaken in the water, (and then it follows after) he shall root them out of the good Land. So it's here, Ephraim is smitten, and his root dried up. The Lord this day hath smote us as a reed is shaken to and fro, that which men cried up at first, they cry down again presently after, and forward for a little while, and then quite the other way again, and wavering and unconstant in all their ways, and know not indeed what they would have; thus the Lord hath smote us, yea the Lord hath smitten us so as he hath fetched blood, fetched blood, yea, the Lord hath smitten us by those that should protect us; and that's a foresmiting, to smite us by the hand of such as should protect us; that threatening that is denounced in Zech. 11. 6. Oh how is it made good upon us this day; faith the text there, I will no more pity the inhabitants of the Land faith the Lord; but lo, I will deliver the men every one into his neighbors hand, and into the hand of his King, and they shall smite the Land; and out of their hand I will not deliver them. It's a very strange Scripture, I know not the like in all the Book of God, God threatens to smite this people, and how? Oh! this is a foresmiting, I will deliver every one into his neighbors hand, and they shall smite one another, and I will deliver every one into the hand of his King. Why is it so great an evil to be delivered into the hand of our neighbor, and into the hand of our King? truly at this time it seems it was: Oh! the Lord smites us this day, he smites us sorely by giving us up to smite one another. We smite one another with the tongue, in Jer. 18. 18. Come, let us smite with the tongue say they. When was there ever such smiting with the tongue as there is now? yea, even good!

good men smite one another: There was a time when the Prophet desired to be smitten by the Righteous, in Psal. 141. 5. Let the Righteous smite me (faith the Prophet) it shall be as Oyl to my head; but now we may justly cry out to God, Lord, let not the Righteous smite me; the very smiting of the Righteous is a forerunner. Smiting this day than the smiting of enemies, to smite with the tongue, yea and worse too, in Isa. 58. 4. In the day of their fast, they smite with the fist, and smite with the pen, that is a forerunner sometimes than smiting with the sword. And smite with the sword too, for Brother is against Brother, and Father is against Child, and Child against Father, and this is a forerunner of Gods smiting the earth with a Curse, in Malac. 4. 5, 6. verses, the very close of the old Testament, there Elias is prophesied to come, and to turn the hearts of the Fathers to the Children, and the hearts of the Children to the Fathers, lest (faith the text) the Lord come and smite the earth with a Curse. Oh! that Elias might come among us otherwise? What can be expected but the Lords smiting the Land with a most dreadful Curse? When was Fathers against Children, and Children against Fathers as now, and that in matters of Controversie? It was wont to be a Proverbial Speech among the Jews, when they had any knotty Controversie that they could not untie, When Elias shall come, then we shall come to know the meaning of this. We may say this day, well, because we see what Controversies there are and what differences of this & the other way & judgment, the Lord Christ (whose forerunner Elias was to be) he will come ere long, and he will open all things to us, the Messias will come again and tell us all, and satisfie us in all our difficulties, and put an end to all our disputes; But for the present the Lord smites us, not only by the sword, but he smites us as he smote the men of Sodom, with blindness, and that Curse threatened in Deut. 28. 28. is even upon us, The Lord (faith the text there) shall smite thee with blindness, and astonishment of heart, and thou shalt grope at... noon daies, as the blind gropeth in darkness, and thou shalt not prosper in thy waies, and thou shalt be only oppressed and spoiled ever more, and no man shall save thee. Oh my Brethren! how is this fulfilled at this day? with what blindness, and madness, and astonishment are the people of the Land smote? If it were not the smiting of God to smite men with blindness, it's impossible but they should see what should be done in such a time as this is, and you are only oppressed: Indeed now almost every man in the Kingdom cries of being oppressed and spoiled ever more.

We thought that when spoylers and oppressors were amongst us that we were safe, and well when it was over. Oh! but it is renewed again, and then come the spoylers the second time, and the third time, spoyling ever more, and this is the fruit of God's smiting men with blindness, and madness: And yet who is it that returns to him that smites him? But Lord, seeing thou art a smiting, Oh! that thou wouldest smite once more, smite these rocks of ours, these hearts of ours, if thou wilt but smite there, that might free us from other strokes, that there might gush out tears of repentance, smite there that we may every man smite upon his thigh; Oh! that we may smite upon our own hearts. But it follows:

Their Princes are Revolters: and Ephraim is smitten.

Only a word more from the connexion of these two, All their Princes are revolters: and Ephraim is smitten.

From thence the Note is, If God leaves those who have the chief Government in their hands to revolt, the people then will be smitten. Oh! pray much for them, and let not them that have the chief Government in their hand think much that people enquire into their way, and that they use all means that they can to keep them upright; for if they should revolt they would not only undo themselves, but undo us, it concerns us to enquire how it is with them, and to be sollicitous licitous about them, and they must not bid us that are beneath them to let them alone and meddle with our own business, and follow that which concerns us, certainly it concerns us much what they do: were it indeed that if they miscarried they only should be smitten, then we had left to do to look after them; but if they revolt we are smitten: If a child should in all humility and reverence beseech his father to leave off such and such a sinful way, or to take heed of it that he be not carried by such and such counsels, if his father should say, Meddle you with what you have to do: the child might well answer, Oh father! I hear in the Word of God, that God doth visit the sins of the fathers upon the children, and I may feel of these sins of yours when you are dead and gone; therefore I beseech you, Oh father, consider what you do? (I say) the same might be answered if we should Petition and labor with our Governors in all humility to take heed of any evil Counsel; and if they should bid us look to what concerns us, we may well answer, We have heard in the Word that when the Princes are Revolters, the People are smitten, that if Governors should any way revolt from any former Protestations the People is like to be smitten; it is we know from the revolting of many of our Lords and Members of that High Court that we have been smitten so as we have been, Now many of them have revolted to the Enemy? and these that have been the Members of that Court, (I say) their revolting have been the cause of such a sore smiting which we have had.

Further: It cannot free Ephraim from being smitten; smitten because their Governors are evil, they cannot excuse their sin by that: Perhaps the People would plead thus: What could we do? we could not help it, those that were in Government they enjoy such things, and if we did not obey them they would undo us, we were not able to bear their smiting of us; therefore we were forced to yield: Oh! better endure the smiting of man than the smiting of God, it is a fearful thing to fall into the Hand of the Living God.

The apprehension of Gods hand smiting is that which should humble the hearts of sinners very much. It's a notable Scripwhich you have in 2 Chron. 26. 20. of Uzziah, that when he saw that he was smitten, though he were stout and proud before, yet when he was smitten he made haste out of the Temple. It's no longer standing out, for the Lord hath smitten. So when we apprehend God smiting, it is no standing out against the great God, but we had need make haste to reform. And thus much for this expression: It follows.

Their Root is dried up.

But though we be smitten we hope we may grow, we may lose our leaves and some of our boughs, but we hope that we shall spring again: perhaps there are the vain apprehensions of some men, but never look to making their peace with God, no faith God, I'll not only smite to take off your leaves and branches, but I will smite the very root, that shall be dried up: There's difference between the pruning and lopping off a tree, and the drying up of the root of it, there may be help so long as the root remains alive. I will never trouble my self any further (faith

God) with them, I have already smote off their boughs, and that doth no good, I will dry up the very root now.

It's a great aggravation of Gods smiting when he smites at the root, every smiting it is not a drying up of the root, it is the base unbelief of our hearts, the discontentedness, fro-wardness, fulleness of our vile spirits that makes us thus to conclude almost upon every stroke of God, that he intends our undoing, if he doth but smite us so as a few leaves are but shaken off, or that our branches are but shak'd, we are presently ready to conclude that God intends to blast us, and to dry up the very root, and ruin us utterly; how of-disordered passions causes sadder conclusions than needs of times.

Oh! in our unbelief, when by temptations we have been shaken and the leaves of our comforts have been shaken off, (our enlargements) and the like, how often we conclude, Oh! the Lord is coming against me, and he will certainly blast all, all that I seem to have, the very root of all my hopes and comforts will presently be blasted. Oh! this (I say) is the evil of our hearts, it comes from our fulleness, frowardness, and unbelief and the like, how often we conclude, Oh! this (I say) is the evil of our hearts, it comes from our fulleness, frowardness, and unbelief. At these words, how often we conclude, it may be God intends only to prune thee and to take away superfluities, that so the sap may go down more at the root, that thou maest have more Humility, and Self-denial, and Faith, that thou maest have more exercise of the Root-Graces, Humility, Patience, Faith, Self-denial, and God perhaps smites only to make the sap go down more to the Root-Graces, though thou concludesst that he will dry up the Root presently. In this smiting wherewithal the Lord hath smote us, we hope that he intends not to dry up the root, but we may say of it as in Isa. 27. Hath be smitten him as he smote those that smote him? or is he slain according to the slaughter of them that are slain by him? The godly party may suffer much, but I make no question but the ungodly party hath suffered as much, and by this shall the iniquity of Jacob be purged; and this is all the fruit to take away his sin, and in the 4. verse God tells us, that fury is not in him, God is fain to make an Apologie to his people when he is a smiting, though I smite you, yet not so as those that smite you, but in the day of the East wind I blow the rough wind, and fury is not in me, but by this shall the iniquity of Jacob be purged: and this is all the fruit thereof to take away his sin.

But God hath his time to dry up the roots of sinners, and the roots of Nations. 1. God dries up the roots of many that have made fair profession in former times, they have had no other Root but only Parts, and common Gifts, and Morality raised, and this Root is dried up; this day many fair and glorious Professors, how are they this day blasted!
sapless, dry spirits, and useless in the world in this time when there is so much service required of them? And by being dried up, what are they but prepared for the fire? Old withered, sapless Professors (I say) whose root is dried up they are fitted for nothing but the fire, they are like those in Jude, corrupt trees, trees that are corrupt in the Autumn: Thus it is with many Professors at the time when God expects fruit, now they are sapless, now they are corrupt fruit; they are dried up by the root, and what are they fitted for but for the fire?

And then God hath his time to dry up the root of Nations, in Isa. 5. 24. Now we might seek to understand what the Root of a Nation is, but I think we need not in this place, because it is sufficient only for the Metaphor, to shew that God doth not only afflict a Nation, but intends the utter ruin and destruction.

Yet a word or two thus.

Quest. What was the root of Ephraim?

Answ. The Covenant that God made with him, that was his Root in the first place. And when God intends to break his Covenant with them, (because they broke theirs) then he dries up the Root; and therefore in the next Chapter you shall find that God charges them with dealing falsely in making a Covenant.

And then, the Godly among a People are as the Root of that People, in Isa. 6. 13. But yet it shall be a tenth, and it shall return, and shall be eaten: as a Tule Tree, and as an Oak, whose substance is in them when they cast their leaves: so the holy feed shall be the substance thereof. So here, the holy seed shall be the substance of it. The holy seed in a Kingdom is as the root and substance of it; and yet such is the wretchedness of men, that what do they do but in stirring against them, they would root out the very Root of the Nation.

And the vigor and power of the fundamental Laws in a Kingdom is as the Root of it, from whence flourishes all their outward Peace and Comfort. And
And the blessing of God upon the wisdom and faithfulness of those that are put into place, that's as the Root of the good of a Nation, in these things especially consists the Roots of a Nation. We hope that God will not wholly dry up our Root, only let us take heed of this; though there be indeed a difference between the Covenant of God with the Nation of the Jews, and any Covenant that God makes with any Nation at this day, yet if we be false in the Covenant that we make with God, this may root us out; let us look to it that the vigor and power of the Fundamental Laws of the Kingdom be maintained, and that the godly be maintained, let us not set our selves to root out them, for in so doing we do but seek to root out our selves, and let us pray that the blessing of God may abide upon those that are in place of power, and while these things continue we may hope that the Lord intends, though he may scatter and break us in pieces, yet that there may a Root stay, and there is little question (I think we may make) that God will preserve our Root howsoever; and that there will be a Root of the Saints that shall flourish till Jesus Christ comes again, The Root of the Righteous shall not be moved; though the Righteous may be lost from all their outward comforts, yet their Root must not be moved, that lies deeper than my Creature-power is able to reach unto. But there is a Root, Oh! that God would dry up that, a Root that the Scripture speaks of, a Root of Bitterness, that brings forth Gall and Wormwood, Oh! what bitter fruit doth that Root bring forth! Oh! that God would dry up that root. It follows.

They shall bear no fruit.

They would bring forth fruit to themselves, and seeing they would bring forth no other fruit but to themselves, they shall bring forth no fruit (faith God.) How happy were we if God would lay the root of bitterness (that we speak (pack of) as he said of the Fig-tree, Never fruit grow on it more, Oh! that that Curse of God might be upon the root of bitterness that there is in the hearts of many, that God would say, we shall never hear the evil Language, the evil Speeches of People, and the bitter expressions as here-tofore we have done.

Yea though they bring forth, yet will I say even the beloved fruit of their Womb.

The word translated Beloved fruit, it is Desirable, the Desires of their womb; Children are the desires of the womb, that is, women are very strong in their desires after them, Give me children or else I die (saith Rachel:) Indeed Harlots are not, they care only for their lust, and would have no fruit of their womb: It's an excellent Emblem for the expression of the vanity of many Preachers that care for nothing but to satisfy their lusts, and shew their wit and parts, but care not for any fruit at all, care not for beget-anything children to God; like Harlots they desire not the fruit of the womb, but Wives that are faithful to their Husbands, they do desire it. And the same word that is here for desires, and translated beloved, it is likewise in other Scriptures translated beloved, that in Dan. 9:22: Oh man, greatly beloved: Oh man of desires. And so in Dan. 10. where the Angel saith, greatly beloved, it is a man of desire. And so in Prov. 31.2. What, my son! and what, the son of my womb! and what, the son of my vows! You may see how Solomon's Mother speaks with a great deal of affection, Oh my Son! the Son of my Womb, and the Son of my Desires. But indeed the word signifies properly, the Son of my Vows. Oh! I made Vows to God, if God would give thee me, and since I have given thee up to God, and by Vows dedicated thee to God, what, the Son of my Vows! Women therefore they should look upon their children as the children of their Vows, and shew forth their love unto them in the
the right way that God would have them. It is a strange place that we have in Titus, where aged women are commanded to teach the young women to love their husbands, and to love their children; it is a strange thing that a mother must be taught to love her children; thy child is the beloved fruit of thy womb, but yet thou must be taught by God, taught by his People, taught by his Word to love thy children, to love them in a right and holy way; take heed of loving them so as to provoke God to take them from you, take heed that they be not slain for your sakes; many Mothers have slain the fruit of their womb by loving them too much. Do not honor your children above God as Elly did, when you look upon their natural comeliness consider they have that in them, and that by your means that except they have another birth will make them objects of God's eternal hatred, they are the beloved fruit of your wombs, and you look upon them and see them sweet babes and very comely, yea, but think withal that you are the cause to bring them into that that if they have not another birth, though they be objects of your mirth, by being born to you, yet they will be objects of God's hatred by being born in sin by you; you may look upon them as objects of your delight, but God may look upon them as those that he hath appointed to slay, Alas those poor sweet babes, what hurt have they done? God sees enough in them that in his Justice he may slay them. But in this that he faith he will slay the beloved fruit of their womb, or the despicable fruit, take but this one Note:

If God's Honor, and his Ordinances, and his Saints that are dear to him, be not dear to you, even the very fruit of your womb shall not be regarded by him; That's the scope of the threatening. faith he, Oh here's a people that my Honor, my Ordinances, my Saints are not dear to them, therefore even the despicable things of their womb, the very beloved fruit of their womb, that that goes more to their hearts than anything in the world, that that is the dearest to them; I will slay
An Exposition of Chap. 9.

If you would have what's dear to you be dear to God, let that that is dear to God be dear to you.

And then it follows in the last Verse.

Ver. 17.

My God will cast them away, because they did not hearken unto him; and they shall be wanderers among the Nations.

Expof. My God, Not their God, but my God. There's much to be observed from hence.

Note. First, The Prophets constancy. They forsook God generally, the ten Tribes generally went away and forsook God, but the Prophet still keeps close to God.

Obs. 1. Let all the world do what they will and for sake God and seek other comforts where they will, but still (faith a faithful soul) God shall be my God. Hosea he lived in wicked times, generally all the ten Tribes went away from God, but still my God, my soul shall keep close to God, I have chosen the LORD to be mine, and I have found that Soul-satisfying good in Him, that he shall be mine for ever, here will I rest for ever; I have chosen the way of God's true Worship, I will not sate myself with the common way of Worship where I live, but I will chuse God to be my God whatsoever the world doth.

Obs. 2. But secondly, this is the comfort of a gracious heart, in ill times when others for sake God, yet one that hath a gracious heart, can have God to be his God: Yea, and especially when times of trouble comes, when fore evils are ready to be upon the people generally, yet here's the comfort of a gracious heart, My God, blessed be God for that Interest I have in Him: they may take away my House, my Estate, my Mealls, but they cannot take away my God, I have Interest yet in God, I have Interest still in that God that they cannot take from me. This was the comfort of Micab, in Chap. 7.
Chap. 7. there he describes the evil of the times wherein he lived; Verfe 2: The good man is perished out of the earth, and there is none upright among men, they all lie in wait for blood, they hunt every man his brother with a net. And then in the 4. vers. The best of them is a briar, the most upright is sharper than a thorn hedge. And then the 5. vers. Trust ye not in a friend, put ye not confidence in a guide: keep the doors of thy mouth from her that lieth in thy bosom. But then in the 7. vers. Therefore I will look unto the LORD, I will wait for the God of my salvation; my God will hear me. Oh my brethren! there may come times ere long that the knowledge of God, interest in God may be worth ten thousand thousand worlds unto us.

But in the third place: It is no presumption for one, or for a few to challenge a special interest in God, in way of distinction from the multitude, and from the generality. So it is here: How singular was Hosea at this time? This people might think him to be very presumptuous; What, as if no body had interest in God but he, Is not God our God as well as his? He is bold to speak this in way of distinction: You may forsake God and His Worship, but I have cleaved to God, He is my God. When multitudes and generality of men depart from God, yet for two or three, or a few that cleave to the true Worship of God, they may challenge God to be their God when he is none of the God of the multitude. In 1 Joh. 5. 17. you may see how singular John was there: We know that we are of God: and the whole World lieth in wickedness. How could the World take such an expression? What are you? a few poor people: and yet we know (faith he) that we are of God: and the whole World lieth in wickedness. What are you more than others? Yes, John knew, and would not be discouraged to affirm, that the World did lie in wickedness: and yet we know we are of God.

Let not men be offended at the fewness of those that keep the Truth, and the multitude of those that forsake it. I Plutarch relates in the life of Phocion the Athenian, that upon a time there was an Oracle of Apollo Delphius read before the people, which did say, That although all the people did agree, yet there was one man amongst them that dissented from them: now the people began to startle at this; but Phocion stepping forth before them all bid them never seek further for the man, for it was he that liked none of all their doings; and yet Phocion at length gained as much respect from them as ever any man did, and they chose him (I think) forty times to be Praetor for all that. And so let never so many go on in a way that thou canst not see light in thy conscience for, keep to thy principles, only examin them, (so far the respect we do owe to others must lead us) that if there be a greater party go one way than another, we should call things into the more neerer scrutiny, we should think we may possibly be rather in an error than they, and we ought to give all due reverence to the judgments of more men, and more learned and wise than our selves, but still after all, praying to God to shew us his mind, and searching our own hearts to see whether there be no particular Engagement, and after all endeavors to find out the Truth, And yet then if God doth perswade your consciences after all means used, we should not be discouraged because the greater part go the other way, but keep to that which our consciences tell us is the right. And thus it was with Hosea, though they went generally another way, yet he could claim a particular interest in God.

And then another point.

My God will cast them away.

Obs. It is a dreadful thing for wicked men to have such as have interest in God to declare against them. God rejection of them, My God will cast them away. Those who have interest in God, who know Gods mind, and that such a God
God as he is cannot have communion with such people. Thus you know it was with Isa. about the 57. and latter end, There is no peace to the wicked, faith my God. He puts the emphasis there, he faith not, there is no peace to the wicked, faith God, but faith my God. Oh! when those (I say) that have an interest in God, when such as keep close Communion with God, and thereby comes to be acquainted much with Gods mind, when they shall declare concerning you, do not slight it, it is a great matter then when they shall say, there is no peace; If any of them should say: If I know any thing of the mind of God, If I have any Interest in God certainly there can be no peace to thee in such a way as thou art in, take heed of the slighting of the very suspicion of men that are godly, and humble: It is true, many that may make very great profession of Religion, they may be bold to suspect and to censure others, that it may be are better than themselves, but if I see one that walks humbly, strict in his way, holy and heavenly, and self-denying in other things, if such a man should but have any suspicion of my condition, I had need look to it, it should daunt my heart to have such a Christian look upon me but with a suspicious eye, because such a one is much acquainted with God and his Way, and therefore take heed of slighting such a one.

My God will cast them away, with violence and with anger, as a man takes his stubborn child or servant, and thrusts them out of his house.

When men are violent in wickedness, they must expect that God will be as violent with them in the ways of his Judgments: and for that we have a notable Scripture in Lament. 2. 6. He hath violently taken away his Tabernacle. They abused that Ordinance of God, abused his Tabernacle, and he hath violently taken away his Tabernacle. Oh! unworthy wretched people, that should enjoy mine Ordinances so, and abuse them; he hath violently taken away, he comes in an anger: As you shall see a man or woman when their passion...
An Exposition of

Chap. 9.

A passion is raised they will run and snatch away such a thing from another.

Take heed of being violent in the ways of sin, you will cast the Cords away, you will cast away the Truths, as you had it before in Isa. 5. so you cast away the Truths of God, and his Cords away; take heed thou beest not a cast-away thy self; those that are so full of calling away Gods Truths, it's just with God that God should cast them away, as a man calls away a loathsome thing; as those are described in Isa. 30. That cast away their Idols as a menstirous cloth, and faith, Get thee hence: And you perhaps cast away the Truths of God as loathsome now, but the Lord will cast thee away as a filthy and loathsome thing.

They shall be cast away: but why? Because they did not hearken unto him. This is a notable Sentence. Saith Luther upon the place, This (He shall cast them away, because they have not hearkened to him) is a notable sentence, and worthy to be written upon all our walls; for indeed there is much in it, they would hearken to such and such, and to the rules of their policy, and to their own ends, but not to God. And that's the special point from hence: That in matters of God's Worship, we must hearken to God, and not hearkning to God is that which provokes God with indignation to cast away a people: perhaps other duties we may know by the light of nature; but when we come to matters of Worship, there God must be hearkened to, and not any else; God expects that his creature should hearken to him in what he faith, we should be all as the servant was with his ear boared; Christ himself had his ear boared, he would hearken to what his Father said, therefore the Psalm saith, Mine ear hath been boared: Christ was as a Servant, with his ear boared, to note, that he would have his ear at the command of his Father. And who, or what are you that you should have your ears free? In Isa. 28. 23. mark what several expressions we have about calling to hearken. Give ye ear, and hear my voice, hearken, and hear my speech. In one little little verse there's these four: Give ye ear; there's hear; there's hearken; there's hear. Oh! God expects that we should have a hearing ear; and that's the way for wisdom: in 1 Kings, 3. 9. Solomon prays, Give thy servant an understanding heart, but in the Hebrew it is, a hearing heart, and so it is turned, That I may have a hearing heart, so as I may be able to judge thy People. Those men and women that have not a hearing heart, they have not an understanding heart; and the not hearkening to God, Oh! it is that which comes from the pride of heart: in Jer. 13. 15. Give ear, be not proud, for the Lord hath spoken; there is no such pride as the turning away our ears from hearkening to God, and turning away our ear from the Law of God is that which makes God turn away his ear from hearing our prayers; it is an evident sign of destruction that is a coming: in 2 Chron. 25. 16. mark what the Prophet saith to Amaziah, I know that God hath determined to destroy thee; because thou hast done this, and hast not hearkened unto my Counsel. Doest thou come to the Word and not hearken to the Counsel of God in his Word? It is an evident sign that God intends to destroy thee. Oh hear! hear and your souls shall live, your souls shall live. Indeed here lies the ground of all the evil almost in those that are professors of Religion, The not hearkening to the Truth; I suppose those that make profession of Religion if they have enlightened consciences they dare not sin against a known Truth; but now here's the evil of thy heart, look to that; thou sayest, If I knew it were a Truth I would not go against it: yea but the corruption of thy heart makes thee unwilling to hearken to the Truth, the corruption of men's hearts makes them that they would fain have such a thing not to be a Truth. I appeal to you, have you never felt some corruptions stirring this way, that when you are engaged another way, and you see that if you should be taken off from that, a great deal of ease and liberty, and outward comforts would be gone, and upon this your hearts are very very loth that that should be true, and therefore you are not willing to hearken, to hearken with a clear heart, so as to be willing to entertain the Truth, if it doth prove to be a truth; that soul that shall be willing to retain every truth, and be willing to let the truth prevail whatever it be, that's a sign of a gracious heart; but the luft of mens hearts do hinder them from hearkening, and they are loth to hearken to those Truths that come nearest to them; but when a man or woman shall be able in the presence of God upon examination of his or her heart, to say, Oh Lord, let thy Truth prevail, thou knowest that I am willing to hearken to every Truth of Thine, though it should pluck away all my outward comforts, I would fain know thy Truth, and I would know the strictest Truths, what Truths they are that most concern thy Glory, and thy Worship in the best manner, whatever becomes of my Credit or estate, Lord, let thy Truth prevail in my heart: (I say) here's a gracious heart that will thus hearken to God and his Truth: But they have uncircumcised ears, they cannot hear (saith Jeremiah;) so, through the corruption that is in mens spirits they cannot hearken to those things that seem to make against them.

But the last words of all here, is the threatening.

They shall be wanderers among the Nations.

Obs. 1. It is a judgment to have an unsettled spirit wandering up and down, and can settle to nothing. Sometimes in this place, sometimes in that; sometimes in this way, and sometimes in another; this is a judgment of God. Solomon hath such an expression, The sight of the eyes is better than the wandering of the desires: the wandering of mens appetites and desires, work a great deal of vexation to them.

Again, observe that, Those who are cast away out of Gods house, they can have no rest, they go about like the unclean spirit, seeking rest; but can find none. Psal. 139. Here will I rest!
And the Church of God and his Ordinances are God's rest, and should be the rest of the hearts of his people, and they are indeed the rest of the hearts of those that are gracious; but alas poor soul! who art wandering from God, Whither goest thou? where indeed will be thy rest?

It was the Curse of God upon Cain, to be a wanderer up and down upon the face of the earth.

But you will say, May not men be wanderers, (that is) may not they be cast out of their Habitations and Countries, and wander up and down, and yet not be cast off from God?

It's true, we read in Heb. 11. that the Christians wandered up and down in Sheep skins, and Goats skins, whom the world was not worthy of: But that was in a way of persecution for God, and for his Truth; it was not because they would not hearken, but because they would hearken; and though thou shouldst be forc'd to wander from thy Brethren, and the sweet Habitation that thou hadst, and thy Friends, perhaps thou art fain to wander up & down even for thy life, yea, but cannot thou say, Yet I hope I am not one of God's cast-aways? It's one of Gods Epithites that he glories in, That he will gather the out-casts of Israel; Man hath cast me out, yea, but I bless God, I carry a good Conscience with me; and that man or woman needs not be troubled with wandering, that can carry a good Conscience with them; you are cast out from your Friends, yea, but still thou hast the Bird that sings in thy bosom: Canst thou say, I have not cast away thy Commandments, Lord? Indeed if a man's conscience tell him, that he hath cast away God's Commandments, then if he wanders it is dreadful to him: What, though thou art wandering from thy house, from thy outward comforts, but not from God's Commandments; Cast me not out of thy presence, faith David; though thou beest from thy friends, yet not from God's presence: here it is, I will cast them out among the Nations. It was a Curse in Psal. 44. 11. Thou hast scattered us among the Heathens: It was a great Judgment of God, to be scattered.
scattered among the Nations, for they were a people that were separated from the Nations, and not to be reckoned among the Nations, and God's peculiar Treasure. There were these three expressions, not only to be wandering among the Nations, not only among Strangers, but among Heathens, among Blasphemers, this must needs be a heavy and sore judgment, to be cast among Idolaters; This Curse is upon the Jews to this very day, how are they wanderers among the Nations?

Let us learn from hence, To prize the communion of Saints, let us learn what a blessing it is to live among our own People, especially among the Saints, in the enjoyment of God's Ordinances, let us make use of it now left God teach us what it is by calling us away and making us to wander among the wicked and ungodly, then your consciences will fly in your faces and tell you, Oh! what times we once had, and what sweet communion had we? but we began to neglect the prize that God put into our hand, Oh! if we were where once we were, we would meet often, and pray, and confer, and we would labor to edifie one another in our most holy faith, and warm one another's spirits, not spending all our time in wrangling and jangling, Oh! but now those times are gone, and we are cast away and are wandering up and down among wicked and ungodly people. Truly there hath not been a time in many years when the communion of the Saints hath been so little improved as at this day, we now wander (as it were) among our selves, and little converse one with another, what should we do living together? just were it with God to bring this Judgment upon us, that we should wander among wicked people here and there, and that we should not come to see the face of a Saint to have converse or communion with them. Thus we have finished this Ninth Chapter.
CHAP. X.

VERS. I.

Israël is an empty Vine, he bringeth forth fruit unto himself: according to the multitude of his fruit, he hath increased the Altars: according to the goodness of his Land, they have made goodly Images.

ERE Gualter makes the beginning of Hosea's seventh Sermon. The Argument is like unto the former, upbraiding and threatening. Hosea had to deal with tough and stout spirits, and therefore he still strikes with sharp rebukes and severe threats.

Israel is an empty Vine.

The Church is often in Scripture compared to a Vine, in Psal. 80. 8. Thou hast brought a Vine out of Egypt: thou hast cast out the Heathen and planted it. And in that known place, Isa. 5. 1. Now will I sing unto my well beloved a song of my beloved.
The Church is compared to a Vine.

First, There's no plant hath a more unpromising outside than the Vine hath, the outside of it, how mean is it? looks as if it were weathered, rugged, griffled, weak, and hollow the stalk of it: and this is the Church, the outside of it is very unpromising, little beauty and comeliness; as Christ himself had little beauty and excellency in his outside.

But yet secondly, The Vine is the most fruitful plant that grows out of the earth. Pliny (that great Naturalist) tells of very strange fruitfulness of some kind of Vines, in his 14. Book, and 4. Chapter, he tells of ten Culei (that's his word) that an Acre of Vines brought forth in a year, which comes to a matter of eighteen hundred gallons: nay in the 1. Chapter of his 14. Book, he tells of one stock, one single Vine, that was planted by Livia the Empress, that yielded an hundred and eight gallons of good Wine yearly. The Vine is a very fruitful thing, though unpromising in the outside. And what fruit indeed is there brought forth to God in the world but by his Churches? and God expects much fruitfulness among his people; however, as you shall hear, they are charged with being empty.

Thirdly, No plant requires so great care as the Vine; What a deal of do is there in dressing the Vine and underpruning of it, and pruning of it, looking to it continually? and the Lord hath the greatest care of his people, of his Church: himself accounts it no dishonor to be the Husbandman, as he is said to be in John 15, and in Isa. 27. 3. you have a most admirable expression of God's taking care of his Church, as his Vine. I the Lord do keep it: I will water it every moment, lest any hurt it, I will keep it night and day. I will keep it and I will water it, and every moment let any hurt it, I will keep it (again) night and day. And this is the Vineyard that he speaks of in the beginning of this this Chapter, and it was the Vinyard that brought out red Wine, the best sort of Wine. Those that bring forth the best sort of Wine shall have the best of God's care, and charge and protection over them.

Fourthly, The Vine it is the most depending creature in the world, it is not able to under-prop its self, but must have props more than other Plants, and therefore Nature hath given unto it strings by which it catches hold upon any thing next it: And so the Church, the Church is weak in its self, and is the most depending thing in the world, depends upon its props that God affords unto it; you have an excellent place to set out that in Isa. 27. 2, 3. ver. there the holy Ghost speaks of a Vinyard of red Wine, and in the 4. verse, Fury is not in me; which shews that there should come a kind of great storm and tempest, but he would not have his People to be discouraged. Fury is not in me. And then in the 5. verse, Let him take hold of my strength, that he may make peace with me, and he shall make his peace with me. Let him take hold of my power, let him act faith upon my power in time of storms and tempests and he shall make peace, though he hath never so much trouble abroad in the world with others, yet he may, he shall have peace with me. That's the nature of the Vine to catch hold upon that which is next it, and especially in time of storms, when the strongest Oaks are rent in pieces, yet the Vine catching hold upon the props it hath, rests there.

Fifthly, If it be not fruitful, it is the most unprofitablest thing in the world. I suppose you know that place in Ezek. 15. 2. What is the Vine-tree more than any tree, or than a branch which is among the trees of the Forrest? Shall wood be taken thereof to do any work, or will men take a pin of it to hang any vessel thercon? Behold, it shall be cast into the fire for fuel; It is

is not meet for any work, the Vine is meet for nothing, not to make a pin if it be not fruitful. And no people in the world are so unprofitable as Professors of Religion if they bring not forth the fruit of godliness, and the world may be rid of them better than any people else if they bring not forth their fruit unto God.

And then further in the sixth place, A Vine is the most spreading plant that is, that spreads larger than other plants, and fills a great deal of room with the spreading of the branches of it, and so you have the Promise of the Vine in Isa. 27.6. Church in Isa. 27.6. Israel shall blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit.

And then lastly, The Vine is the most tender, soft plant, and it is the Emblem of peace, the sitting under our Vines, it is to set forth Peace. And so the People of God they should be of tender soft spirits, not like the Bramble, nor the Thorn full of pricks, if we sit under Thorns and Brambles we may be prick'd with them; but sitting under the Vine there is nothing but sweetness and delightfulness there: Israël is a Vine; yea but he is an empty Vine. The word in the Original is a Participle, an emptying Vine, and yet the sense will come much to one, an Empty Vine, or an Emptying Vine: that is, Though there be much cost bestowed upon Ephraim, so as he might be fruitful, yet he makes himself empty.

This shews how he comes to be an empty Vine; not because God's mercy is scant to him, but he makes himself so by his sin, what juice & moisture he hath he doth empty it forth into other things, and so is empty.

Israel was a Vine full of clusters, refreshing God himself, as you heard in the ninth Chapter, that he was to the Lord as Grapes in the Wilderness, as a Vine that did bring forth Grapes in the Wilderness, that was so sweet to a weary and thirsty traveller. Israel was once such a one, yea, but now he is come to be an empty Vine, though he grows in the Vinyard of God, and not in the Wilderness.
Empty and no mervail, for as you have heard in the latter end of the former Chapter, he would not hearken to the Lord, he would not hear the Word of the Lord, the Lord threatens to cast him away, because he hearkened not to him, from whence Luther hath this Note, The Word is like a fruitful rain, there can no true fruit be without the Word, those that will not hearken to the Word, no mervail though they be empty, it is the Word that makes fruitful, it is that that is as the fruitful rain: Those that leave and forsake the Word, observe them how fruitless they are, what empty spirits they have; many that heretofore were forward in hearing the Word, and loved it, the Word was delightful to them, Oh! then they were fruitful; but since they have been taken off from the Word, converse with them now and you shall find their spirits empty, and their lives empty; and there's no men in the world so empty as those that would worship God in another way than the Word appoints, men that would think to worship God after their own fancies, and waies, Oh! how empty are they in all their Worship they tender up to God?

But the main Note and Observation is, That emptiness in those that profess themselves to be Gods People, is a very great evil. Oh! it is a great charge upon those that grow in Gods Vinyard, that profess themselves to be Gods, to be charged with this, That they are empty, an empty Vine. When we would speak of a man contempuouly, as one that hath no natural or aquisite excellency in him, we say such a one is an empty, or a slight fellow; and that's the meaning of the word that you have in Mat. 5. 22. Whosoever calls his Brother, Racha, shall be in danger of the counsel; the word Racha, it is empty, it is as much as if he should call his Brother an empty fellow, for that's the signification of the word Empty. And in Jam. 2. 20. Knowest thou not, O vain man, that faith without works is dead? The words are, Oh empty man, knowest thou not, O empty man, that faith without works works are dead? There's many that keeps a great deal of noise of Faith, and of Gods free-Grace, and yet are extrem empty men and understand little of the true excellency of the Covenant of Grace; Knowest thou not, O empty man, that Faith without Works is dead? Speak as much as thou wilt of Faith and Gods Grace, yet if there be no Works, thou art an empty man. Nature will not endure emptiness; some of the Phylosophers have said, that the world would rather be dissolved than there should be any vacuity; creatures will move contrary to their nature rather than they will suffer a vacuity. Certainly an emptiness in the souls of Gods people, it is the worst emptiness that is in the world: For,

First, It is the most unnatural thing for a Vine to be empty.

And secondly, For the Saints to be empty, they are a dishonor to their Root that they do profess they are upon: Christ he hath all the fulness of the God-head in him, And of his Fulness we are to receive Grace for Grace: To grow upon him, upon such a root and yet to be empty, Oh! what a dishonor is this to Jesus Christ!

Thirdly, This frustrates the Lord of all the care, and cost, and charge that he is about, if thou wert another plant that grew in the wilderness it were not much, but a Vine, and one in Gods Vinyard, and yet fruitles, Oh this is a sore evil! Fourthly, There's no blessing upon thy soul if thou beest an empty Vine in Isa.65.8. As the new Wine is found in the cluster, and one faith, Destroy it not, for a blessing is in it: If there be Wine in the cluster, then a blessing is found in it, but otherwise destroy it. No blessing is found in those that are of empty spirits.

Fiftly, If there be grace, it is the Divine Nature its self, and cannot that bear fruit? It is an evil in a Vine to have but a little moisture, to shoot forth in leaves and bear no fruit; yea but what is that unto Grace that is the Divine Nature its self, the most glorious thing in the world? Therefore Therefore for Christians to be without fruit is an exceeding great evil. Doest thou know what fruit is? One gracious action that comes from the sap of the Root that is in Christ, it is more worth than Heaven and Earth; any one gracious Act (I say) it is more worth than Heaven and Earth. Oh the fruit of the Saints is fruit to eternity, and to be without this fruit must needs be a great evil, those that are empty and without fruit (you know) they are said in John 15. to be but as branches, not branches, they that bear no fruit are said to be but as a branch, and then such a branch as must be cut off, God will cut them off, cut off those branches, he will cut them off from their profession and suffer them to fall so as they shall not continue in their eternal profession, and they shall wither, he will curse their very common gifts that they have.

6. Oh! how many that heretofore seemed to flourish, yet but leaves, and bearing no fruit, now their leaves are gone too, and their common gifts are taken away from them, and not only withered, but shall be cast away, cast away from God, and out of the hearts of the Saints, and men shall gather them, the men of the world they shall catch them, and so they shall joyn with them, and they shall make use of them, and they shall be cast into the fire and burnt; cast into the fire, not for a fiery trial, but cast into the fire that they may be burned: these are the threatenings against those that bear no fruit. It is the glory of God's People, to be filled with the fruits of Righteousness, Phil. 1. 11. To be filled with the Spirit, Ephes. 5. 18. Yea, to be filled with all the fulness of God, Ephes. 3. 19. So it is expected of the Saints, that they should be filled with all the fulness of God: Oh! how contrary is this to emptying? And surely fill'd the Saints should be with fruit, because they are the very fulness of Christ; the fulness of him that fills all in all: In Ephes. 1. last verse, the Church is said, to be the fulness of Jesus Christ himself; And shall the Church be an empty Vine, when as it is the very fulness of Him that fills all in all?

7. An
7. An empty spirit is fit for the Devil to come to possess;
Matt. 12. 24. he found his place empty, and then he comes in: where the Devil sees an empty spirit, there's a fit place for him to come. It is an evil thing for you to grow upon God's ground and to cumber it, to cumber any part of God's ground; it may be if thouwert gon, there might be another in thy family, or place, that might bring forth fruit to God; but thou hinderest, God might have more Rent (as I may so say) for all his possessions in the world, the great Rent is, the fruit that the Church brings forth;

Cant. 8 11. it is said, that Solomon let out his Vineyard, and it brought him in a thousand pieces of Silver for the fruit of it. And God he lets out his Vinyard, and his Rent (I say) it is the fruit that the Saints bring forth to him; What glory hath God in the world, if those that profess themselves to be his people should be empty?

8. God doth not let us sit under empty Vines; our Vines they have been fruitful Vines, shall we then be empty Vines ourselves?

9. The Lord hath justly struck this Vine here in England, and our Vine bleeds; it bleeds, and is in danger to bleed to death, and what though it doth, it hath brought forth little fruit, and therefore it's just with God that he should let this Vine even bleed now to death.

10. According to the greatness of the opportunities that any man hath, or any society of men, so is the greatness of the evil of emptiness: Oh! if now to be empty, when God puts great opportunities of great service into our hands, now to be empty when God expects great services, Oh! it is the most vile thing of all. Oh my brethren, that we were but sensible of this.

Ufe. But if this be an evil thing to be empty, than what is it to bring forth the Grapes of Sodom, and the Clusters of Gomorrhab? to bring forth the Wine of the Gall of Asps, wild Grapes? And yet a great deal of such fruit there hath been brought forth; And truly the fruit that most men have brought brought forth now, they are wild Grapes at the best. If men do any thing, yet they do so mingle the vanity of prid, the sownenes of their own spirits, the rigednes of their own nature with what they do, that all is but sowe before God.

Well, To conclude this, about the emptines of the Vine: Oh! let us prize fruitfulness more, and say as the Vine that is brought in, in the 9th of Judges, Shall I leave my Wine which cheereth God and man, and go and reign over you? Oh so, Shall we leave our fruitfulness upon any earthly advantage in the world? Let us account it a greater advantage to bring forth much fruit to the glory of God, than to glory in any earthly advantage: No matter what becomes of us, so we may be but fruitful; though God dung us, though he cast all the filth and reproaches in the world upon us, yet if God will make this but cause us to be fruitful, it is no great matter.

But further from the manner of the Phrase.

Israel is a Vine emptying its self.

That is an aggravation of emptiness when we empty our selves, when God is not wanting to us in means, but we are the Cause of it. And what is the cause of emptiness, but the emptying out our strength and spirits to our lusts and the world? No mervail though we have no fruit for God, and strength in his service, when we let out all to other things.

And the old Latin here turns it, A leavie vine. And the Seventy they have it, A Vine that brings forth goodly branches: And yet it’s said here empty, that is, all the strength and juyce of it is let out in the goodness of the branches and leaves. Oh! so, many Professors in these daies, they empty out all their strength that they have and all their parts meerly into leaves, and have goodly branches, make goodly outward profession, and goodly words they give, and Pliny in his 17. Book and 22. Chapter, faith of Vines, that it is fit (at least for two years together after their planting) that they should be cut down to the very ground, that they may not sprout out in leaves, and so to lose their juice and strength at the root. And truly this is that that hath lost the hopeful beginnings of many yong people in these times, they have presently sprouted out into leaves; for never was there a more hopeful time of yong people than at the beginning of this Parliament, and no greater encouragement was there than from them at that time, (I will not say it is wholly lost,) but Oh! how many of them that began to understand the ways of God, hath let out all their strength in leaves, and contests, and disputes, and wranglings, and strange kind of opinions, and little fruit is come of any thing? Nay, there is little favor at all in their spirits; Oh! how happy had it been if so be that God had kept them down in a work of humiliation to the very ground for a yeer or two together? Now that's a thing that is altogether laid aside, any work of humiliation, but presently they sprout out into leaves. My Brethren, whatsoever may be said, or whatsoever heretofore hath seem'd to be preached [to the contrary] yet certainly if rightly understood hath been but the same things that must of necessity be acknowledged; we do not press Humiliation as the Condition of the Covenant of Grace, we look not at it so, but Humiliation keeps the spirits of men low, and empties them of themselves, and keeps them down; (I say) this is that which would have made them a great deal more fruitful, and they could not have run up as meer leaves, and their strength spent: and so, how many of them are fallen off again, not only to be slight and vain, but to be wicked and ungodly, and quite naught, because they were not kept down low for a while, but God ordering things that they should live in times of liberty, Oh! how luxurious have have they grown that way? When God lets a people grow rank and prunes them not, they quickly grow barren. We had never so many rank Christians as we have at this day that grow out in luxurious branches, and they think they have over-topt all, because they can talk more than others do, when as there are some poor Christians that grow low to the ground, and when they get a little comfort it is gone away from them presently, and they walk humbly before God, and no body takes notice of them, but are despised and contemned, O! these will grow and be delightful to the palate of God, when such rank professors as these shall wither and be cast out. The pruned Vines bring forth the best fruit; and therefore that's observable: compare Isa. 5. with the 27. there's a Note very observable: In the 5. Chapter, God complains of his Vineyard, that he lookt for Grapes, and they brought forth wild Grapes; but here the Prophet speaks of the time before the Captivity: but in the 27. Chapter there is a Scripture that seems to refer to the times after the Captivity, and there the Vinyard of God is said to be a Vinyard of red Wine, and God speaks much unto it what it should be after the time of the Captivity, it should bring forth the best kind of Wine, for then God pruned it; they thought that God would come in a furious manner upon them, no (faith he) Fury is not in me, but this is all the fruit, to purge away their sin. The Vines that are pruned bring forth the best and the most fruit.

But I find other Interpreters upon this text, [Israel is an empty Vine;] They turn it thus: Is a spoiled Vine. And Luther refers it to the emptying of the abundance of her riches and prosperity; Indeed these two go together, Emptiness of fruit, and being emptied of our comforts and prosperity, to be spoiled: Israel hath spoiled her self, and I have for her sins let the spoilers come among them, and so hath emptied her of all her good; even while she enjoyed her outward prosperity, she was emptied of the blessing of A dangerous thing for young professors to be in times of Liberty.

of God upon her; but after the Lord emptied her even of all her outward good too.

And that's the Note from thence: That sin will empty a land of all the blessings God hath bestowed, or empty a family, or person; Sin is an emptying thing, sin empties Lands, and Families, and persons of all their outward comforts, in Isa. 4. 11., there God threatens the line of confusion, and the stones of emptiness for sin; and Oh! how hath it emptied many parts of our land? how hath sin emptied us? what empty houses are therein many places? houses that were wont in every room of them to be fill'd with furniture so brave and glittering, now the Owners come into their houses and look upon the bare walls and see them empty of all the rich furniture that was in them; Oh! what empty chests, that were fill'd with such brave cloaths heretofore, now they are broken to pieces, and those places that were fill'd with diet and plenty are now empty; Barns empty, Purses empty, and Bellies empty, and the Veins of men emptied even of their very blood; Oh! how are we a spoiled Vine now at this day! the Vine that a while since was so delightful to God and man, and so glorious even in the esteem of all round about us, yet Oh now! now hath the Lord sent his emptiers to empty us; as in Nahum. 2. 2. The Lord hath turned away the excellency of Jacob, as the excellency of Israel: for the emptiers have emptied them out, and marred their Vine branches. This text is fulfilled towards many parts of this Kingdom at this day.

An empty Vine, and brings forth fruit to her self.

This is very strange, Empty, and yet bring forth fruit; If she brings forth fruit, how empty? Yes, it may very well stand together, she brings forth fruit to her self, but she is empty in regard of any fruit she brings forth to me, but yet she hath juice and sap enough, to bring forth fruit to her self. Oh! how many people that are barren towards God, and have no abilities to do any thing for God, but when they come to themselves to do any thing, Oh how active and stirring are they? but when you put them upon any duty for God then they are weak and unable, &c. but if it was in a matter that concern'd themselves there they have spirit enough & to much a great deal; If parents have children that sin against God, they are not sensible at all, but if they do anything against themselves, Oh! how do their spirits rise, and what rage is there in the family? The truth is, were our hearts as they should be, if we have no strength for God we should have none for ourselves, yea, we would even reason so, when as we complain, Oh! that we are weak in our memories, and are not able to resist temptation, and we can do nothing for God, we should take a holy revenge upon ourselves and say, Certainly if I can do nothing for God, I will do nothing for myself either, If I cannot rejoice in God I will not rejoice in myself, and if I cannot take care for God I will not take care for myself; to be barren to God and fruitful to ourselves, this is a great disproportion.

He bringeth forth fruit to himself.

The old Latin is, even like himself, so they turn it, he brings forth fruit like to himself.

Men of base principles will do base things, corrupt hearts will have corrupt ways. An ingenuous spirit sometimes wonders to see the ways of many men so base and vile as they are, men employed in publick employment that have opportunity to do God a great deal of service and when it comes to it, how fordidly and basely do they carry themselves, not caring what becomes of the publick good, of God, and Kingdoms, and Churches, so be it they may scrape but a little to themselves? Yea, but do not wonder, it is fruit suitable to themselves, they are men of base spirits, of base corrupt principles, and therefore they bring forth bring forth fruit like themselves, fruit like the flock that they are on. And so many times children are like their parents, their parents are wicked, and they wicked accordingly. Like an Imp or Branch of such a flock, such are the fruits of many.

But he brings forth fruit to himself.

That is, in all that he doth he aims at himself, he hath regard to his own ends, to fetch about his own designs, to bring his own plots to an issue, and all must be subservient to some design that he drives on; Ephraim had many designs and plots that they drove on to make themselves to be rich, and all their strength, and what they were able to do it was for nothing but to be subservient to their own designs: It was said of Judah in their Captivity, in Zach. 7. 5, 6. They did fast, and eat, and drink to themselves; all that was done it was nothing but to themselves; whereas the fruit that they should have brought forth, it should have been to God, and not to themselves: There is a very sweet place for that in Cant. 7. 13. At our gates are all manner of pleasant fruits new and old, which I have laid up for thee, O my beloved. Thus should every gracious heart say, and especially he should say so then when God makes your hearts most fruitful with pleasant fruit new and old; Have ye at any time found your hearts most enlarged to God, and you could melt towards God, and had full expressions in the presence of God, and acting of your graces? Take heed now that this pleasant and sweet fruit that you have, that is new from God, and your old experiences that you have had heretofore of God’s goodness, let not corruption reap that that God hath sown, you know it is a Curse that one should sow and another reap; it is God that sows, and shall the flesh reap now? and shall the Devil reap? Oh! let not these sweet fruits, especially the fruit of enlargement in prayer, and the fruit of abilities to do God service in any publick work; Oh! take heed that this be not for your selves; do not you take in the glory to your your selves. Oh! but let this fruit be for your beloved; at any time when you find your hearts most fruitful, graces most fully exercised, Oh think thus, I will lay up this for my beloved, I will lay the experiences of the goodness of God unto me that may fit me to glorifie God more than herefore: Oh that's sweet indeed, when God comes in with fruit, and we lay it up for our beloved; God he is to have all our fruit: you shall observe in Cant. 8, that Solomon let out his Vinyard, and mark, in letting out his Vinyard, he must have a thousand pieces of silver, and the Husbandmen must have two hundred: if God doth afford to us some wages for what we do, let not us take the greater part unto our selves, let Solomon have the thousand, and let us be contented if we may have two hundred;
but ordinarily we take the greater sum, and return the less to God in any fruit: but if you observe the 12. verse, the difference between Solomon's Vinyard, and Christ's Vinyard, Solomon let out his Vinyard, But my Vinyard, which is mine: and there is noted this difference, That Jesus Christ
he takes the care of his own Vinyard, he doth not let it out.
And therefore if we have any thing, we must not have it so much for our wages as free gift, for Christ doth not let out his Vinyard as Solomon did, but he keeps it and dresses it himself, and therefore it is fit that he should have all the fruit. In Isa. 61: 3. That they might be called, trees of Righteousnes, the Planting of the Lord, that he might be glorified. Such should the Saints be, they should bring forth fruits unto God. And in Philip. 1. 11. Being filled with the fruits of Righteousnes, which are by Jesus Christ, unto the glory and praise of God. So should the Saints be, and all the fruits they bear.

But Carnal hearts they aim at themselves, all that they do they act from a principle within themselves, and no further; and therefore they cannot go beyond themselves: It's an argument that all thou dost hath a principle not higher than self, when thou actest for thy self;
whereas the principle that the Saints act by, it is the principle of Grace that comes from Heaven, and therefore it carries unto heaven, as the water is carried as high as the Fountain from whence it comes. A selfish heart is a narrow heart; but a gracious heart is a heart enlarged, it enlarges itself to infiniteness; and that's the property of Grace, though it cannot be infinite, yet it is enlarged to infiniteness. Those that work for themselves, the truth is, they lose themselves in their working, and lose all their fruit; it is thy worst self that thou aimest at; there is a kind of selfishness that we may aim at, that is, if we can make God to be our own end, our happiness, as the Saints do, no men in the world do more for themselves than the Saints; yea, but how? because they make more of their own good to be in God than themselves, and they make themselves to be more in God than in themselves, and therefore they have themselves more than any, but they have themselves in God; and no men loses themselves more than those that seek themselves most: He that will lose his life, shall save it; those that will aim at themselves, what is that, but a little money, and credit, and esteem of men? Oh poor base, vile heart, hast thou nothing else but this, when all the Glory that is in God Himself may be thy portion, and thy self may be in it, that if God Himself be happy, thou maiest be happy, because God Himself may come to be thy portion; and is not that a better self to be emptied into God? but therein thou darest not trust God, nor thy self to empty thy self into God, but certainly that is the way to enjoy thy self. Every man cares for his own (faith the Apostle,) but no man for the things of Jesus Christ. Oh! this selfishness it is vile at all times, but never so vile as at this time, for men to look and aim at themselves, especially for men that are in publick places, now to be selfish is the most abominable and the most foolish thing in the world: for Mariners in the time of a calm then they may look to their several Cabins, but in the time of a storm, then to be painting painting and making fine their Cabins, how do they deserve to be pull'd out by the ears, and to be cast into the Sea, that shall then be looking to their own Cabins? What is your joy more than the joy of others? and what are you that you must have ease and content more than others? In such times as these are if ever God calls us to be emptied from our selves, certainly it is in such times as these are.

But the main Note is, That it's all one to be an empty Christian, and to bring forth fruit to themselves. Men think that which they bring forth to themselves is clear gain; but this is an infinite mistake, for that which is for thy self is lost, and that which is for God is gain'd. Professors that are selfish are empty. Many of you complain of emptiness and unfruitfulness, here's the reason: You are so selfish, that prayer is an empty prayer though never so full of words and excellent expressions whose end is self; many of the Saints in joyning with such they find their prayers to be such though there be excellent words, because they see selfishness, men that aim at selfishness they had need be cunning to keep it from being seen, let self be seen in a duty though it be never so glorious outwardly yet it is loathsome in the eyes of the very Saints; let but a man appear to affected with himself in what he doth, with the tone of his voice, or carriage, or gesture, any thing affected, we know how abominable it is in the eyes of all; And so for Sermons, where they are selfish, certainly they are empty things; and so I might instance in every other thing that men do, the fulness of the Spirit in a Prayer, or Sermon, or any other Duty, it is the seeking to lift up the Name of the Blessed God in the duty; that's the fulness of it; many that are of weak parts, very poor abilities to exercise themselves, yet their hearts being upon God in a duty, Oh! there's a fulness in that duty, there's more in that weak expression, in their sighs and groans than in all the eloquence of your empty hypocrites, they...
they not being fill'd with the Will of God: in Colossians 4. 12.

It is in your books, That you may stand compleat in all the Will of God; but it is, being fill'd with the will of God; if thou wouldest have a fulness in what thou dost, a fulness in a Prayer, a fulness in thy Service, in any thing thou doelt, be fill'd with the Will of God, and not with thy self-ends. You know empty vessels will break when you set them at the fire, and so will selfish spirits, those that are selfish they quickly grow empty. You that are Merchants, if you have factors abroad that trade for themselves, they seldom do any great matters for their Masters; I have known Merchants that have been chary of that, for their mens to be trading for themselves. And God doth not love to see us trading for our selves, but only as we trade for him, and so account that to be for our selves. And here is an evident demonstration that your selfishness will make you empty for God; how many are there that complain of emptiness? Oh! they cannot do this, and they cannot do that, why? because except they find comfort, and that coming in which they aim at, they have no mind to any duty, they go to prayer, and strive to pray, and they come away and say, Oh! the empty prayers that we make; but what is the reason that you cannot pray as you would?

you have no heart to pray, if you would have enlargement in prayer, and present an answer of your prayer to get what you would have, Oh! then your hearts would be much let out in prayer, and then you would have a mind to pray; but now though it be your duty to pray, because you shall tender up the worship that a creature owes to God, that is no argument that puts you upon prayer, so it appears that it is selfishness that appears in prayer; but now trie this way, trie this way but to get above your selves once, and be emptied of your selves, and look with a more single eye to God when you go to prayer, let this be the great motive; O Lord, this is that Worship that Ias a Creature owe to thee, and the strength of my body and soul
soul is due to thee, and I let out what I can, though I have not enlargements and comforts, though I feel not that I get by duty to myself, yet in obedience to thee, and that I might lift up thy Name, and that I might worship thee, I am resolved to go on in such duties as thou requiredst of me; try but this way, and see whether you will not grow more fruitful in prayer than you did before.

But to pass that, I find that some turn the words thus, (as Pareus) An empty Vine he is, although he treasure up fruit unto himself: and so we may understand emptiness by that word that I have opened to you, a spoiled Vine, he is a spoiled Vine, and he is emptied of all his prosperity, and riches, and glory, that he had, although he seeks to treasure up unto himself. And indeed in such a kind of reading there is a very profitable Note.

They seek to treasure and enrich themselves, to lay up and provide for themselves now, that they may have store by them come what will come, but this will not do. For God, Israel must be a spoiled empty Vine for all this.

Now that's the Note or Meditation hence. That when God is spoiling and emptying a Nation, it is a vain thing for men to think to provide for themselves: This certainly is not the time when God is spoiling and emptying of a Nation, or other parts of the Kingdom for men to have their thoughts now to scrape an estate to themselves and get even from the evils of the times to enrich themselves, by Places and by Offices to enrich themselves, certainly there can be little honor in such an estate, or little comfort: It is the frame and guise of a vile spirit to think of enriching of themselves in such times as these are, certainly it must needs be a very low spirit that minds the enriching of itself in such times as these are; what God may cast men in by extraordinary providence at any time we speak not of that, or by some eminent service; but certainly if it shall prove that God in his mercy shall put an end to such times as these are, when men shall prove to be rich after this storm is over, that had not some eminent providence of God to call it upon them but only in his ordinary way, (I say) whosoever should appear to be rich after these times, it will be little honor to him, or his posterity, it will be the most dishonorable riches that ever was in the world. In Jer. 45. 4. faith the Lord to Baruch there (he was a good man and yet much over seen in this) Behold, that which I have built, will I break down, and that which I have planted, will I pluck up, even this whole Land. And seekest thou great things for thy self, seek them not. I am breaking down that which I have built, and plucking up what I have planted, And doest thou seek great things for thy self? seek them not. In Acts 8. 20. faith Peter to Symon Magus, Thy money perish with thee. So may I say to many, is this a time for men to treasure to themselves, for men to have their chief care now to gain riches? Oh! it is just with God to say to thee, Thy riches perish with thee; whosoever now will make it his chief care, and think now it is a time of trouble, and now I may gain thus and thus, and it will not appear; (I say) thole that shall make this to be their care now, to take advantage of these times to treasure up to themselves, just were it with God to say of them and their riches, Thy money and thy riches perish with thee. It follows.

According to the multitude of his fruit, he hath increased the Altars: according to the goodness of his Land, they have made goodly Images.

Expos. Here you have the unthankfulness of Ephraim; you have had his barrenness, and selfishness, in the two former expressions, and now here his unthankfulness: The Devil he loves to have superstitious and Idolatrous people have good Lands, and good Possessions, that he might be served accordingly: Idolaters serve their Idols according so their Lands and Possessions that they have, According the multitude of his fruit, were the multitude of his Altars. And certainly it is a great reason why all the Papists are so desirous to get England, and contribute so much that they might but get into England, and get Possession here, for there is no place that they have, where they should have more goodly Images, and more brave things than they should here in England, the fruitfulness of this Land is that which makes it to be such a suit to the Antichristian party, and to the Devil, he thinks that might the Popish party get here, Oh! the brave things that I should have here, I began to have fine Altars, but if they should begin to have possession of all the riches in the Land, then Oh what golden Monuments should I have? we began to have great charges to be laid out upon Temples (as they call'd them) but certainly if they should prevail now, you should have them build them up to the very skies, such Pinnacles and glorious things there would be, for the Land is a great deal more fruitful and goodly than it was heretofore, it is improved mightily now; what brave buildings were there in our Fore-fathers time, witness these that we have near us, Westminster, and Pauls, and the like. I remember Latimer in one of his Sermons before the King tells of his Father which was a man that kept good hospitality, and kept a Horse for the King, and yet the portion that he gave with his Daughter was some five pounds. So I say, if that men were so poor and mean in former times, yet what brave things did superstition do, certainly if the superstitious party should have the possession of the Land there would be brave things done; and therefore the Devil seeing that, strives to bring it into their power.

To make Gods blessings to be the Means and the Encrease of our wickedness, that is an abominable thing; To encrease our sins according to the encrease of Gods blessings. How many may be charged with this, That when they were of low and mean estates then God had more service from them, than he hath now they are of higher estates? the higher they are raised in their Estates, the lower they are in the Work of God: As it is observed of men that grow very fat, they have so much the less blood. And so the fatter men are in their Estates, many times the less blood and life, and less spirits they have for God.

Real. 1. Certainly this is against the ingenuity of a Christian, to be less for God when he hath most from Him, when his own turn is served, then to turn his back from the Author of all his good, nay it is against a main Christian Principle so to do.

This is a main Christian Principle, that the good of an Estate consists in this: That it gives a large opportunity in proportion to what it is, in proportion to what it is to the service of God. This is a great Christian Principle about Estates; an Estate either greater or lesser, affords either a lesser or greater opportunity for God's service; upon this principle doth a Christian go in the enjoyment of his Estate. Now to be less for God, or more for that that is evil, the better his Estate is: he goes against that great Christian Maxim.

Yea, and it is against thy Prayers for a Sanctified use of thy Estate; Doth God give thee an Estate? I hope thou dost seek that this may be Sanctified: now for thee to do less for God, and more for that that is evil by the encrease of thy Estate, thou dost go against a Sanctifying Prayer.

But yet the chief point of all I take to be this: Mark here:

They do ACCORDING: (for there lies the very strength of these words) ACCORDING to the multitude of his Fruit, and ACCORDING to the goodness of his Land, they have made goodly Images.

There is a great deal of elegancy in the words in the Hebrew, so that from these two expressions, According, and According, here is the Note: That the love that Idolaters bear to their Idols, it is proportionable to what abilities they have to show.
Ver. 1

the Prophesie of Hosea. 321

They are very fond of their love; according to the multitude of their fruit, and according to the goodness of the land. When Idolaters are low they will yet do what they can, and as they grow up they will do more.

Virgil, he hath a very fine expression of the Idolater toward his Idol there: We now make thee but of Marble, but if so be our flock doth encrease, and we have as many Lambs as we have Sheep, we will make thee of Gold.

And thus the true worshipers of God should do in their service to God, that must be proportionable; if they be able to bestow but Marble for the present, if God raises their Estates, their Marble is to be turned into Gold, and not only in regard of their Estates, but of the Gifts, and Means they have, any Abilities; know that that which God will accept of when thou art low in thy Gifts, and Means, and Parts, it will not serve turn when God encreases thee in thy Gifts, and Means, and Parts. Have you more than others? Account it your shame that it should be said of any in the world, That there is such an one that hath less mercies than I, and yet God hath more service from him than he hath from me. There is no proportion between many of your encreases for God, and your encreases from God. Now you must look to the proportion to make it as exact as can be, my encrease from God, and my encrease for God; Oh! be often parallelling these two together, and see whether one do not come longer than another; and be not at rest. Oh Christian! except thou canst make thy ends be even: Those who are rich, must be rich in good works. In 1 Tim. 6. God giveth us richly; therefore be rich in good works. It is not enough for a rich man to give sixpence, or twelvetrench for some great service, but he is to be rich in good works, and for relieving distressed ones, and the maintenance of the Gospel, he is to be rich in good works, and to account their riches to be as well in their good works as in their Estates; thou hast so much comings in more than other; thou art rich in that; yea, but what what works goes from thee more than others? art thou rich in that? If we should judge the riches of men and women by their good works, how many rich men would there be accounted very poor? Every man must be serviceable as God hath blessed them, 1 Cor. 16. 2. Oh! this meditation would be of very great use to those whose estates are blessed by God; think thus, Is there such a distance between what service I do for God, and the service others do, as there is between what I receive from God, and what others receive from God? This Meditation (I say) would be very useful; cast up your accounts thus, Consider what service doth others for God, and what do I? I do as well as others, I but is there as much distance between the service that I do, and the service my poor neighbor doth, as between my estate, and his estate? you perhaps can look upon poor people carrying Tar-kards, earning dearly ten pence or twelve pence a day, and you have many hundreds a year coming in, now is there as much difference? You would be loth to be in such a condition as those are in. Oh! but is there as much difference between the glory that God hath from you, and the glory that God hath from them? It may be some of them when they have been hard at work all day, they get home, and get alone with wife and children and fall a praying, and letting their tears fall down, and blessing God for their bread and drink that they have. And perhaps you in your many hundreds a year, and many dishes at your table, are but discontented and sroward. Oh! consider, that though God hath raised you above others in estates, yet you are lower than many others in good works; If a man hath encreased his estate more than before you shall quickly see it in his cloaths, and his house shall be finer than before, his furniture shall be finer than before, you shall see his estate raised that way; but can you see it raised in his good works more than before? Oh! that such a man doth more for the service of God than before, more for the relieving of the the wofull necessities of his poor Brethren: than before: Men are ready if so be that men come finer to the Exchange than they did before, they think, What is this man grown richer than he was before? You should (if God doth raise your estates) make it appear in being forward with good works, in good works that are chargable, as that men may take notice of your riches by your rich works, rather than your rich cloaths; except there be a proportion between our plenty and our prosperity, there is no evidence that our prosperity comes in mercy: but if a proportion, then not only an evidence that our prosperity comes in mercy, but a good addition to the good of our prosperity. If a Merchant hath his Ship come home and he hath gottten a thousand pounds by the Voyage, now if God raises his heart in a proportionable way to the furtherance of the Gospel, that is more than ten thousand pounds; a man would account that well if he hath gotten so much and he could impoy it to get ten times so much more, think but thus: Thou hast gottten in thy estate by being proportionable in service for God, thou dost increase the blessing ten fold, thou often thinkest of the blessing of God in giving thee an estate more than before, and others think of it, Oh what a blessing such a man hath! yea, but think of the other blessing that follows; but hath God given him or her a heart to do a great deal of service; The second blessing is the great blessing indeed. When David had rest, he presentlie thinks of building God an house, and that proportionable in what God had blest him in. And that is very observabèle in the difference of Moses Altar and Solomons Altar; you know Moses he was in times of affliction, and his Altar was five cubits long, and three cubits broad; and Solomons was twenty cubits long, and ten broad; Moses he was low for outwards; Solomon he was high; therefore Moses was five cubits high, and three broad; and Solomons was twenty cubits long, and ten broad: God doth proportion his goodness to what we do... for him, why should not we proportion our service with what he doth for us? And therefore when God blesses any of you in your outward estate, it is very good to do something presently, as thus; A man perhaps heretofore had but a little stock, and lived in a Parish where he had but poor and mean preaching, now God raises his estate and he would have his house better, and his cloaths better, why then should not I have better preaching for my soul? And therefore when God blesties any of you in your outward estate is very good to do something presently, as thus; A man perhaps heretofore had but a little stock, and lived in a Parish where he had but poor and mean preaching, now God raises his estate and he would have his house better, and his cloaths better, why then should not I have better preaching for my soul? And so many other ways, if God hath blessed you with good preaching, then help your poor neighbors some way or other that the Gospel may be furthered by Gods blessing, and that in a proportionable way.

They make them goodly Images.

There is a very fine elegant paranomasia, According to their good Lands, so goodly Images. Now this word that is translated Goodly, it signifies also Beauty. They that were good Benefactors to their Images, they made their Images beautiful: and it is the same word used in the story of Jezebel where she is said to tire her head, it is the same word that is here for making goodly Images, she made her self a goodly head. Oh how great a shame is it to do so much for Images, dead Images, & to do so little for the Images of God? Shall Idolaters not care for what cost they bestow upon their dead Images, and shalt thou see a man or woman that carries the Image of God with them in a lively way, shalt thou see them naked, and looking hunger-starved, and looking rufefully and miserably, and wilt thou deny to one that hath the Image of God? Every man hath the Image of God in some measure, even in wicked men, but especially in those that are godly there it is a renewed Image, there the very Life of God doth appear, the Divine Nature doth appear: And what a charge will this be, when God shall bring Idolaters at the day of Judgment against thee, that shall bestow so much upon their dead Images, Images, and thou shalt let these Images of God to suffer want so as they do? Certainly so long as there is any that hath Gods Image upon them that wants, and wants miserably too, for thee to think of encreasing thy estate now and to be richer than in former times, it must needs be very vile.

Goodly Images.

Men are taken with outward shews, but a spiritual heart, the Ordinances of God though they be never so plain in their outside, Oh they are goodly things! A Spiritual heart sees a goodliness in all Gods Ordinances; Carnal hearts they see goodliness only in their outward bravery, and outward pomp and glory.

And lastly, A Note that Pareus hath: Here we see the main distinction that Papists make between their Images and Idols; we see here they are charged for making goodly Images. It follows;

Ver. 2.

Their heart is divided; now shall they be found faulty.

My Brethren, I know that you would be willing enough that I should in such a Point as this is, go beyond an Expository way, seeing God hath cast me upon it; but in regard this Point hath been fully handled in a Treatise already printed, (to which I shall refer you) I shall pass it, and proceed to the following words:

and Sermons which he spent (most seasonably and excellently) upon this subject, are printed in a Treatise by themselves with this Title [IRENICVM: Heart-divisions opened, &c.] which is to be taken in here, and then that which follows (in the subsequent Exposition) to be annexed.
He shall break down their Altars: he shall spoil their Images.

The Divisions of this People, of which you have heard so largely*, were much about the way of Worship, most of them contending for the way of False Worship against the True; they would have their Images and their Altars honored: but God saith, he would break them down, and spoil them; ye keep a stir for them, but you shall not have them: But he will break down their Altars. Decollabit, the word comes from a root that signifies a Neck; and so that which you have in your Books translated, break down, it is, break their necks; he will break the necks of their Altars.

Ternovius a learned Interpreter hath a Note upon the place, it hath an allusion (faith he) to that that they were wont to have upon their Altars, they were wont to have Ornaments quasi Capitela, that were (as it were) the heads of their Altars, they were wont to have brave things upon their Altars, and Crowns upon their Altars: I, but faith the Lord, I will break the necks of them all: He will break down their Altars, and spoil their Images.

The Notes from thence are briefly these.

First, Though men make never such a stir to maintain that which is evil, God will break it; they may by their contending and seeking have it a while, but God will break the neck of it at last, it shall come to nothing.

He will break down their Altars.

Why, they were convinced before of the evil of them, for so in the former words, Now shall they be found guilty, they shall acknowledge themselves guilty in contending so much for them; well, but faith God, though you are convinced of your guiltiness, yet that's not enough; I'll break them down, for otherwise if they do remain, they may be snares unto you afterwards.
From whence then the Note is: That though men be convinced of an evil, yet if the temptation shall still abide, they will be ready to fall to it again. Wherefore to prevent that evil, the temptations are to be taken away as much as we can, (faith he) I will take away the temptation; you acknowledged your selves guilty when my hand is upon you, but you will fall to it again if the temptation be not taken away.

Thirdly, Superstitious Altars and Images are to be taken away. It's the Magistrates work to take away those that are in publick place; but I have met with that heretofore, and I shall not need to speak of it now, only for you to meet with any superstitious Pictures, and Images, you must not keep them and say, what hurt will these do? though they do not hurt now, yet they may do hurt afterwards, you are not to sell and make advantage of them, but do as God doth, break them down and spoil them, that they may not hereafter be snares to any others.

Fourthly, Those things that we give that respect to, which is Gods due, are liable to the stroke of God. They gave respect to their Altars, and Images that was due to God, Gods Spirit rises against that, Ile break them down and spoil them faith God. So, whatsoever it be that you give that respect to, that God challenges to himself, you may expect that God will spoil them and break them down. If you give respect to your Estates, that's due to God, you may make an Idol of them, expect that God will break them; yea, to your Children, your Names, your Bodies, Parts, whatsoever you have, that you rob God of that respect that's due to him, and give it unto them, expect that God will break such things.

Fifthly, If it be Gods will to break down that which is evil in his Worship, let us take heed that we have no hand to set it up, that we do not endeavor to set up false Worship, for it's in Gods heart to break it down, let us not set up Idols in our hearts neither, or else where.

Tc 2
I'll break down their Altars, and will spoil their Images.

Obl. 6. From whence our Note is this; We must not break down superstitious and Idolatrous things to make up our own broken estates, for our outward advantage. We should labor the abolishing of those things, and not our own benefit by them; as certainly many do in breaking down things that are naught and superstitious, they endeavor to make up their broken estates and to gain to themselves that way, and there's all they aim at: but faith God, I'll break them down and utterly spoil them; so should we, and look not to our own advantage.

He will break them down.

Expos. 2. I find some Interpreters render the words thus, It shall break them down, and so apply it to their divided hearts. Ipsum cor, for so the Pronoun that is translated, bee, is relative, and the Antecedent according to the former Exposition is in that last Verse of the former Chapter where he had spoken of God; but according to this Interpretation the Antecedent is: Their heart is divided: Their hearts, their very discontents, their divisions shall break down their Altars, and spoil their Images. And we may have a hint of a good meditation from thence, If I say the Relative should have that Antecedent, and their hearts being divided should be a means to break down their Altars, then the Note is this:

That mens divisions and contentions break the neck of that which they contend for; especially when men in their contentions, are violent, furious, outrageous, and heady, they do usually by their rage and headiness, and passion in their contentions, break out and spoil the very thing that they would fain maintain, and their party is very little beholding.
dind unto such as seek to maintain them in a furious and in an outrageous way, by a spirit of contention. You know those furious violent Prelates, Did not they break the neck of their Prelacie meerly by their furie and outrageousnes? And in any party, those that are the most furious and outrageous, do the least service to their party, and many times are the very break-neck of their Party, and of their Cause: It shall break them down. It follows.

Ver. 3.

For now they shall say, We have no King.

WHAT, break down our Altars, and spoil our Images! no, the King will maintain them against you all, let the Prophets say what they can and a company of precise fools be against them what they will, we have the King will stand for that, he will rather lose his Crown than he will lose these things, he will stand for them to his very life, and therefore we do not fear that they shall be broken down. No, that will not serve your turns (faith the Prophet) your King shall not be able to help himself, much less to help you in those superstitious waies that you would have. For now shall they say, We have no King, They rejoiced and gloried much in their King, they bore themselves altogether upon their King, no matter for the Prophets; they have the Kings Commandement to do what they do, they can shew the Kings broad Seal for what they have done, and they were sure that they had the Kings heart with them, their King would bear them out in all. They cared not therefore whatsoever they did, so be it they have the countenance of their King that he would defend them, and not only defend, but by being zealous and forward for his waies they hop’d to have promotion by him; they did not fear to be question’d for any thing, no matter whether they went against Law or not; they could shelter themselves under the power and favor of the King,
An Exposition of Chap. 10.

King, the Pomp and Glory of the Court that was a great thing in their eyes, they were bold in their Idolatrous way and oppression, because of the power and greatness of the King; who should controul them in any thing that they did? But now (saith the Prophet) You have had your day, you have had your time that you could thus shelter your selves under the power of the King, and do what you list, and oppress, and rage, and nobody durft meddle with you, because of the power of the King, but now the case is altered.

But now they shall say, We have no King.

Had they no King?

Yes; Hosanna was their King, but the meaning is, It's all one as if we had no King, his power is so broken that the truth is, he cannot help us. Saith Drusius upon the place; he cannot protect us, which is the property of the King, and therefore it is as if we had none; now they shall say, We have no King; Alas he is not able to save himself, he can do nothing for us, his Pomp, his Power, Bravery is in the dust, he is distrest himself; and we are miserably disappointed of our hopes, we are undone, who can help us now? whither shall we go? what shall we do? our consciences upbraid us now for our bold presumptuous wickedness. Oh! how far were our hearts from the fear of the Lord, we dar'd the God of Heaven and all his Prophets, we boldly ventured upon those waies which we were told, yea which we knew in our very consciences were a provocation to the Lord, we set up our own worship, we pleased our selves, we made our wills to be the rules of all our actions that we did, we took liberty to satisifie our lusts, we mingled our own waies with Gods Ordinances, we subjected Religion to publick ends, we were riged, we were cruel towards those who differed from us, we upheld theAuthority of the King against God and his People, and now God hath justly brought this distrest estate upon us, that now the Kings Power that we trusted so in, is now now broken and in a manner gone, Oh! now we see we feared not the Lord, we have none to help us now; we now know what it is not to fear the great God, God is above us, and therefore now, what can a King do to us? what could he do for us? Suppose we had him again, Alas! our misery is beyond his help, seeing God is provoked with us, and hath forsaken us, what should a King do for us? And thus in this short Paraphrase you have the scope of the words, as if the People should have spoken in this manner.

But now the question is, what times doth this refer to?

Now they shall say, We have no King & c.

When did they say so?

The times that this refers to, seems to be those that we reade of in 2 King. 17: If you read that Chapter, you shall find the times that this hath reference to; then they might well say, We have no King; because we feared not the Lord: What then should a King do to us?

For the Observations from it, the first is this:

It's a great evil for a People, not to have the Protection and the Blessing that might be enjoyed in the right Government of a King over them: A great evil; And they complain of it as a great evil, and so far their complaint is right, That they are now deprived of the Protection and good that otherwise they might have had from the right Government of a King over them.

And my Brethren, our condition is even such in regard of the personal presence and protection of a King, in those regards we may almost use the same words as here; and say, We have no King among us. And whether it be better for a People to have no King, or to have no Protection from their King? But that which is contrary to Protection is a Question fitter to be discussed and determined in a Parliament than in a Pulpit; and to them I shall leave it.

But the Church of God shall never have cause to make this Complaint, That they have no King; in Psal. 29. 10;

Ps 29. 10. The Lord sitteth King for ever. The Lord will give strength unto... unto his People; the Lord will bless his People with peace. In Ps. 45.6. Thy Throne (O God) is for ever and ever: the Scep-

Ps. 149.9. dom is an everlasting Kingdom: and thy Dominion endureth Psal. 45.6. Why should I fear God for ever and ever:

the scepter of thy Kingdom is a right Scepter. Thy Kingdom is an everlasting Kingdom: and thy Dominion endureth throughout all generations. Psal. 145.2. Let the Children of Zion rejoice in their King.

Because we feared not the Lord.

It is a great evil not to fear the Lord. Fear ye not me (faith the Lord) who have placed the sands for the bounds of the Sea? It's an evil, and a bitter thing, that the fear of the Lord is not in men. For God is a great God, infinitely above us, clothed with Majesty and Honor; trembling frames of heart becomes his presence: non like unto the Lord; great and marvellous are his works; Oh! who would not fear him? God hath infinite authority over us, to save, or to destroy us, he hath us all at an infinite advantage by the least word of his mouth to undo us, his wrath is insupportable: Who among us shall dwell with the devouring fire?
Who among us shall dwell with everlasting burnings? Darest thou a vile wretch presume to rebel against any word of the Lord, when the next word may sink soul and body into the bottomless gulf of eternal horror and despair? Who art thou that dost not fear the Lord? Doest thou not fear the Commanding Word of the Lord, when the next word that proceeds out of his mouth may be a destroying word to undo body and soul for ever?

Secondly, They said, We feared not the Lord.

And observe: In times of prosperity when men have the favor and countenance of great Ones, then there is little fear of God among them. Now they said, We feared not the Lord. Oh!
those times when we had the favour and countenance of great Men, there was little fear of God among us. So long as men have any confidence in the Creature, so long they see no need of God, their hearts are swollen with pride, God is not in all their thoughts, they say to God, Depart from us, we do not desire the knowledge of thy Wails. They let their hearts and tongues against the God of Heaven, they can venture upon any thing then; to tell them it's sin against God, it's a poor dry business, it's nothing at all with them; how vile and foolish are the hearts of wicked men, that the enjoyment of such poor things as they have in the Creature should imbolden their hearts against the great God of Heaven and Earth? yet thus it is, men little consider but even those things that their hearts do so much rest upon, they are absolutely at the disposal of this God whom their hearts do not fear.

But note, let the Saints of God take this Note with them, Shall creature confidence take men's hearts off from God's fear? Then let God's fear take your hearts off from creature confidence: Certainly there's a great deal more reason. Oh! 'tis infinitely irrational that creature confidence should take the heart from God's fear; but it's infinitely rational that God's fear should take our hearts off from creature confidence.

Thirdly, Now they shall say, We feared not the Lord.

The taking from a People the protection of, and benefit they might have by Kingly Power, is a punishment of the want of the fear of God in them. We have no King, we are deprived of the benefit of the good that we might have, the protection that we might have by Kingly power; it is, because we feared not the Lord; what evil we feel in this let us attribute it to the want of the fear of God in ourselves, and in the people of the Land. We complain of those that are about the King, and of Her that lies in the Bosom of the King, and of the evil of his own heart in part; but whence is it that God hath left him, either to them, or to any evil in his own spirit? The Lord in this punishes the sins of the People: 'tis usual for God to punish the sins of the People in leaving Governors unto evil courses, in 2 Sam. 24. 1, you have a remarkable Scripture for this, faith the text there, And the Anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel: and what then? And he moved David against them to say, Go number Israel and Judah. The Anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel, and he moved David against them: to what? God lets temptations be before David for to fall into that sin that might bring evil upon the people. It was because the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel. It's because that a people fear not God, therefore it is that the Lord leaves Kings, leaves their Governors to those evil waies that they are left unto, and therefore learn we when we hear of any evil that is done by countenance of Kings or any power, learn we to lay our hands upon our own hearts, and say, even this is because we feared not the Lord: how easie had it been with the Lord to have wrought upon his heart, Oh! what prayers hath been sent up unto the Lord for the heart of one man? never since the world began more prayers for the heart of one man; but the Lord hath seem'd even to shut his ears against the prayers of his people, now let us lay our hands upon our hearts, God hath denied our prayers, it is because we have not feared him: now certainly there hath been but little fear of God amongst us, and little fear of the great God is still to this day among us. And that's the third Observation, We have no King because we feared not the Lord.

And then the Fourth is this, The times of Gods Wrath and Judgments forces acknowledgment from men that they did not fear God. When God comes against them in waies of wrath, now they can acknowledg that they feared not God; should the Prophet have come to them before and told them, Oh! you are a wretched vile people, there is no fear of God among you. Why, wherein do not we fear God? as in Malae.
Mal. 1. they would not be convinced, but, Now shall they say, &c. Now when the wrath of God is upon men, now they shall say, we see now apparently we feared not the Lord. As it’s said of Cardinal Wolsey when he was in distress, Oh faith he, Had I but served God as well as I served the King, it would have been otherwise with me than it is; but I sought to please the King rather than God, and now I am left in this distressed estate. He would have scorned that any should have told him before that he pleased the King more than God; but afflictions they will draw forth acknowledgment: for in afflictions God appears dreadful to the soul, it is no dallying, and trifling, and putting off then, we see we have to deal with an infinite, Glorious, and dreadful God, and in times of affliction now conscience will brave over men, it will not be quieted and still’d so as in the times of prosperity, but it will speak, as we read of Zebul in Judges, 9. 38. faith Zebul, Where now is thy mouth where-with thou saidest, Who is Abimelech? So faith conscience in times of affliction to wretched creatures, Where now is that bold and presumptuous heart of thine? Thou scornest at fearing and trembling before God, and slightest his Word, but where now is that proud wretched heart of thine? And in times of afflictions now are mens hearts abased and humbled, and therefore now they are ready to say, It is, because they feared not the Lord. Mark here, they do not (when they are in afflictions and troubles) say, I, we may thank these kind of people, there were a company of factious people and they would not yield to anything, and we may thank them for all this; you hear no such words, Oh no, but it is, Because we feared not the Lord. When the heart is in any degree humbled, it will not put off the cause of evils to other men, or other things, but will charge it self as the cause of the evils that are upon it. Oh how much better my Brethren were it for us to see the want of the fear of God by his Word to us, and his Spirit in us, than by his wrath Ob. 7.

Mal. 1.

Cardinal Wolsey.

In affliction God appears dreadful.

Judg 9.

Zebul’s exprobatio
wrath against us, or his stroke upon us. Let us every day examine our hearts. How hath the fear of God been in me this day? hath the fear of God acted, and guided me in all my thoughts, counsels, and actions this day? How happy were it when we ever lie down to rest to have such a short meditation, Hath the fear of God been the thing that hath Acted, and Governed, and Guided me in my course this day? But it follows.

What then shall a King do to us? (or, for w?)

Suppose we had him, now he is gone, but if we had him, what good would he bring to us if we had him? As if they should say, we speak much concerning our King, but now we have not the King with us as he was, but if he were with us again, what should he do for us? what would our condition be better than it is? And indeed, what good had their Kings done for them? The People of Israel they were very delirious of a King, they must needs have a King, God granted to their desires in giving them Saul, then afterwards they must have a King again, so they had Jeroboam, and he must be the King of the ten Tribes. Their first King they had, it was in Gods wrath, and every one of the Kings of Israel * was a plague to them, what had they done for them? All the time they had Judges they were in a better case; Israel was in a far better case when they were ruled by the Government of God. And Peter Martyr in his Preface to the Book of Judges, observes three things wherein Israel was better when they were under Judges, than Kings.

For first, (say he) All the time they had Judges; they were not let Captive out of their own Country so as afterwards.

Secondly, When ever they were oppressed and God raised them up a Judge, he did alwaies prevail so as to deliver them from their oppression, before he had done he delivered them them from their oppression; that's to be observed in the story of the Judges: but their Kings did not so.

And thirdly, We find not any one of their Judges are charged or condemned by God for evil, that they were evil Judges among them, as the King; are; such a one did evil in the sight of the Lord, and such a one did evil, and every one of the Kings of Israel did so. God doth not charge the Judges so; it was otherwise therefore with them after they had Kings. And the truth is, that Christ hath been but little beholding to (I may say) almost to most of our Kings; yea, little beholding to most of the Kings that have lived upon the earth, and he hath taken as little care of the greater part of them: As they have taken little care of his Honor, so he hath taken little care of the Greater part of them, of all the Roman Emperors that were declared by the Senate in Number sixty three, Historians agree that there was but six of all them that had such protection from God as to die a natural death, but six of three score and three; there were twenty nine of the Emperors that did not reign above twenty five years and odd months; yea there were twelve of them that did reign but three years and odd months: see what havock was made of them: they regarded not the Honor of Jesus Christ, but were enemies unto him, and he regarded as little their safety.

What then should a King do to us?

From hence the Notes are these:

First. When God forsakes a People, there's nothing can do them good. For they did most dote upon a King that should do them good, and help them. When God forsakes a People, nothing then can do them good, Psalm, 127. at the beginning, Except the Lord build the house, &c.

Secondly. It's just with God, to make those things useless to men which they sinfully dote upon, and put their confidence in. They sinfully doted upon Kings, and put their confidence in.
in them, & God doth now justly make the power of Kings useless to them: What shall a King do to us? If we do upon them, it's just with God to make them useless to us. Or if we do upon our Credit, and Names, and so upon Kings and Princes; if men expect preferment from them, it's just with God to blast all their hopes, that they should be forced to say, Now I see God fights against him, as we as against me. Thus the people spake in respect of their Kings.

This Scripture may well be a Comment upon that Text we have in Psalm, 146. 3. Put not your trust in Princes, &c. Do not put your trust in Princes, have no confidence in them; if you put your trust in them, they will be useless to you. *And Chrysostom upon that very Psalm hath this Note: Whereas they would say, Oh! he is a Prince. Saith Chrysostom, Let me tell you that which you perhaps will wonder at: Because he is a Prince, therefore put not your trust in him (saith Chrysostom) And he gives this reason, Because (saith he) who is in a more unsafe condition than they? Are not they fain to have their Guards go about them to protect them? They in times of peace when they are in a City that is ruled by good Laws, yet they are fain to have the Instruments of War round about them, to protect them; and therefore put not your confidence in them, because they are Princes: but then in the Psalm, they are call'd to put their confidence in the Lord, who made Heaven and Earth, the Sea and all that therein is; which keepeth truth for ever. Alas you may put confidence in Princes, but they will not keep truth; they will make fair promises to you, that you shall have some great matters by them, but they use you for to serve their own turns; but put your trust in the Lord, and the Lord shall reign for ever; as it is in the 10. verse, Kings do not reign for ever, they are the children of men, the breath is in their Nostrils; but the Lord shall reign for ever.

And again thirdly, What shall a King do for us? How great an evil is it to a people then, whose complaints are; what doth a King not do against us? Flu-cus upon the forenamed Psalm, (those that read his Co-tent shall find that Note in it) saith he, You are not to put your trust in Princes that are the children of men, they are but men; yea, but what shall we say to those that are cruel oppressors that are rather like Tygers and such kind of wild beasts among men, that seem not to be children of men, how shall we put our trust in them? Oh! it's a sad condition indeed that a people is in, when they have this case to complain, when they shall have cause to cry out and complain, Oh how! how doth he run from place to place, plundering, spoiling, breaking, tearing, destroying wherever he comes? That people is in a sad condition indeed, what shall he do for us? Nay, what doth he not do against us continually? and all this, because we have not feared the Lord. That's the third Note.

The fourth is, And what shall a King do to us?

See here the alteration of the spirits of these men towards their King; King, not long ago they put their confidence in their King, and gloried in their King, and now, what shall a King do to us? Hence the Note is;

God can soon make a great change in the hearts of people in reference to their Kings; that even those that did dote, and admire him, and own no other God but their King, shall ever turn their hearts and say, What can a King do for us?

the least turn of God upon the hearts of people will make such a change as this is.

Again, here observe, The difference between the blessed estate of Gods People, and the wretched estate of wicked men; those who fear God can say, What shall a King, what shall men, what Devils do against us? But other men in their straights, what shall they do for us? We are in a distressed condition, and what shall they do for us? But the People of God are never in such a distressed condition but they are able to say, What shall Men or Devils be able to do against us? for God is our Protector.

Again
Again sixty, The more stoutness, and sinfulness, and creature-confidence there is in any, the more do their hearts sink in desperation when they come to be cast in their hopes. They were very stout and full of creature-confidence before they were brought into misery, and now what low fordid spirits have they? now they sink in desperation: There's no men and women have their hearts sink in desperation, more than those that in ruff of their pride are the most bold and presumptuous against God and his Servants.

Again: What shall a King do to us? Their hearts sink in regard of any hopes that they have from their King. But yet you reade nothing of their hearts being set upon God, and mourning, and working towards God, when they are taken from the creature they say not thus, Now we see our vain confidence in our King, and what hopes we had of preferment in him, God hath cast us; well, we will go and seek to make the King of Heaven to be our portion. No, there's no such thing comes from them as this.

A Carnal heart when it is knockt off of creature confidence and sinks in desperation in regard of the creature, it doth not take advantage upon this, To have the heart work after God so much the more; but there it lies fullen & finking, it hath no interest in God, and cannot go to him to make up what it wants in the creature: But it is otherwise with a gracious heart, that acknowledges the hand of God hath taken off my confidence in the creature, yea, but I hope it is in mercy to my soul, that my heart might have the more confidence in God, and that God might have the more glory from me, and therefore I hope that this taking off my heart from the creature, will for ever unite my heart more to the Lord than ever heretofore it hath been. Yea, this is a gracious work indeed when the heart is taken off from creature confidence and brought nearer unto the Lord. And thus much for the third Verse. It follows.
VER. 4.
They have spoken words.

They are convinced of their sin, that they have not feared God, they cry out of their misery, what shall a King do to them? But mark what follows? this follows upon it, they were not gain'd to God ever a whit the more, But they have spoken Words, swearing falsely, in making a Covenant.

When they are taken off from their hopes one way, see how they set upon another. Luther upon those words, faith: it's an Hebraism; they have anxiously consulted. It's the way of the Hebrews so to express an anxious consultation, and for that he quotes that place in Isa. 2. 10. Take counsel together, and it shall come to naught &c. So then the meaning would be this:

They have spoken Words:] That is, they get together and contrive one with another what they shall do in such a case as this, how they may any way help themselves. As we read sometimes of the People of God in Malac. 3. 16. those that feared God met one with another and spake together; so these wicked wretches that were thus disappointed of their hopes, they met together, and spake one to another, some such kind of word as these:

Our Case is very sad, Oh! who would have thought such things should have befallen us? We are as much crosst of our hopes as ever any men were, we made account we should have over-run them, and they would have been but as bread unto us, we should have made a prey upon them, and all their estates would have been ours long before this time; Oh but now, those Prophets that told us that God was against us, those Ministers that encouraged people in the Name of God, and those people that were different from us, now we see that their words are fulfilled, and what they thought would come, is now come upon us, now it's come to pass what such precise ones among us whose consciences would not submit to our waies & the way of our King said, surely they cannot but look upon us as a most wretched miserable forsaken people, now we are like to lose our Houses, Estates, Honors, and all those delightful things that we hoped to have had, we shall lose all those things that we hoped might have made our lives to have been brave, and prosperous, and merry, and jocund, Oh! what shall we do in such a distress'd state as this? We had almost as good die as to endure such a miserable life as we are like to live, to be at the mercy of such men whom we know scorn us and hate us, Is there no way to help ourselves? cannot we get some or other to join with us? cannot we call in no help from any strangers, no matter what we yield to them in. Thus they toss up and down, and wrig up and down, not knowing what in the world to do in their conference.

Or thus; May we not yet possibly make up some peace though we be in this distress'd condition? Whatsoever propositions they shall profer to us, we will rather than fail yield to them all, we may perhaps get some advantage hereafter or be in some means in a better case to revenge our selves than now we are, If they will have us take the COVENANT, & nothing else will satisfy them, we will do it; and when we have taken it, perhaps they may put some of us in places of trust, and so we may privately work about our own ends that way, and drive on our own designs in such a way better than in any hostile way, and if together with their Covenant they will have Oaths, we will take them too, and if we cannot agree to their Oaths or Covenant hereafter we will say, we were forced to it, and therefore they do not bind us. Some such kind of communication it's like they had. And could you hear the communication of our Adversaries when they get together in those straites that God hath brought them into, it's like you would hear some such kind of stuff as this is, they spake these words one to another.

Chap. 10.

They have spoken Words.

According to others thus, They spake words, that is, those speaking words, have reference to the times of the Prophets threatening, or when they saw their danger eminent and not fully upon them, so some carry it: and I find the Chaldee Paraphrase hath it thus, They spake violent words; and then the sense is thus; they rage, and fret, they speak proud swelling words, they swear and curse; for to the Chald. curse in swearing signifies, cursing, as well as swearing, they swear and curse; what, our Images be broken down, what shall we be brought under and made to serve our enemies? We scorn it, we devise all that shall have such a thought as this is, we will do this and that, we will have our minds, we will die for it else, we will enter into Leagues with such and such, we will get such and such to conjure together with us, I'le warrant you we shall make our party thus, and thus: thus they speak great things that they will do, yea that they will: thus they speak words, in making a Covenant with Oaths of Vanity (to you may reade it.) And indeed if men could prevail with great Words, and daring Expressions, and bold Resolutions, and desperate Oaths, and wicked Curses, then may some hope to prevail against the God of Heaven and his Saints; but faith he, These things shall do them no good. And indeed these things should never move us, though we hear our Adversaries speak proud swelling words, and say what they will do, threaten Monstrous things, let us not be troubled at it, for they do but hasten the Wrath of God against themselves. In the mean time while they are swearing, and cursing, and making brags and boast what they will do, the counsels of the Lord they work their ruin, and work the good of his people, they spake words, such kind of Words.
They speak words, swearing falsely, in making a Covenant.

Expos. 1. What hath this reference to? What Covenant did they make? And wherein did they swear falsely? Some think it hath reference to the Covenant that the People did make with Jeroboam at the first, and so with his Successors; that is thus. The People came to him and took their Oaths, and entered into solemn League, that they would stand by him in the breach that he made from the house of David, that they would stand by him in opposing those that would not yield to him in the Alteration of Worship: For their Princes would not probably have been so strongly set upon the Alteration of the ways of Worship, had not the People joined themselves freely to him by way of Oaths and Covenant; now when he saw that the People came flocking and willing to yield to the Oath which he would give them, upon this he was confirm'd in the way that he went in; and so they took Oaths in Covenanting with Jeroboam, which were but Oaths of vanity; for so the same word that signifies False, signifies Vain in the Hebrew tongue: so I find Amos Montanus, and Vatablus take the words as having reference to that.

Expos. 2. But now others (and that more probably) understand this Covenant and Swearing to be the Covenant that they took with the Assyrians, and with the Egyptians, the story of which you have in the fornamed place, in 2 King. 17. Hoshea sent Messengers to So King of Egypt, and brought no present to the King of Assyria as he had done year by year. First, he had Covenanted with the King of Assyria, and that was broke, and then they would Covenant with So King of Egypt, and so they swore falsely, in in making a Covenant with the Assyrians, and the Egyptians.

Obs. 1. Now the Observations are, That Carnal hearts in their straits have no God to go to, therefore they take shifting courses; As a Dog that hath lost his Master, will follow after any for relief.
And secondly, It’s an evil thing in straights for men that profess Religion to combine with wicked men. God professed he will not take the wicked by the hand, neither should we; it’s a sign the cause is evil, when men can have no other help but by combining with wicked and ungodly men. Just thus it is for all the world with our adversaries (at this day) to the Parliament, all men generally that have any profession of Godliness they see they cannot have help that way, therefore combine and bring into Covenant Irish Rebels, Papists, any People in the world, If it were Turks, or Jews, or any in the world to help themselves withal; this is the wickedness of mens hearts.

And then thirdly, There is no trust to be had to wicked men in their Oaths and Covenants; let their Protections be never so solemn, their Oaths, their Covenants, it is but only to gain time to work about some advantage, that they cannot work about for the present while they have any opposition: If they have not things under their power as they desire, they will promise you any thing in the world, but when once they come to get power in their hands, then who shall require the fulfilling of their Promises, their Oaths, their Covenants? And therefore certainly, when we have to deal with those that we have had experience to be false, we must ever retain this conclusion, except we see an apparent change in their hearts, for that’s not enough that they are willing to take Covenants, that’s no new thing; but till we see that God hath wrought some mighty work upon their hearts we must carry this conclusion; Certainly if they can they will ruin us, therefore our condition cannot be safe but to be so as they can do us no hurt. That’s the third Note. And then the fourth is this:

That, Breaking Covenant, though with wicked men, is a very great wickedness, God will be revenged for it. I have heretofore spoken of falseness and falseness in Covenant, and Promises, and shewn you the example of Saul and Zedekiah; therefore I shall not look back to those things. God loves loves humane societies, which cannot be preserved but by faithfulness; Faithfulness (it's the Speech of a Heathen) it's the common safety of all men. I remember I have read of the Romans that they did so esteem of Faithfulness, by the light of Nature in Covenants, that they accounted Faithfulness to be a Godess, and they built, and dedicated a Temple unto fidelity as to a Godess, in which Temple all their Leagues, Truces, Covenants, and Bargains were sworn, which were so Religious ly observed, that whofo-ever broke them, was to be held as a cursed and damned creature, unworthy to live in humane societies. And the Egyptians would punish Perjury with death. Among the Indians the fingers and toes of Perjured persons were cut off. And I have likewise read when Tissaphernes the Per-ian warred against the Grecians, he broke Covenant with the Grecians. Now Agesilas when he saw that they had broke their Covenant, he rejoiced at it greatly, saying thus, For (faith he) by this means he hath made the gods to be his enemy, and our friend; wherefore let us boldly give him battel. We know how our enemies have broken their Covenants from time to time, and their Conditions that they have made themselves, yea, even lately in that Town that we hear such good of now, that we hope the Lord is even revenging himself upon them for breaking Covenant even in that very place. Now my Brethren, that even Heathens themselves are convinced of this great evil, that is so dreadful an evil; what cause have we to lay our hands upon our hearts this day in respect of that part of our Covenant, that concerns one another, for certainly since the time of our solemn Covenant there was never more treachery than there hath been in England, and in Scotland too, there hath been as much treachery since that time as ever yet was, since either of them were a Nation;
we have been false one to another so far as it relates to our selves.

Expos. 3. But I find that Calvin in his Notes upon this Scripture, under-understands this Oath and Covenant not to be a Covenant to men, but their Covenant with God, in promising repentance and new obedience, and so they spake only words, Swearing falsely, they did but deceive him in swearing and making a Covenant; and this indeed is a sore and dreadful evil to swear to the high God, and to Covenant with him, to draw so nigh to him and yet to be false, God threatens in Levit. 26. 25. That he will send a sword to avenge the quarrel of his Covenant; and when we see the sword rageth so as it doth, we may have cause to fear that the Lord hath a quarrel against us, in avenging the late Covenant that hath been made (I mean our falseness in it) and that we may see further our guiltiness and evil in swearing falsely in making a Covenant, we must know that many waies our hearts may be false in our Covenants with God. It is a dreadful evil to be false any way in Covenant with God; any of you that upon your sick beds have been solemnly promising to God reformation if God restored you; if you be false, Oh know, that the Lord hath a quarrel against you, and he hath a dreadful evil to charge upon your souls: How many of you have been false in your private Covenants? But to be false in publick Covenants, that’s most dreadful. But our hearts may be false divers waies. As,

First, If we take our Covenant meerly upon politick grounds, we make the solemn Worship of God, wherein we express our fidelity for Reformation of Religion to be meerly subserviant to politick grounds, here’s a falseness of heart, we are false in swearing thus, and making a Covenant; we do not sanctifie the Name of God as we ought.

Or Secondly, If we put false Interpretations, we are false; when we shall make our Covenant a meer snare to our Brethren; let us consider how far any of us are guilty of this, and let the Lord judge between us; I say, when we seek to make it a snare even to our Brethren: How have those

those been accused for the breach of this Oath which have not accorded in things that are in Controversie with our Brethren, as if this Oath were put upon all men to determin most abstruse and difficult points of Controversie, to bring men to submit to things as are very abstruse and difficult to understand; this were to make an Oath a snare, and to take the Name of God in vain in a tearful manner: Certainly the Lord never would have Oaths put to men to this end, that men that are of different ways and opinions in Controversial things, for to be forced by way of an Oath to be of the same judgement, and to do the same things; this is a great abuse of this Oath wheresoever it is urged so far; Certainly there's no man guilty of the breach of this Oath and Covenant, that shall but endeavor what he can to understand what the mind of God is, and then to practice according as he understands, though he should mistake, as in the point of Schism in that point of the Covenant, the thing its self being a sin, we may as well swear against it, as David did to keep Gods Commandements: but now, if David did labor to understand Gods Commandements, and do as far as he did understand, supposte he did not understand all things aright, it might be his weakness, but not his perjury. So, let us be in point of Schism, or any other point of the Covenant, if men do endeavor to understand what is Schism by the Scripture, and accordingly do in their several places, by what means their consciences tells them is lawful endeavor to oppose it, though they should not think that to be Schism that their Brethren do think, or perhaps is so, yet they are not forsworn: this is evil, to make a Covenant to be a snare unto us, and our hearts so far are false in it.

And then thirdly: Then is the he heart false in making a Covenant, when it doth not fulfill it according to the nature of it, when it goes quite opposite against it. As since our Covenant hath been made; When was there ever greater divisions? Our Covenant is for unity: When more prophaneness ungodliness; our Covenant is against it; when more injustic: Our Covenant is against all these, and yet since England was a Nation there was never stronger cries came to Heaven for these sins than there hath been since our Covent. And therefore certainly there's a great breach between God and us in this regard.

And then fourthly, When men make their Covenant to be a cloak for Malignity; that is, Though they have Malignant and vile wicked spirits, yet they can but take the Covenant and then all is well. Here they swear falsely in making a Covenant.

Thus Judgment springeth up as Hemlock in the furrows of the field.

After this their Covenant there is a great deal of injustice among them.

Judgment.] By Judgment, some understand the Judgments of God, and then the sense is, Those wicked waies of yours are the seeds that brings up Gods Judgments, that is as Hemlock bitter and deadly; there's a truth in this Interpretation, though I think it is not the full scope of the words here: but it may be the holy Ghost, would hint some such thing unto us in it, That our actions are as seeds, and what they are sown here they will bring forth according to the nature of them. Wicked actions when they are sown, will bring forth bitter fruit, will bring forth Hemlock:
It may be (faith he) you look for peace and prosperity, but contrary to your expectation, behold Hemlock and bitternels. I beseech you take heed of preparing your selves a potion of Hemlock against you lie sick and are cast upon your death bed; a man hath sown his field, he thinks to have a good crop of Corn, but Judgment, the Judgment of God comes up, and there's Hemlock instead of it.

But because I think this not to be the scope of the place, therefore I pass it by, and rather think that by Judgement is here meant, Righteousness, Equity, and Justice.

Expof. 2. That whereas there should be Righteousness, Equity, and Justice, as it's expected; behold instead of this there springs up a crop of Oppression, Unrighteousness, and Injustice that is bitter as Hemlock; I rather think that this must be the meaning, because I find that in divers Scriptures Injustice is compared to bitter things, yea, to Hemlock itself, in Amos, to Hemlock's 5. 7. Ye turn Judgment to Wormwood, and leave off Righteousness in the Earth. And in Amos, 6. 12. Shall Horses run upon the Rock? will one plow there with Oxen? I will not stand to open the former text, but you see the Scripture charges the people by this expression, of sinning against Judgment and Righteousness, that they turned it to Hemlock.

Now I find three things especially recorded of this herb.

First, It is a very venomous herb; therefore I find Pliny records of it in his 25. Book, 13. Chap. of Natural History, that the Athenians did use to give this to malefactors that were condemn'd to die to execute them withal. And Socrates that was so wise a man among them, yet he because he did not yield to their gods, but spake against their false gods, therefore they judged him to die, and he must drink a potion of Hemlock, and so died.

And Secondly, I find the same Author faith of it that, the leaves are somewhat like to Coriander, but that they be more tender, and a strong stinking smel they have with them: and the seeds like to Annis. And so Justice seems to have a very fair pretence sometimes, and may seem to do things that are very good; under very fair pretences men are very unjust: the leaves when they come up one would think there should be such a fine fruit, one would think to have Coriander, or Annis, but the truth is, it comes to Hemlock at last.

And
And then the third thing is, that which Hierom reports of it, and it is in his Comment upon my text, he faith that Hemlock grows up very stiff and full of joynts, and at the joynts (he faith) it puts forth a stalk, and that doth not only sprout upwards and bear fruit, but downwards to have a root, & he faith that every branch, If it hath but a joynt in it it will serve instead of a feed, yea, every sprig of it will serve instead of feed; yea, he faith, if any pieces falls to the ground, it wil grow up, and so grow up as that it will be very hard to rid the ground of it. And truly thus it doth resemble Injustice, if it be let alone but a little, Oh how it multiplies one to another and spreads through the whol Land quickly.

And Pliny doth observe many other things too, he faith that the root of it is hollow, and that's unfit for any use at all; and so are the hearts of those that are unjust, hollow hearts and unfit for any thing.

And also he faith, that the leaves are fit for swellings, and against sore eyes. And God doth turn even the injustice that is many times, among a people to be medicines to his people against their swellings, and to open their sore eyes.

And he faith, That if Hemlock be drank in Wine, it will certainly kill a man, and there is no remedy. So if men shall be Injust and take delight in it, and take pleasure in it, and scorn and contemn at those that they can oppress by Injustice, those men are in a desperate condition indeed.

And then lastly, he doth observe by this Herb that it kills by cold, those that takes the leaves or seeds, if they get the mality of any they shall feel themselves begin to was cold in their inward parts, and so die inwards. Oh! how many who have been very hot and zealous, yet having gotten power into their hands they have unrighteously used their power, they have grown cold in what they were formerly zealous in, and still they grow colder, and colder; and thus their unrighteousness is like to prove to be their death.

In the furrows of the field.

Calvin, Expos. Calvin puts this Question, Why doth he not say, it springs up in the field, but in the furrows of the field? And he gives this Answer to it; Where there are furrows in the field, there hath the plow come that hath broken up the field, and it is to prepare for good seed when the field is laid in furrows, and it's less tolerable for Hemlock to spring up there than in the field that is not plowed, or in other places.

But when a field is plowed and prepared for seed, and one would hope to have much advantage by his field; to have much Justice and Righteousness in a Country, when we see there hath been great works of God to cast out those that were unjust before, and the expectation of all the people is, that certainly now there will be nothing but Righteousness, and Judgment; but instead of that comes up Injustice, and Oppression, as Hemlock, it springeth up in such a field that is so prepared for Justice. Oh! this is that which is a fore evil, that the Lord is so provoked against, and so complains of, that Judgment springeth up as Hemlock in the furrows of the field.

Thus Judgment springeth up as Hemlock in the furrows of the field.

What the meaning of Hemlock in the furrows of the field is, you have heard already: From whence the Note is this,

Ob. 1. That People is in a sad condition, and it is a sign the Lord hath forsaken them, that they are near ruin, when those places where there is most likelihood of Justice and Equity, that there should be Injustice and Oppression. Oppression and Injustice in places where where God expects Righteousness and Equity, is a sad Omen, a forerunner of great evil to places. It's God's complaint in Isa. 5. Just before he threatened the utter spo-ing of his Vinyard, he gives this reason, I (faith he) looked that it should bring forth Grapes; and behold, it brought forth wild Grapes: and he mentions among the wild Grapes, Injustice: there it's call'd wild Grapes, as Hemlock here, for both are very sour, and bitter before the Lord; Injustice in places from whence Justice may be expected, is by the Lord accounted a most fearful, a ruining sin: In Amos, 5.

12. I know (faith the Lord) your manifold transgressions, and your mighty sins. Now the word that is translated [mighty sins] it is in the Hebrew your Boney sins,because the strength of a man it is in his bones; and therefore he calls the strength of that sin boney; it is a very strong sin, it cannot easily be resisted; your sins have great bones in them (faith he) and what are they? You affiict the Just, you take a Bribe, that you may turn away the poor in the gate from their right: that's their great and their mighty sins. In Jer. 22. 15. Did not thy Father do Judgment and Justice, and then it was well with him? He judged the Cause of the poor and the needy, and then, it was well with him again. And was not this to know me, faith the Lord? Let men talk never so much of Reformation, and of setting up the Worship of God, and of casting out false Worship, yet if they rejoice in Injustice and Oppression instead of that, God will not take himself as known; but faith he, Thine eyes and thy heart, are after covetousness, and for oppression, and for violence; and in Amos, 5. 21. is a remarkable place for this, faith he, I hate, I despise your feast daies, and I will not smell to your solemn Assemblies. You have many Feast daies, and daies of Thanksgiving, you bless me for what I do for you, but I will not care for your daies of Thanksgiving, (why?) in the 24. verse, Let Judgment run down as waters, and Righteousness as a mighty river; as if he should say, keep as many daies of Thanksgiving as you will, I care for none of them, except Judgment run down as water, and Righteousness as a mighty stream: Mark here the expression of the holy Ghost, Judgment and Righteousness is compared to a River, that is, it should be common for all, that the poorest might come and take of it as well as the richest, it must not be like a Pond, or Well, inclosed for a mans private use; but faith he, Let Judgment run down as Water, and Righteousness as a River; it must be as a River: now you know the Thames every poor body may come and fetch water there for their relief: so Justice should be like the Water in the Thames that the poorest of all may have it for the very fetching of it: But till then faith he, I regard none of your daies of thanksgiving. And so in Isa. 58. there's one special reason why the daies of Fasting were not regarded, it was, because of their oppression of the poor, and their uncharitableness, and their Injuriousness in the Courts of Justice. We have now many daies of Fasting and Thanksgiving more than ever yet England knew, & we may think that God will smel a sweet favor, but Oh! this Hemlock coming up in the furrows of the field will imbitter all, for if ever God did look for Righteousness and Judgment from a people, then certainly he looks for Righteousness and Judgment from us at this day; Oh! for us now, that stand in need of so much mercy, that cry for mercy, and be oppressing at such a time as this is, it is a most dreadful thing: What, is all the cost that God hath bestowed upon us come to this, that there should be no other fruit but Hemlock to come up in the furrows in the field; all the cost of God and man, all the Works of God towards us, doth it come but to this issue, only to bring forth Hemlock? Was there ever more cries, was there ever more bitter moans and complaints because of Injustice than of late hath been in this Land? Never were People so frustrated in their expectations. When indeed such as were notoriously wicked were in place, then we expected nothing but Hemlock: But now they are cast out of place, and others are come in, we hoped that there had had been such a preparation that nothing but fruits of Righteousness would have come up. But now to be oppressed by them that are in places of former oppressors, this is grievous. Lord, what is man? In Isa. 59. 9. Therefore (as he) is Judgment far from us, neither doth Justice overtake us; we wait for light, but behold obscurity; for brightness, but we walk in darkness, (this light it is especially spoken of the light of Justice) as if they should say; the Land once indeed was dark, all the Courts of Judicature, and all the men that had places to judge in, they were darkness, and we had nothing but darkness; yea, but now we waited for light, we hoped now there would be Reformation, it's spoken after their many daies of Fasting and Prayer, but yet behold darkness, behold oppression still, Oh! many who are come empty into places of power much harder than some former Oppressors did? And what will be the end of these things? How many poor men travel many times far, expecting fruits of Justice, but they meet with Hemlock? they sigh and lift up their eyes and hearts to Heaven, sending up their moans to God, Lord, is this the fruit of our labor? do our hopes come to this? What, must we go home with sad hearts and be made a scorn and prey to those that are wicked round about us? Oh! these are sad moans at such times as these are.

My Brethren, it were easy to name many stalks of Hemlock that there are come up instead of Righteousness and Judgment among us. Please name one or two. What do you think of this.

First, That such as have been notoriously Malignant, yea, such as have been upon actual War should yet upon any slight acknowledgment or coming in, or for their own ends taking Covenant, should get into Committees, and have power there over the Well-affected party who have been most forward at the first, but now those who hate them and have spirits full of bitterness against them, should have power over them to tax them as they please. Power over over their estates, their liberty, power to order the affairs of the Country round about them, and that now they should revenge themselves upon them because they were so forward in the beginning; Oh! we may thank you, had it not been for such as you are, we had never gone on so far in the Wars, If you had not come in so freely &c. And now they have opportunity to revenge themselves upon them; What grows in the furrows here but bitter and venomous Hemlock? Where the fault lies, that we cannot determine, but such men, doing such things, in such places, It is nothing but Hemlock in the furrows of the field.

Secondly; Here's another stalk of Hemlock, That poor men taken from their families, who were the only means by their livelihood to bring in a livelihood to their wives and children, yet should be so without pay themselves, and wives and children left destitute of bread and cloathing; and Officers in an Army who were but mean men heretofore and knew scarce how to live, now they live bravely, glister in their Gold and Silver lace, what's this but Hemlock? Is not here Injustice and Oppression? that thousands should want bread, that widdows and children cry out for bread that liv'd pretty well heretofore, and others which knew not how to live heretofore, yet now shall be brave in a far higher way than ever formerly, Is not here Hemlock that grows up in the furrows of the field? I know not neither where to charge this, but yet we see Hemlock doth come up.

But now though we might name many other stalks of Hemlock, yet certainly take this Caution along with you. Every man in such times of distraction wherein we live, must account to suffer something, things cannot be carried on with that equity as if all things were setled among us, therefore though we may in an humble and peaceable way make our moans one to another, and seek to inform those that are in Power, and Petition, yet it ought to be our care what-what ever we suffer in our particular, to preserve what we can the honor of our Suprem Court; better many particulars suffer hard things than the honor of that should not be kept up; for by not keeping up that we make way to suffer worse things than ever yet we have done: for how would we have help when we meet with Wrong and Injustice? Under God there are but three waies, two extreems, and one middle: for men to have right in case of Injustice. The two extreems they are (besides our appeal to God) I speak to men, whereby a man can have any thought to get help against Injustice.

1. The one extream is, That which heretofore was the Kings Arbitrary power, acted by those that are about him. We have tasted enough of this Hemlock heretofore, Would we think to have our help that way? We know what that Hemlock means.

The second extream is, The appeal to the People, that were a remedy worse than the disease, for then all would seem to come to be in a confusion that way, if the People, the generality of the people should take up the matter we should then have nothing but murders and robberies. Then the meanest man that lives in the Kingdom if he hath but as strong Arms and Legs as the richest of all, he is presently equal with them, when things come to be redrest by the tumultuous people.

Therefore the third way of help in way of Injustice it is The Mene, and that is, by our Parliaments, that is, as things are now, is the only regular help that we can have. If we see therefore, or feel some things amis, we may be sensibly and seek help too, but in a peaceable and humble way of Petitioning, but still we should be more tender of their honor than of our own private right. And an appeal to Heaven there may be likewise, but of any seeming way of appeal to either of the two extreems, certainly in that we make our remedy worse than the disease: Pray much for them therefore that there may not one stalk of Hemlock rise rise up among them; or any seed fall down from them, but that they may be as the field which the Lord hath blessed, Full of the fruits of Justice and Righteousness, that themselves, and this City, and the Kingdom may be the habitation of Justice. That Mercy and Truth may meet together, that Righteousness and Peace may kiss each other; that Truth may spring out of the earth, and Righteousness may look down from Heaven; so you have it in Psal. 85. 9, 10, 11. verses.

Now there's one Note more that I find Tremelin and Pareus and divers others have. The Furrows of the field (say they) here is in the latter end of the word translated [field] a God: which by some is made paragogical [and an addition of form only] But others to be an affix for the plural number, and so they translate it to be thus. [Hemlock in the furrows of my field.] And that is a great aggravation. If Hemlock should be in the furrows of any field it's evil, but what, my people! men that profess Godliness, what those that profess to set up Reformation, yet Hemlock there in the furrows of my field! Oh! this is sad and evil indeed. In Jer. 31. 23. Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, As yet they shall use this speech, in the Land of Judah, and in the Cities thereof; when I shall bring again the Captivity thereof, The Lord bless thee O habitation of Justice, and mountain of Holiness. When I bring their captivity again, when I own them to be mine, then there shall be such eminent Justice and Holiness that this speech shall be used, The Lord bless thee, O habitation of Justice, and mountain of Holiness. So if we would have any evidence to our souls that God doth own us, and that we are his, and God indeed hath delivered us from our Captivity, we should labor that Justice and holiness may be so eminent that all the people about us may say, The Lord bless this Land, the habitation of Justice, and mountain of Holiness. Both must go together, we must not think to raise up the Ordinances of God, and cast out Superstition, but we must be the habitation of Justice; of the Lord that the Lord hath blessed. It follows. V.E.R.
Ver. 5

The Inhabitants of Samaria shall fear, because of the Calves of Beth-aven.

You heard before that they were convinced in their consciences that they did not fear God, For now they shall say, We have no King, because we feared not the Lord. They feared not God, but now they shall fear. From whence the Note is this.

That those that fear God least, are most afraid of any thing else. Obs. 1. Where the fear of God is not, other base fear will be, and so much the more, the less we fear God. Oh! how much better were it that our fear were set upon God, than upon other things? You must love something; Were it not better that your love were placed upon God than any thing else? And you must fear something; Were it not better that your fear were upon God, than any thing else? And you must rejoice in something, and sorrow and the like. Fear, it is a very troublesome affection, if it be misplaced; Oh! learn to place your affections right, place them upon God: By the fear of God you shall come to fear nothing else; Oh! how excellent is God's fear! This one thing sets out the excellency of the fear of God: That where the fear of God is setled in the hearts of men and women, all other base fears are rooted out. Would not you be glad to be delivered from creature fears, especially you that have lived in many dangers a few months since? Oh! if you might be delivered from the fears of the creature, how glad would you bee? Here's the only way; Let the fear of God be strong in your hearts, and the fear of the creature will not prevail with you.

You see it clearly in the example of Habakkuk, in Hab. 3. 16. When I heard (God revea'd his will) my belly trembled, Hab. 3. my lips quivered at the voice: rottenness entred into my bones, 16. and
and I trembled in my self. (But now Habakkuk, why would you trouble your self with so much fear?) Mark, there was a great good came to him by it, That I might rest in the day of trouble when he cometh up unto the people: When there shall be a coming up unto the people, and the enemy shall prevail, and when the figtree shall not blossom, nor the fruit be in the Vine, the labor of the Olive shall fail, and the field shall yield no meat, the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls, when things shall be brought into the most sad condition, that men shall be at their wits end and know not what in the world to do, then (faith he) I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my Salvation. When God shake, Then my belly trembled, and my lips quivered at the voice. Yea, but when men came in the greatest rage, and when all things were dark and dismal, and black abroad, yet then did I rejoice in the Lord, and joy in the God of my Salvation, all fear was gone then. Men can rejoice in the time of their prosperity, but in times of affliction then they fear? Whereas those that fear the Lord in their prosperity, in the times of their affliction then they most rejoice. It's a notable speech I remember I have read in Nazianzen in his 12. Oration (faith he) This is our care, That we are afraid of nothing more, than that we should fear anything more than God, That's his expression. Here's an excellent fear, here's fear rightly set; Would you fear? fear to fear any thing more than God, and then your fear is set right: but if you do not, &c. Though men that have no fear of God they may seem to have bold spirits, and it seems to come through the greatness of their spirits, that they will not fear God, yet these men in the time of danger are the most base cowardly men in the world. I'll give you a notable instance for this, Manasses he was as proud an insolent man, that seem'd to be fearless of any threatening of God, scorn'd his Prophets; But mark, when he came into danger, in 2 Chron. 33. 11. where did they find Manasses? he was run into the bushes, bushes, this brave bold spirited man that dar’d God and his Prophets, and car’d not for what was said, yet when he came into any danger, what a base low spirit he had? he runs and hides himself in a company of Bushes and Bryars.

This is the temper and guise of the spirits of men that will not fear God.

They shall fear, because of the Calves of Beth-aven.

You know what they were, those that Jeroboam set up in Dan and Bethel, the golden Calves.

Luther upon the place moves a Question, What a wonderful thing is it (faith he) that Jeroboam should be so bold, to set up Calves to worship, when there’s that eminent story of Gods revenging himself for the peoples worshiping a Calf that Aaron set up, that at one time cost the lives of twenty three thousand men which were slain, and yet that Jeroboam should presume to set up Calves again to worship? It was a strange bold attempt faith Luther, it was a wonderful thing that he should be so bold, and that he should prevail with the people. Luther gives the Answer to this Question, thus:

The truth is, there is nothing so horrible and vile but people in a little time will be brought to yield to it, if great ones by their example, and by their endeavor labor to set it up, it will be set up be it never so vile, never so abominable, yet people will be brought to it: that is his Answer.

And truly we find it so, that let people seem to abhor things never so much, yet if they find it be the sway of great ones, and if it be once set up in a way of power they yeeld to it: One would think it an impossible thing that now God having cast so much odium upon our Prelates, one would think it impossible for the People of England ever to be brought to yeeld to them, and I make no questibut many of you say so when you meet together; but do not deceive yourselves, if so be that those had prevailed that sought to prevail against us, we should quickly have the spirits of people turned in a moment, and as much for Prelates and Ceremonies, and Altars (for the generality of the People I mean) as here they did to these Calves again, though they had that sad story in their ears continually, of so many thousands that were slain for Calves before.

They shall fear, because of the Calves of Beth-aven.

Why, were there many Calves at Beth-aven? Indeed there were Calves at Dan and Bethel, but there was but one at each of them. Here Beth-aven and Bethel was all one, Jeroboam was so subtil to set up the Calf at Bethel because the place took its name from God, but here the holy Ghost calls it a House of Beth-aven, because it signifies a house of Vanity, or Iniquity, God calls it by another name: We may call things by names that may hold up some honor and respect, but God will give another name to these things that we would fain put an honor upon.

He calls it Beth-aven, and the Calves of Beth-aven. Why, was there many Calves at Beth-aven?

Expof. Now the Answer that some give is this: There was but one at Bethel indeed; but both Bethel and Dan may have the name Beth-aven, (for they are both houses of vanity) and so called Calves in respect of them both.

2. Or others thus; The Calves of Beth-aven: As if the Prophet should say, Set up as many Calves as you will, they shall not help you if you had a thousand of them.

3. Or rather as I find from Arian Montanus with others, They are called the Calves of Beth-aven, because according to the example of the Calf that was set up at Beth-aven, their workmen did make other little ones, to be in their houses; like as Demetrius that was the Silver-Smith for Diana, made Shrines
Shrines for Diana’s Temple, it was Dæmetrius’s trade to make little kind of Temples in Silver, either to hang about their necks, or to be in their houses, or ornaments: So it was probable that the Calf that was set up at Bethaven had so much honor put upon it, as to have little things made with Silver or Gold according to their estates; perhaps for mean men, little things made with Wood, and Gentlemen with Silver, and others with Gold, like to those Calves, and so had them in their families; and therefore they are called Calves in the plural number. And if this were so, we might have a good Note from that:

That the true Worshipers of God should labor to bring the true Worship of God into their families. They would bring the Calf into their families, or houses; so should we bring the Ordinances of God into our families, bring the Worship of God into our families, and not content our selves with publick Worship, but have private Worship too; they did not content themselves with a Calf abroad, but had them at home in their houses or families.

And further there is a Note from it, They are called the Calves in the feminine gender, the she Calves, that is in a way of Contempt of them.

The inhabitants of Samaria shall fear, because of the Calves of Bethaven.

Why the inhabitants of Samaria? The Calves were not there. Samaria was their chief City; as London is to England, so Samaria was the chief City to the ten Tribes: And Samaria shall fear. Samaria was a very strong City: And when the Assyrians came and carried away the ten Tribes captive, they took all the Country round about before they took Samaria: it was with Samaria as with London in these sad times: when there hath bin wars round about in England, London hath bin safe for these three years together: And so when there was wars in all Israel, yet Samaria...

Ark of God. I appeal to you what was that which your hearts trembled most for in the time of our greatest danger? Was it for the Ark of God? was it because of his Ordinances? Oh! if they prevail they will trample the Ordinances of the Lord and the Saints of God under feet, the true Worship of God, and the Power of Godliness, did your hearts tremble because of this? Certainly if your hearts were right they would do so: What, shall Idolaters tremble because of their Calves, and shall not we have our hearts tremble because of our God? 1 King. 8. 44. If thy People go out to battle against their enemies, whithsoever thou shalt send them, (what should they do?) and look towards the City which thou hast chosen, and towards the House that I have built for thy Name; then hear thou in Heaven. They when they are in prayer must look towards the City and the Temple; for the Temple was a type of Christ, to the City was a type of God's Ordinances where the people went up to Worship. Oh! that should be in our eyes, the City where the Ordinances of God are, when we go to War let that be in our eyes, and let that make us fight valiantly, and when we are praying to God, let us not pray so much that we may be delivered from our Adversaries, as that the Temple and the City of our God may be preserved.

Again, further; In that it is said, the Inhabitants of Samaria should thus fear. From thence the Note is.

That Cities that are strong and safe themselves, should be sensible of the miseries of others. Oh! God knows how far we have been wanting in this very thing; If a stranger should have come out of another Country into London, and walk about the streets, could he have imagined that there were such Civil Wars in this Land as there is, such wonderful desolations as hath been made in other parts? Oh! how little did we lay the afflictions of others to heart, because they were at some distance from us? Oh! the mercy of our God that hath not brought us into the same evils and miseries, this one sin had been enough to have provoked God against.
against us, because we were so little sensible of other Countries and Cities that were about us. This wicked Samaria, yet when they heard that Bethel and Dan, and their other Cities, when they heard what dangers they were in, Oh! they were mightily affected with it. Learn we from hence to be humbled for our want this way, and if ever the Lord should yet try us further, let us learn to be sensible of the miseries of others that are about us.

Lastly, They are afraid because of their Calves: When their Calves are gone, all their Confidence is gone, and then their hearts are over-whelmed with fear. There is no steadiness of heart in resting upon any thing but upon the living God. They that stay themselves upon any thing else, if any afflictions or dangers falls out, their hearts are fill'd with fear presently. When men have nothing to rest upon but their own inventions, their own ways, no mervail though they fear in times of danger: They begin to behink now that all is vanity to them that they rested upon; yea, the service of God that men in times of prosperity can rest upon and can satisfy their consciences withal, yet in time of danger it will not do, no inventions of men, nor no external duties of Religion, especially such as are mixt with superstition, they will not uphold the heart in times of danger, but the heart will be overwhelmed; it's only the confidence in the living God, the union of our souls with Jesus Christ, and enjoyment of communion with him in his own Ordinances that can comfort our souls in time of danger. But it's said of the Godly in Psal. 112. 7. He shall not be afraid of evil tidings: his heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord. His heart is established and he shall not be afraid. It's again repeated, let evil tidings, come what will, his heart is fixed, because he trusts in the Lord. It follows.
For the people thereof shall mourn over it.

The people thereof] Here he speaks about the Calf of Bethaven in the singular Number, for so I find it's refer'd by most Interpreters, The people of the Calf. (Of it) not of Samaria.

From thence the Note would be thus, That wicked men,

Idolaters did dedicate themselves to their Idols, they are the people of the Idol. Those that were the very peculiar of God and his Treasure, the People of God, now they are called the people of the Calf, for they have none to go to for help

but only that Idol of theirs; they had forfaken God.

And it's said, That they yet mourn over it. Though certainly at first, the setting up of the Calf could not but be a very strange thing to the people of Israel, yet within a while after they were used to it, they did worship it, and it took their very consciences, so as they loved it, and when it was taken away they mourn'd and were in extream distress and trouble. Idolaters they do mourn when their false worship is taken from them. At this day, my Brethren, how do many mourn after their superflitious vanities, their superflitious customs that they were wont to have? Now Prelates, and Service-Book, and Altars, and such kind of things are taken away, when they come to meet together, Oh! now all Religion is gone: So they persuade poor people in remote parts, that the Parliament hath taken away all Religion; and there is a great mourning in their spirits, they think they know not how in the world to serve God if their Book be taken away from them:

and I make no question it hath been a cause that many have taken up Arms, meerly to defend such superflitious vanities and customs that they were wont to have. Their Burialls for the dead as they were wont to have, Oh! they mourn for this, and they would almost as lieve lose their lives as such kind of things as these are. I remember I have read

read of the Indians that were wont to worship an Apes Tooth, it was a Religious Relick among them, and it was taken from them, and there was a great mourning among them, so that they came and offered a very great price, that was valued at thousands to redeem but their Apes Tooth that was taken from them, because it was a Religious Relick. And so we have men this day, though their superstitious vanities and customs be no better than a very Apes Tooth, yet they mourn over them and would be willing to part with a great proportion of their estate to redeem them again, they mourn after their Calves.

Oh! how should we mourn after the true Worship of God then, how dear should that be to our souls? For Calves, Superstitious Relicks, and Customs, Apes Teeth, and such things, be so dear to Idolaters, Oh! those Ordinances of God in which our souls have met with so much soul-refreshings, and communion with God, and so much of the Spirit of God let out to our souls through them. Such enlightenings by them, Oh! how should we mourn after them? You that have gotten any thing by the Word, by the Ordinances of God, that ever hath known what it hath been to have communion with God in them, you should think with your selves, If these should be taken from me, then I should have cause to mourn indeed: I have lost much of my estate, and my friends many of them are lost, and these are cause of mourning, Oh! but if I should lose the Ordinances, and Worship of God, Oh! what cause would there be then of mourning? It follows.

And the Priests thereof that rejoiced on it.

The Priests they especially mourn. The word that is here translated Priests, it is in the Hebrew Chemarims, and I find it signifies three things the word from whence it comes.

Chemar signifies to found out, and so some think that it is is they are call'd Chemarims, because of their clamorous sounds that they were wont to have in their superstitious worship: Just as we were wont to have Bellowing in their Cathedrals, so they were wont to have, and therefore they were call'd Chemarims, because of their mighty noises and sounds that they were wont to have.

Secondly, It signifies, to burn, or to be hot. And so Luther (I find) takes the word, and faith, That they were called Chemarims from their burning desires after their wares of false worship.

But I rather think there is a third, that signifies to be Black from burning; because those things that are burnt, they are made black. When the flame first takes hold upon a thing it makes it black: and so Chemarims are as much as black ones, or indeed Black Coats; they were wont to be Black-known by their black garments, and therefore they are called by the name Chemarims, because of their black garments that they were wont to use: and I find in 2 King. 23. 5. that this word that is here Priests, is there Idolatrous Priests, it's the same word. Those Black-Coats that were then, they accounted it a kind of Religion to go in Black, from thence they would have the name. And though certainly it's fit for the Ministers of the Gospel to go gravely, and decently, and not to express lightness and vanity in their garments, yet to put a kind of superstition upon black, as upon necessity they must wear black Coats, and no other garments will serve the turn: As heretofore there was a kind of superstitious vanity put on it. Now though gravity be required in their very garments, yet to stand so much upon the very colour there may be danger in it, and those that are look'd upon as Religious men that should differ any way from others, that they should be tied and bound to it, I say, this there is an evil in it; they were wont to do so here: and so almost all your Heathens and superstitious people they had alwaies a special colour for the garments of their Priests; as the Turks have their green for the colour of the garments of their Priests. But thus much only for the name Chemarims.

Their Priests that rejoyned.

Rejoyned; that is, They that did exult over the Calves, Oh! the Priests, the Calves made for them, they got the King to be on their side, and they made the Calves brave, and they had brave kind of Worship about it, and many pompous Ceremonies about it, and the Priests they gloried in this, for they had a special hand in all, and because they had the countenance of Authority for their Calves, that they were able to crush any that spake against them, they exulted the text faith.

But now there's a threatning, That they shall mourn, those Priests that did so glory in their Calves, as who were they that did glory so much in pompous Altars and other braveries but your Priests? they exulted and had all under them, and would quickly crush a man that should not yield to them, they did even brave it over all, and did even call themselves sometimes the Triumphant Clergie, just like your Chemarims; but now here they were like to lose all, and they should mourn over them.

Polanus in loc.

Polanus upon this very place, for their fat Livings, and Parsonages, and such places, our Prelates, for their Prebendaries, and Deanaries, and Bishopricks, and such kind of Preferments: Oh! how do they mourn this day for the loss of these things? Thus they that did so rejoice to expect Preferment, they are gone now, Oh! the world is at an end with them, and they mourn one to another because of the loss of such things as these are: and long may they mourn upon this ground. We read in Revel. 18. these kind of people just set forth, that upon the fall of Babylon the the text faith, That the Merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her: for no man buyeth their Merchandize any more. And then in the 14. verse, The fruits that thy soul lusteth after are departed from thee: and in the 15. verse, The Merchants of these things which were made rich by her, stood a far off, weeping and wailing. Those that were made rich by the Whore of Babylon stand a far off, weeping and wailing. And so those that were made rich by the Prelates, and Superstitious vanities, they stand a far off, weeping and wailing; and blessed be God that we see them to mourn that did so triumph and rejoice over the people of God, but God hath made such a change of things as now they hang down their heads and mourn, even because of their Calves that are taken from them.

For the glory thereof is departed.

They sought to make them as glorious as they could, and they accounted them very glorious. Now shall wicked men, Idolaters account their Idol Worship glorious, Oh! how glorious should the Worship of God be in our eyes, the true Spiritual Worship of God? Let the true Ministers of God learn not to glory in the flesh, but desire to know nothing but Jesus Christ, and him crucified.

The Glory thereof is departed.] For divers years together the worship of the Calves had a great deal of glory put upon them, but it went away. And so you know what glory was upon our Prelates and such kind of Worship, as they of late set up, but the glory is departed. And look to it, what ever inventions of men are, if it be not Gods, the glory will depart from it.
WHAT King Jareb was you heard in the fifth Chapter: and his name signifies an Helper, as a Trophe. As now the King of France, the most Christian King. And so our King, The Defender of the Faith. And so King Jareb, the Helper. Now the Calves are to be sent to King Jareb, that was their help. Some think that they sent it for a Present; but the text will not bear that, but his Soldiers taking Dan and Bethel they rejoiced in getting the Calves, and sent them to King Jareb as a Trophe unto him, as that which they knew he would much rejoice in. They relied much upon King Jareb as a help unto them, and now their kind of Religion, their very Religion is at Jareb’s dispose, for he hath now the Calves in his hand to do with them what he will.

From thence briefly our Note is this: Our depending upon men for help, is dearly bought, if it comes to that, that they shall have the dispose of our Religion. Jareb was their Helper, and they would have him to help them; but now their Calves are sent to him for a Present, and Jareb hath the dispose of them for their Religion that they had.

And then the second Note is this. In that they were sent to the King as a Present that he would rejoice in.

That it is the way of Idolaters, to rejoice much when they get one another’s gods. As when the Philistims got the Ark, they rejoiced much, they carried it to Dagon’s Temple. Also the enemies of the Church will rejoice much if they can get the power to trample upon our Religion; they will rejoice much if they can get your estates, but they will rejoice more if they can do what they will with you in the point of your Religion, Oh! this would be that which would make make them glad at the very heart that they could dispose of us for our Religion, Oh! let us know this beforehand that may make us cry to God the more earnestly, that the Lord whatever he gives them power over, that he would not give them power over our Religion; for that's the thing that they most aim at.

Ephraim shall receive shame.

Hierom upon the place hath this tradition of the Jews. (I'll but name it to you) he faith, (that it was received among them) That the Priests of the Calves had taken away the golden Calves and put up Calves of brass instead of them and only girt them over with Gold, and now the King of Israel when he was in straights sent these Calves to King Jareb for a Present to pacifie his anger, now when he had sent these Calves the King of Assyria made account that they were Calves of Gold, but afterwards when he found that they were of brass, he sent messengers to the King of Israel to tell him how he had but cozened him, and upon that, Oh the King and all the People were ashamed. But this is but a tradition of theirs, and not very probable. But this I rather take to be the truth of it.

They were ashamed because of their own Counsels.

That is, their hopes first shall fail them, and they shall see their counsels that they took shall come to nothing, and this shall cause shame and confusion of face upon them. The ten Tribes shall receive shame. Failing in our hopes that make us to be ashamed. They had good hopes they should prevail because of their Calves, but now their Calves are taken from them, and now they are ashamed. In Job. 6. 20 They were confounded, because they had hoped; they came thither, and were ashamed: they hoped to have relief, but had not, and therefore they were ashamed; the disappointmen pointment of hopes causes great shame. Oh then! what shame and confusion will there be at the great day, when we shall be disappointed of our last hopes? If we had been disappointed of our hopes now in respect of our Adversaries, Oh! what shame would have been upon the People of God, our Adversaries they would have cast shame upon us, and said, What's become of your failings and prayers? As it's like the Assyrians did when they took the Calves, Oh! now we have got your Gods (lay they) and upon this the people were ashamed: and so, if our Adversaries had prevailed they would have scorn'd in the like manner. My Brethren, we have cause to bless the Lord from our souls that he hath delivered us from such a temptation, from such a temptation left we should be ashamed of our hopes, though the truth is, If we had right we should not have been ashamed, for our hopes was not so much in the saving of our estates as this, That God would own his Cause in the conclusion, and so our hopes would not have fail'd; I but if our hopes had but seemed to have failed in outward appearance, that the Enemy should have prevailed, I say, it would have been a mighty temptation for us to have been ashamed of our hopes. Oh! blessed be God for preventing this, that the Lord hath not made his People to be ashamed of their hopes, and prayers. The Ministers of God can stand up and look comfortably in the Congregations, because they put on people, and encouraged the hearts of people in this Cause; and they have comfort to their souls in this, That when things were at the lowest yet still they could have their hopes in God, and believe yet in God that he would go on in such a Cause as this is, and the Lord hath not caused the expectation of his poor people to fail. But if it be shame (I say) now for the present to be disappointed of some hopes, Oh! remember upon all your disappointment of hopes. Oh! what shame would it be before men and Angels if it should prove that any soul in this place should be so disappointed of their last hopes; hopes? Thou hast hope of salvation, and of eternal life, and if it should prove when all secrets are to be made public before the Lord Jesus and his Angels, if then it should prove that all thy hopes were dashed, what would become of thee? It is the prayer of David, O Lord, let me not be disappointed of my hope. Let that be thy prayer, especially in regard of thy last hopes. In 1 John 2. 28. Abide in him, that when he shall appear we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming. Oh! that's the comfort of the Saints, that they shall not be ashamed at the coming of Jesus Christ: and many that are not ashamed now yet at the coming of Jesus Christ. Oh! the shame that shall be cast upon them? But the main emphasis lies in the words that follow.

Now what was that Counsel? What? Why it was this Counsel: 1. The Counsel that was between Jeroboam & his Princes and the Priests, together with some eminent of the people, for the setting up of the way of false worship.

And secondly, For the forcing of all men that belonged to the ten Tribes to forbear going to Jerusalem. This was thought a notable Plot, a notable Counsel, they thought this was the only Counsel to keep things in peace among them. Why (say they) if we shall suffer men, that every one that hath a fancy in his head, that they shall go to Jerusalem to worship, we shall have nothing but confusion, and therefore let us take such a course that people shall have a place to worship in, that they worship thus; it is but only some people that are so strict that they must needs worship in Jerusalem, and therefore let us determine this, That we will have a constant way that every one shall be bound unto, and we will have no more going to this Jerusalem to worship, but they shall be content to worship at Dan and Bethel, and this will keep things in peace. Now this this counsel seem'd to be a fine plot to keep things in order. But saith the Lord, They shall be ashamed of it; though they think they have wise men, that do thus advise, sages men, and some men it may be that seem to have some good in them too, and stand for peace: thus it was a Counsel cried up mightily, yet the Lord he sits in Heaven and laughs at this Counsel, and faith he, They shall be ashamed of their Counsels; perhaps now whilst they are let go on and carry all before them, they bless themselves in their Counsel, and think it is a very excellent plot, and God favors it; but when my time shall come, when they shall see what evil it brings upon them, then they shall be ashamed of their Counsels. From hence there's these two Notes;

Obs. 1. First, That men's own Counsels bring them to shame, especially in matters of Religion.

Obs. 2. Secondly, That men are strong in their own Counsels, till they see some eminent evil to come of them, and then they will be convinced and ashamed, but not before.

To speak a little of each of these.

1 Doct. Men's own Counsels bring shame to them, especially in Religion. For men naturally are very blind in the things of God, they do not see far in them; men's hearts are full of corruption, they are by ass'd by their corruptions; seeing there's much self-love in men.

Real. 1. If there be any appearance that is men's own, that's much regarded, a great deal more than truth that is another men's; if it be their own they mind that, but let another man speak that which hath truth, that's little regarded. There is in men's hearts much violence to maintain their own Counsels, and therefore very like that their Counsels will bring them to shame. There's nothing that men can bear to be contradicted in, less than in their Counsels. And the more men are set upon their own Counsels the more it is like to bring shame in the conclusion.

Real. 2. And besides, There's a Judgment of God upon men's spirits, spirits, that if they will set upon their own Counsels, I say, there’s ordinarily a Judgment of God upon men to leave them to folly when they rest upon their own Counsels: and it’s threatened in Psal. 81.12, as a great Judgment of God upon men, to give them up to their Counsels. Saith God, Psal. 81.12

They would not hearken to my Counsel, therefore did I give them up to their own Counsel: Oh! it’s a terrible place: I beseech you consider of it; These are times wherein every one is plotting, Oh! tremble at that text; I gave them up unto their OWN COUNSELS: Men’s own Counsels bring them to shame, often times they come to nothing; after they have made a great deal of do, and they will do this, and they will go on, at length it comes to nothing, so that they are fain to sit down and there’s an end of all their labor and sile, perhaps they have labored to put on their Counsels by much evil, much sin, much heart burning, and when it comes to all, there it lies, there’s an end of it; thus they are ashamed of their counsels. Yea, many times the Counsels of men work quite contrary; God doth much glory in this, in making use of men’s own Counsels to bring them into snares. What hath brought our Adversaries into snares but their own Counsels? What brought the Prelates down but their own Counsels? So that they would bite their very fingers for what they did in their Protestant. God hath been pleased to deal thus graciously for us, to bring our enemies into snares by their own Counsels: in Job, 18.7. ’tis verified of many that their own Counsels have cast them down. And Psal. 9, toward the Psal. 9.16, latter end, The wicked is snared in the work of his OWN HANDS: Higgajon Selah. You have not those two words put together in all the Book of God besides. That is, Oh! ’tis a thing to be meditated on very much, the wicked is snared in the work of his own hands. Oh! think of this, consider of this, Oh! the work of God in bringing men down by their own Counsells (faith the text.)
And just it may be so; for men provoke God by their counsels, in Psalm 106. 43. Oh! the Lord looks upon the counsels of men, and is much provoked by them, and therefore just it is with him to make their counsels to be a snare so to them, as that they should be ashamed of them at the last. It concerns us therefore (my brethren) to look to our counsels what they are. I’ll give you a few rules about your counsels that you may not be ashamed of them.

First, Keep out from your counsels those things that would hinder you.

1. False principles.
   1. Be sure to keep out of your counsels your false principles, be not acted in your counsels by false principles.

2. Wicked men.
   2. Keep out of your counsels wicked men, take heed that they do not joyn with you in your counsels, in Job 21.16. Their good is not in their hand: the counsel of the wicked is far from me. and so in Job 22.18. Oh! keep out wicked men from your counsels.

3. Self ends.
   3. Keep out your own ends, take heed how they come in: If any of a man’s ends come into his counsels, they will warp then.

4. Conceitedness.
   4. Keep out of your counsels conceitedness, and pride; when you come to counsel, Oh take heed of a conceited spirit, in leaning to your own understanding; God doth use to blast such.

5. Flesh and blood.
   5. Keep out of your counsels flesh and blood. I consulted not with flesh and blood, faith Paul in the first chap. to the Galatians: I did not look unto carnal excellency, but laid aside all carnal kind of excellency; they would have advised me to this and this, and I should never have done as I did if I had consulted with flesh and blood.

6. Passion and forwardness.
   6. Yea, keep out of your counsels passion and forwardness. In Job 5.13. He taketh the wise in their own craftiness; and the counsel of the froward is carried headlong. If once you find in your counsels your hearts begin to be hot, rather break off; take heed of such resolutions in your counsels as are in a heat: It’s a safe way for you if you would consult about business.
business of Moment, as soon as there begins to be a heat, rather fall to prayer; we had need of cool and quiet spirits when we are consulting: As if you would weigh a thing exactly with Gold Scales (as in Councils we should weigh things very exactly) you would not weigh in the midst of a wind: when men passions begin to be up they weigh things as a man should weigh Gold abroad in the wind: but you cannot weigh exactly. Oh! take heed of passion in your Councils.

Divers other things there are that spoyl our Councils that we should be aware of. And if we would have our Councils right, then observe these further Rules in your Councils:

1. Be sure to look up first to Jesus Christ that great Counsellor. He is called in Isa. 9. THE COUNSELOR: it's he that is wonderful in Counsel: God hath given a file to his Son to be The Counsellor, he is to be the Counsellor of thy Soul for thy Eternal Estate, yea, and to be thy Counsellor for all matters of Religion, and the Worship of God, look up to him.

And pray much. If you would not have your Councils miscarry, pray much. In Prov. 8. 14. Counsel is mine (Wisdom.) It's spoken of Christ. It's very observably that some note of the Counsel of Achitophel, and the Counsel of Husbai: The Counsel of Achitophel, the truth is, if we examine it, it was the wiser Counsel of both, and Absalom loved Achitophel exceedingly, and his Counsel was ordinarily accounted as the Oracle of God, yet at such a time (because God had an intent to bring down his Counsel) that was rejected, and the Counsel of Husbai was imbrac'd, and he did hear the prayer of David when he prayed, Lord turn the Counsel of Achitophel into folly. And let us pray much that God would be with our Counsellors, that there may be none there that may be like those that are spoken of in Ezek. 11. 2. These are they that give evil Counsel in the City, and that likewise the Lord would sway Counsels, and that men men may yeeld to that that is the safest and the best Counfail, to that that is best in the eyes of God. Many times when a Company meet together, there are som things that are darted in that are neglected by the Company; whereas if God were with them, to guide them, that thing (it may be) would slay all their Counsels: and pray much, Guide me with thy Counsel, and so bring me to glory, Psalm. 73. 24.
Oh! especially in matters that concern our Souls and Religion, we should pray much that God would guide us by his Counsel, and so bring us to Glory.

Ps. 73. 24

3. Let the fear of God be strong.

3. If you would have your Counsels right, Let the fear of God be strong in your hearts when you come to counsel. Oh! it's a good thing when any are going to Counsel about matters of consequence, that they would prepare their hearts before they go with the possession of the fear of the great God upon their hearts, and then they will counsel well: you have a notable Scripture for this in Ezra, 10. 3. Come, let us go to do according to the Counsel of my Lord, and of those that tremble at the Commandement of our God. It may be there are some that have deeper reaches than they have; I, but have they the fear of God in them? there is hope that they are guided by the Lord, and therefore let us do according to the Counsel of those that tremble at Gods Word; Do you see a man whose heart is posseised with the fear of God and his Word? if his parts be but ordinary you may expect that God will be with him rather than with those that are bold and presumptuous, and flint the Word of God.

Ezr. 10. 3

4. Look at the Word, especially in matters of Religion.

4. In your Counsels (especially in matters of Religion) be sure to look at the Word; and think not thus, In way of reason and prudence such a way were better, and would conduce for peace: As I remember Luther hath such an expression, Reason is a most deadly enemy even to Faith, it is dangerous to reason matter of Faith. And so in the matters of the Worship of God, there's a great deal of danger.
Keep to the Word therefore in all your Counsels, and labor for sincerity of heart in all your Counsels: this is that that makes men miscarry in their Counsels, their hearts are byass'd with some lust or other, and therefore when any thing is spoken to them that is futable to what they have a mind to, that they imbrace; and if any thing be spoken to them that is otherwise, that they reject: Oh! it's just with God to answer thee according to the Idol that is set up in thy own heart.

5. In all thy Counsels, Take heed of being put off with some fair shews. When the Lord is leaving any, yet he will suffer those that give evil Counsel to mix a great many good things with that which is evil: As some that will put a few brass shillings into a great bag of money, the other is all good currant money, yea, but here's some brass shillings put amongst it. So sometimes in the midst of a great deal of good Counsel, there is a little mixture that may turn all: therefore those that would counsel, especially the publick affairs, they had need have their eyes about them, and poise every word and line, and examine every particular, or otherwise they may quickly come to be ashamed of their own Counsel.

There are many Rules might further be given.

6. God hath promised to direct the humble, therefore come with humility in your counsels, and be sure in what is right to follow: and then you may with the more confidence expect God should help you in other things.

7. Consult with indifferent judgment.

8. If the thing touch others, think what we would have if we were in their case.

9. Whether it may not cost too dear, though good. Consider whether the attaining of it, though good, may not occasion so much evil, as it is not worth it: if it be not of present necessity (non deliberand.de necessariis) the rubs attending it may shew it is not good at this time, or not thus, or not for me.
They shall be ashamed of their own Counsels.

2. Doct. When they are come to times of affliction they shall be ashamed of their own Counsels. Times of affliction makes men ashamed of what they would not be ashamed of before, Jer. 2. 26. Zeph. 3. 11. I remember a notable expression that Sr. Walter Rawleigh hath in his Story; When death comes (which hates men and destroies them) when that comes, that’s beleived; But God that loves men, and makes men, he is not regarded. Oh Eloquent! Oh! Mighty Death! whom none could advise, thou art able to perswade. That’s thus, men that would never be persuaded by any thing else to beleive that they were not right, yet when death appears that can perswade them: now afflications are an evil, but how eloquent are afflications? what power have afflications to perswade men that they were wrong, that would not be perswaded by all the arguments in the world before? Then they shall be ashamed of their own Counsels. Oh! I beseech you let us take heed of this, let not us go on headily in our own Counsels till God bring us into misery, and then we should be forced to cry out of our own Counsels and be ashamed of them.

Ver. 7.

As for Samaria her King is cut off, as the foam upon the waters.

As for Samaria her King is cut off, as the foam upon the waters.

Before God threatened that they should be ashamed of their Counsels, and what that Counsell was I told you. Asham’d of our Counsell, we hope not, we shall maintain it, our King is for us, he will venture his life, his Kingdom, but he will maintain us in our way:

Your King (faith the Prophet) he shall be as foam upon the waters, even the King of Samaria.
Yea, but our King is in a strong Town, in Samaria, a great City, and such a strong City as was able to hold siege for three years together; and yet the King of Samaria though he had gotten the chief City in the Kingdom to be fully for him, and so much victuals and strength as he could hold out for three years, yet (faith the Lord) He shall be as the foam upon the Waters.

As foam.

The word that is translated Foam, sometimes signifies the foam that is in a man that is extremly angry, so you have it in Zach. 1. 2. Oh the King when he was croit he was in a foam. Your King that is crost and doth foam in anger when he is crost, he shall be as foam upon the water (faith God.) Now the Note that is from hence it is this;

That ungodly men in their greatest power and rage, yet if God comes upon them, are nothing but as foam, are poor weak creatures that vanish and come to nothing. The foam when the waters makes a noise, is above it, and hath a great shew above the waters, but stay a while and it is vanish'd and comes to nothing. Your King that rages and is above others, and thinks he hath a great deal of power; stay a while he comes to nothing. The Scripture compares men in their greatest power to things of the greatest vanity; there are in Scripture, that I'le mention to you, a matter of 19. or 20. several particulars wherein the Scripture compares men in their greatest power, unto that which hath nothing but vanity: yea there are such expressions in Scripture, to set out the meanness, vileness, and baseness of men in the greatest power, that it would make Christians that understand Scripture, & that is of the same judgment with their Father, with God, as he hath reveal'd himself in his Word, never to be afraid of the power of men. I'le name them distinct-
First, The Scripture sometimes calls even kings and great ones, a mere noise, nothing more, in Jeremiah, 46. 17. Pharaoh King of Egypt, is but a noise. That's the first.

Secondly, They are but as small dust, in Isa. 29. 5.
The multitude of thy strangers shall be like small dust.

Yea, Thirdly, They are but as chaff, in the same place Isa. 29. 5. The terrible ones shall be as chaff that passeth away in an instant. Who would be afraid of a noise, small dust, and chaff?

Fourthly, They are as nothing, in Isa. 41. 11. Behold, all they that are incensed against thee, shall be as nothing.

Fifthly, They are as tow; put a little fire to Tow and it quickly comes to nothing. In Isa. 1. 31.

Sixthly, They are as dung, in Psal. 83. 10. As the dung of the Earth.

Seventhly, They are as straw that is troden for dung, in
Isa. 25. 10. As straw troden for the dunghill.

Eighthly, They are compared sometimes to a beast that hath a hook in his nostrils, in Isa. 37. 20. God will put a hook in his nostrils; now who would be afraid of a beast that hath a hook put into his nostrils?

Ninthy, They are as stubble, and as stubble fully dry, ready for the fire, in Nahum. 1. 10.

Tenthly, They are as rottenness, and their root is rottenness
Isa. 5. 24.

And then, they are as scum, in Ezek. 24. 12. And as scum; ready for the fire.

And then again, They are as smoke in Psal. 68. 2. they are as smoke that is drie.

And then they are as grass, as green grass, as grass on the house tops, and as Corn blasted before it is grown up; all these you have together in Isa. 37. 27.

And then they are as Wax that melts before the fire, in Psal.
68. 2.
Ver. 8.

Yea, They are as the fat of Lambs, in Psal. 37. 20.
They are as a worm, in Job, 25. 6.
They are vanity, Lighter than vanity, altogether in their best estate vanity; Psal. 39. 5.
They are as snow melting before the Sun. In Job, 24.

Yea, They are as the fat of Lambs, in Psal. 37. 20. 15.
They are as a worm, in Job, 25. 6. 16.
They are vanity, Lighter than vanity, altogether in their best estate vanity, Psal. 39. 5. 17.
They are as snow melting before the Sun. In Job, 24. 18.

19.
They are as the light of a Candle that is presently put out
Prov. 24. 20.
And then lastly, They are a Lye: even great men and Princes, for it's spoken of them in Psal. 62. 9. 19.

Thus my Brethren, we see how the Scripture heaps up expression upon expression. It might have been very profitable to have insisted upon all these particulars, and to have opened them, to shew you how contemptibly the Holy-Ghost doth speak of men in their great power.

Now if we could gather these Scriptures together, and put them all into one, and so present the power of great men to us, and by these things have the same judgment of them that God hath, it would mightily help us from the fears of men. As for Samaria her King is cut off as the foam upon the waters.

Ver. 8.

The high places also of Aven, the sin of Israel shall be destroyed: the Thorn and the Thistle shall come up upon their Altars.

I Confess from these words to the end of the Eleventh Verse, there appears at the first reading, much obscurity; yet they are like unto a Mine, that the outside of it is barren; but dig within, and you shall find rich Treasure.

Israel, the ten Tribes did confide in two things, and so strengthened themselves against what the Prophet could say against them; the first was in the power of their King, now that's gon; that's as foam, faith God, never confide there.

Two props of Israel's false confidence.
there in the power of the King, and think that will bear you out, for he shall be as foam.

But the second was their sacrifices that they offered, and their devotion, their religion, they were a religious people, and they were very costly in their devotion, they confided much in that: Well for the second, faith the Lord, The high places of Aven, the sin of Israel shall be destroyed, the Thorn and the Thistle shall come up on their altars. Though they were never so pompous in their eyes, yet they are the high places of Aven; they were called before Beth-aven [the house of vanity,] now it is called Aven, [vanity it self:] That place was no other than Bethel, whose name signified the house of God, where one of the calves was set up; Now the name of this place did a great deal of hurt among the people; Oh! to go up to Bethel, the house of God; therefore God would take away that name, and calls it Beth-aven first, and then calls it Aven, that is, instead of calling it the house of God, I will have it called the house of vanity, yea, vanity it self. Aven signifies vanity, yea iniquity it self; from whence note, "That God stands much upon taking people off from specious and glorious names, that are put upon any things that are made use of in ways of false worship, he stands much upon it." For whereas before he had changed it from Bethel to Beth-aven, he changes it now from Beth-aven to Aven; God would obliterate the name of Bethel, and would make it to be accounted by the people to be nothing but iniquity and vanity. As for The high places, we have spoken to formerly.

The sin of Israel.

The sin, that is, in the very abstract, sin; 'tis more than if he should say, the sinfull things of Israel, the very sin of Israel.

The more any thing comes to have the nature of sin, the more vile and abominable it is. Therefore God expresseth it by an an expression that should come as near the nature of sin itself, as he could to make it abominable. Their sin, that is their Idolatrous worship.

Their false worship, it is the great sin; and it was the greater sin in Israel, because that their holiness did especially consist in instituted worship, their holiness was typical, and much stood in instituted worship; it's true, God would have true holiness if ever they came to Heaven, but that holiness upon which they were called, a holy people, it was in their instituted worship, and it was typical, to set forth the true holiness that should be in all the Members of the Church now, therefore God was much provoked with their pollutions in instituted worship, their holiness consisted so much in it.

And then further, In that their Idols, and their creatures that they abused to sin are here call'd, Their Sin, the Sin of Israel.

You may note that, We may so abuse the creatures of God as not only to make them sinful to us, but even to turn them into sin (as it were;) thus many men abuse their bodies so that they may be call'd sin itself.

Well, that which they accounted holy you see God be accounts not only sinful, but sin, and faith it shall be destroyed.

It shall be destroyed.

When any Ordinances of God are abused, they are but to be purged: But if they be inventions of men they are to be destroyed. They shall be destroyed, The sin of Israel shall be destroyed. We must learn for ever to take heed of medling with, or putting any thing of our own in the place of Gods Worship, we may think in reason this may be good, as well as that, we see no evil in this; why may not this way be as good as that way? Yea, but God he looks upon things according as he himself requires them: and therefor fore Calvin I remember upon this place (faith) God he pronounces that sin and sacriledg, and would have it destroyed, those things that may please us; let us therefore rest in his judgment; it's not our part to dispute (faith he) about matters of Worship, we must not dispute, & say, Why may not this be? and this may be for a good use, and a great deal of good may come of it, we must not stand disputing with God, and debating the matter with God, for though it may be very specious in our eyes, yet it may be very odious and abominable to the eyes of God.

It shall be destroyed.

Obs. 6. Even all those things that evil men makes use of for sin shall one day be taken from them, you shall not alwaies have the creatures of God to abuse them to sin, there will be a time when God will deliver his creatures from this vanity that they are subject to. And then lastly.

They shall be destroyed.

Obs. 7. Mans sin brings destruction upon the creatures. It is as poysion in a glafs that causes the glafs to be broken and cast upon the dunghil.

The Thorn and the Thistle shall come up on their Altars.

This expression is, to note, the great vaffation that shall be made in those places where they had Altars in Bethel: (especially, Samaria being besieged for 3. years together.)

Expos. The enemies had Bethel in their own hands and they manifested their rage upon their Altars, and upon all their Religious things presentley, they pull'd them down and made them lie in heaps of rubbish, that in the space of three yeers the very thistles and thorns grew up in the place where they had their Alterns. It's a usual expression of the devastation of a place, that the grass shall grow where their houses were, there shall Corn grow where the City was, here there shall be Thistles and thorns grow where their Altars were. And
And secondly, It’s an expression of indignation, as if God should have said, I take more delight to see the Thorns and Thistles grow out of the very rubbish of the Altars than of all the Images and brave pictures and gildings that are about them. Just as if it should have been said about the Service-Book, Oh now you honor it much, and it must be bound bravely, and gilt bravely, and strung curiously, if one should have said about seven or eight years ago, This that you do so Idolize now, within a while it shall be but wall papers, it shall be thrown to the Mice and Rats to eat, this would have been an expression of indignation against it.

Obs. First, If it be said that places of false worship should not be frequented as formerly they were wont to be, how much more sad is it that places of true worship should be neglected? as thus,
They were wont to go to Bethel to worship with their Altars: yea, but faith God, they shall go no more thither, but those places shall be fill’d with Nettles, Thorns, and and Thistles; they accounted that sad. Yea, but we should account it sad that the paths to the true Worship of God should not be beaten, as in former times where there was an Altar (as it were) for the Worship of God, those places that were frequented much; but hath our Adversaries had their wills we should have had those paths that were wont to be beaten to the true Worship of God, to have had Nettles and Thorns grown up in them.

Secondly, If it be so sad to have such an ill succession here in false worship, sad to false worshipers, what sadness is there for the true Worshipers of God to have an ill succession in the Church?
Truly much like me thinks it is, when there hath been in a place a godly and a powerful Ministry, and afterwards for the sins of the people God takes it away, and instead of a powerful Ministry there comes up a pricking Thorn, a Bryar, a Thistle, a Needle, there comes an unworthy man of no gifts or graces, but only can gall and prick, and do hurt and mischief, this is a succession like to the succession

that
that God here threatened, that there should be Thistles and Thorns succeed their Altars. And Hierom upon the place seems to hint some such kind of meditation, he faith, instead of true Doctrine, there shall be a wilderness of very corrupt Doctrine, where there was true Doctrine taught, now it shall lie waste as a wilderness, and corrupt Doctrine shall be taught instead of true.

Thirdly, God doth account the ruin of the most glorious things abused to sin, a more pleasing object, than when those things were in the greatest pomp and glory. Brave building, and brave Altars when they were rubbish and grown over with Thorns, and Bryars, God lookt upon them as more glorious. And so if a man hath a very beautiful comely body and abuse it to sin, when God shall strike him, and he shall be a filthy rotten carkafs that the worms shall be gnawing upon, when he shall be covered with worms as a filthy carkafs, God will look upon that as a more lovely sight than to see his body deck'd with all kind of ornaments. Better that the creature perish than to have it abused to sin, though it be the most glorious creature in the world.

And then lastly, Those things that men account highly of in the matters of Worship, when God lets in their enemies they contemn them. They accounted highly of their Calves, but when the Assyrians came they contemn'd them, and pull'd them down, and made them rubbish. It's not only so in matters of false worship, but in matters of true; those things that we highly esteem and bless God for, and we think what infinite pity it is that they should not be continued, yet if God should let our Adversaries in they would scorn us. As now, such liberties as these are, what infinite pity were it that people should be deprived of them, but if God should let our Adversaries in upon us they would scorn and contemn these things, as the Assyrians did contemn those things that the Israelites did account to be as God. It follows.
They shall say to the Mountains, Cover us, and to the Hills, Fall on us.

This is an expression to shew, first, the dreadfulness of their misery. It should be such a great misery as should make them be weary of their lives, should make them rather desire death than life.

Secondly, it is to note the wonderful desperation that in the apprehension and sense of this their misery they had no whither to go for help, but their hearts should despair, and all the help that they should expect was, to have the Mountains fall upon them, and the Hills to cover them. Now this expression I find Christ makes use of in the setting out the misery of the destruction of the Jews by the Romans afterwards, in Luke 23. 30. and so I find the holy Ghost in expressing the misery of the Antichristian party, when the wrath of God should come out upon them, their misery shall be so great, as to cry to the Mountains to fall upon them, and the Hills to cover them, in Rev. 6. 16. there the Princes and the great men, and mighty men, and Captains, they call upon the Mountains to fall upon them and the Hills to cover them. I remember reverend Mr. Brightman upon that very Scripture interpreting, the great men, and the mighty men calling to the Mountains to fall upon them, and the Hills to cover them, he saith, That it was fulfilled in the time of Constantine, when the Heathen Emperors were vanquished, and he doth interpret it upon Dioclesian that he was so terrified in apprehension of the wrath of the Lamb that Christ did appear against him, that he drank poison and killed himself. And Maximian ended his life with a halter, and hanged himself. Galerius died of a most noisom and filthy disease. Maximinus that he might prevent his death he likewise murdered himself. And so Maxentius ran into the bottom of Tiberis to hide himself there. And thus they did seek by several ways...
to hide themselves from the sight of the Lamb by violent deaths.

I suppose all of you do understand clearly that it is meant an expression of great anguish and desperation; but yet that we may see why the holy Ghost makes use of this expression rather than others, and to find out the reason of it, you must know that the expression doth arise from hence: the Land of Canaan (where the Prophet here Prophecies) it was a Land full of Mountains and Hills, and these Mountains were stony and rocky (many of them) and they were wont therefore to dig places in the mountains that were stony and rocky for safety in case they should be in any great danger, to dig such holes that they may run into, and that by their narrow passage they might be able to keep out an enemy from them; and therefore I remember I find in Josephus 14. Book of Antiquities, 27. Chap. and so his Book of the Jewish Wars, the 1. Book, and 12. Chap. he saith, That those that were Thieves and Robbers they would make use of such Caves and Dens in the Mountains and Hills; and now to these the Scripture doth allude, and by this you may be helped to understand diverse places of Scripture, in Isa. 2. 19. And they shall go into the holes of the Rocks, and into the caves of the Earth, for fear of the Lord, and for the glory of his Majesty, when he arises to shake terribly the Earth. They should go then into the holes of the Rocks and caves of the Earth, for they were wont to use such things there much. And so that Scripture in Psal. 11. 1. In the Lord put I my trust: how say ye to my soul, Flee as a bird to your Mountain? In times of danger they were wont to flee to those Mountains. And so in Psal. 121. 1. I will lift up mine eyes unto the Hills from whence cometh my help: not only to the Temple, but to the Hills, because in time of danger they were wont to think of the Hills: But (saith David) I lift up my heart to God, and that shall be to me instead of an hundred holes in Hills: And in Psal. 36. 6. by the same Thy Righteousness is like the great Mountains: It's not only because:
because the Mountains stand steadily and strongly, but because the Mountains were places of refuge and shelter. So the Saints have refuge in the faithfulness of God, as they did run to the holes in the Mountains, and therefore God is called a strong Rock that the Righteous run to; why? not only because a Rock is strong and cannot be removed, yea, but what safety is there? Suppose a man run to the Rock, cannot the enemies follow him and take him in the Rock? Therefore it is not only meant when it is said, God is as a Rock, not only because the faithfulness of God is steady as a Rock, but because they had caves and holes in the Rocks that they were wont to run to in time of danger, therefore God is called a Rock. And so, The strength of the Hills is his also, in Psal. 95. 4. These Scriptures we may understand by this, by understanding the manner what they were wont to do in their Mountains. In Psal. 94. 22. But the Lord is my defence, and my God is the Rock of my refuge.

But yet further, that we may understand the meaning of this expression: Because when in times of danger they ran to the Mountains, and to the Rocks, and Holes, into their Caves; they considered when they were there, Oh! the enemy if he should come upon us, how sad would our condition be? Oh! that rather this Mountain that is now over us, I would rather that it should sink down and fall upon me than the enemy should take me; and this Hill that I am got into a hole of, for my refuge, it were well if this should sink down and press me to nothing. This I take to be the meaning of this Phrase, & the rise of it; they despised the Mountain of God, the going up to his Mountain, but now they would be glad to have so much use of these Mountains that they might crush them in pieces.

From thence there are these Notes.

First, Oh! the Alteration that God can make in Cities and Kingdoms: They who were proud and scornful ere while, are now so distressed as would think themselves happy to be crush'd by Mountains and Hills.

Secondly,
Secondly, Hence we may learn how great is the misery of falling into the hands of our enemies, for that's the meaning; when the Assyrians should come against them, and they were besieg'd for three years together, they knew how savagely the Enemies had used others in the Country, so that they desired to die under the Mountains rather than to fall into their hands; the great misery there is in falling into the hands of Enemies. And I remember Josephus in one of the forenamed places gives us a notable story of this, he tells us of some that did run into the Mountains and Holes for safety, and Herod he pursu'd them, and among others there was an old man, and he had seven Children and his Wife with him, but rather than he would fall into Herod's hands, he call'd his Children one by one unto the mouth of the Cave that he had made in the Mountain, and when one came he kill'd that before the Enemy, and he call'd another and kill'd him, and so he did till he had killed all the seven, and killed them Himself, and afterwards his Wife, and when he had call'd their dead bodies down the Rock, he throw'd himself down head-long after them, and so he flew himself, and all this rather than he would fall into the hands of his Enemies. Certainly there is wonderful misery. Some of you perhaps have seen or felt somewhat, but that you have felt and seen hath been nothing to what was like to be, had the Enemies gotten full power; He was fain to deal fairly to get people to himself, but cruelty doth break out now and then, and by that you may see what should have been generally if the Lord should deliver you into the power of the Enemy: Let us bless God then that we are delivered from that, that we have no such cause to cry out to the Mountains to cover us and the Hills to fall upon us.

Thirdly, The wrath of God, Oh! how dreadful is it? there is nothing so fearful as the wrath of God: One would think that, that which these poor people should desire here should be dreadful enough, to have the Mountains fall upon on them, and the Hills to cover them: Oh! but 'tis not so dreadful as God's wrath; take all the terrors in the world they are nothing to the wrath of the Almighty when that is apprehended: sometimes the wrath of God lies more heaviest upon a man's Conscience than a thousand Mountains: And (my brethren) if it be so dreadful in outward judgments, how dreadful is it like to be when it shall come to be fully powred out upon the wicked and ungodly? In

Rev. 9. 6. They shall seek for death, and shall not find it; they shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them (faith the text.)

Oh! when God's wrath appears against the ungodly, it will be dreadful, especially when the full vials of it comes to be powred out.

And further, To live in misery is worse than present dreadful death: to live in a lingering way of misery is worse than present death even in this world. I remember Suetonius tells of Tiberius Caesar, that there was one that he had adjudged to death, and he that was adjudged to die, petitioned to him, that he might have his dispatch. He answers him thus, Sir, you and I are not friends yet, you must not die, you must be kept in misery. It is worse than death many times to be kept in a lingering way of misery, it is so, even in regard of the miseries of this world, Oh! how much worse than death is it then to be kept under the wrath of God to all eternity? How fearful is it to live in misery for ever then, and never to die? Why it's better, certainly Sence would apprehend it better for a man to be dispatched presently than to live in lingering misery: yet, if we did know all, it were better to live in the greatest misery in the world (for a wicked man) than to die the fairest death; thou were better to live as a Dog, a Toad, yea, as a flock-log at the back of the fire (if it were possible) than to die, if thou knewest all (being a wicked man) but however hereafter in Hell, then it were better if it were possible to perish than to live so as thou hast; yet then thou shalt not die, though it would be the greatest happiness to thee, if thou shouldst after a thou-fand yeers cry to God, Oh Lord, that Mountains might fall upon me! The Lord would answer: You and I are not friends yet; and if after a thousand years more thou shouldest cry, Oh Lord that I might be crush'd to pieces: the Lord would answer you still, You and I are not yet friends. Saith Bernard, Oh! I tremble to think of that, that I should fall into the hands of living death, and of dying life, where men do not die, that they might for ever die (saith he) they do die that they may for ever die, they are alaways dying, but never die, but are kept by the Almighty power of God on purpose that they might be fewel for his wrath, and subjects for his revenging Justice to strike upon. Oh! consider of this you that are so ready to desire death, because you are in a lingering misery at any time. Is a lingering misery so evil? Then what will be the lingering evil of eternity?

Fifthly observe, The wonderful misery of wicked men in their affliction, they have no whither to go for help, they have not God, they have no refuge, but to the mountains and hills, and what’s their refuge there but that they may fall upon them? Oh the difference between a Saint of God and a wicked man in times of affliction? When in times of affliction thou (if thou beest wicked) shalt rage and be mad and know not whither to go, and the uttermost help that thou canst think to have is from the Hills and Mountains to fall upon thee, but then the Saints of God shall be able to look up to Heaven, and Cry, Heaven is open for us, open to receive my soul, Angels come and guide it, and bear it in, Oh Arms of Mercy, Bowels of Mercy, spread open your selves to imbrace me: here’s a difference. And is not this better than to cry to mountains to fall upon thee, and hills to cover thee? And yet such a difference in mens estates doth sin and godliness make.

And then the last is, Oh the wonderful evil of despair! what a dreadful thing is desparation? It suggests nothing else, the greatest benefit it doth suggest it is to be crush’d in pieces:
pieces: so the help that many have, it is a halter to strangle them, a knife to murder them, the water to drown them. Oh desperation is a dreadful thing. Francis Spira feeling the dreadfulness of desperation, Cries out, Verily desperation is hell itself. Upon all this Luther concludes with this exhortation: Oh let us stir up our selves to the fear of God, let us fly Idolatry, let us beautifie the Word by our holy lives, and pray to Christ that we might escape such things as these are, that God inflicts upon the contemners of his Word. If you would not come into this wonderful despairing condition, Oh learn to fall down before the Word, fear God now that you may not despair; you that contemn, and slight, and scorn the Word now, this may prove to be your portion ere long, that this desperate cry may be the greatest ease that your forsaken souls can have.

Ver. 9.

O Israel, thou hast sinned from the daies of Gibeah.

Israel, I am speaking this to you, it meery concerns you, you have sinned from the daies of Gibeah, you think there is no great matter in your sin why there should be these dreadful threatnings, that you should come to this desperate condition; Why (say the men of Israel) what means the Prophet to be so terrible in his threatnings? pray what's our sin? Yes, you have sinned, as in the daies of Gibeah. From the daies of Gibeah, so it is in your Books, or it may be read, Beyond the daies of Gibeah, or more than in them, as Ezek. 16. 52. From the daies of Gibeah; From what time was that? You may read the story of Gibeah if you read the 19. and 20. of Judges, and their sin. I shall not need to spend much time now in opening what Gibeah was, or the sin of Gibeah was, because that in the 9. Chapter of this Prophesie, and the 9. Verse, there I met with those words; that, they had corrupted themselves as in the the daies of Gibeah. But it is not only the 19. and 20.
Chapters where we have the story of that horrible wickedness of the abusing of the Levites Concubine, but likewise that we have in the 18. touching their Idolatry that there was among the people, there was Micahs Idol, so that the Prophet hath reference to the 18, 19, & 20. Chapters of the Book of Judges. Now you have sinned, as in the daies of Gibeah: that is, you take it from the daies of Gibeah that is of old: Oh your forefathers of old have committed Idolatry and Sin against me, and you are grown rooted in your Sin, and have taken it from your forefathers, for it was very antient, that Sin of the Levites Concubine: It doeth seem to be before the time of the Judges, it seems to be committed between the time of Joshua and the time of the Judges. (For though things be set in Scripture so that one seems to be after another, yet it is not alwayes so in the time.) But my reason why that Sin of the Levites Concubine seems to have been then, is this: because you find in that story of the 19. of Judges, when the Levite was passing on, his servant would have had him gone into Jebus, but his master said unto him, We will not turn aside hither into the City of a stranger that is not of the Children of Israel, we will pass over to Gibeah. So that it seems Jerusalem was not taken in by the children of Israel; but if you read the 1. of Judges you shall find that Jerusalem was taken, it was taken before you reade of any particular Judge, therefore this Sin was very antient that was in the daies of Gibeah. You have sinned of old (Faith he) and you have continued in the succession of Sin of old; that's the first, if you take it. From the daies of Gibeah.

Expof. 2. But it's rather I think to be taken Pre than otherwise, i.e.
Your Sin is more than the daies of Gibeah, it's greater, what e-ever you think of your Sin, you think you worship and serve God. Yet the truth is, was that Sin horrible that a whol City should come together to force a Levites Concubine till she was dead at the door, was that a horrible Sin? Yea, and and was it horrible for them to stand to defend it? Your sin is greater.

Your sin is greater; why? for first, That was but one particular act, it was all done in one night; but you go on in a constant settled way.

And then secondly, That sin was a sin but of some few of the people; your sin is more generally.

Thirdly, That sin they had not so much means against it, nor so much experience of the ways of God as you, and therefore your sin is greater, than the sins that were in the daies of Gibeah.

Yea further, Your sin is greater, because that you continuing in your forefathers sin you provoke God more, that God should make use of your forefathers to revenge such a sin as that was and yet you continue in the committing of as great sins as they did commit. That's the meaning: and for further opening of that sin I shall refer you to that that I delivered in the 9. Chapter.

But that their sin was either from the daies of Gibeah, or More than the daies of Gibeah. From thence the Notes are.

First, That the same sins continued in from Ancestors are greater than theirs were. We are ready to excuse our sin and say, Why, we do nothing but that our forefathers did. I, but it may be greater than the sins of thy forefathers, because they had not such means. This would answer those that plead for old superstitious vanities: Why should we be wiser than our forefathers? But know, that if you continue in their sins, it's worse to you than to them.

But this is the special Note from hence, That God takes it very ill that those men, or the posterity of those men whom he doth use as instruments to punish sin in others, and to reform others, yet should be guilty of the same sin themselves, or greater. Oh! (faith the Prophet) you may justly expect to have the Mountains to fall upon you, and the Hills to cover you, for you are more wicked than in the daies of Gibeah, though I did use your forfathers to punish that great sin, yet you continue to be viler and worse than they were that were punished by your forfathers. Oh my brethren, God cannot endure to see that wickedness continued in men, that they shall be made use of to punish in others: What shall we be used, or any in this generation be used for to execute the anger of God, the displeasure of God upon superstitious people, and shall we continue in the sin of Superstition? Shall we be used to cast our men’s inventions, and shall we bring in men’s inventions? yea, shall we be used to punish Oppression and Tyranny, and Injustice, and shall we continue in Oppression, Tyranny, and Injustice? Oh! this cries to Heaven when it shall be said, Well, God stirred up you to make you an instrument to cast our such Oppressing Courts, such Tyranny, and such and men that were so cruel to godly people, you were used to cast out them, and you come and succeed them in such Oppressions and Tyranny, and Injustice, and you make my Saints cry to Heaven for the burdens that you lay upon them. Oh! this would be very heavy. Take we heed that when God uses us, or our forfathers to reform any evil, take heed that it be never said, that those evils continue in their Children after them.

There hath been much ado in our Reformation, as there was much ado in the punishment of the sin of Gibeah; it cost much blood to punish that sin; and so it hath cost much blood to punish Oppressors, to bring in Delinquents, to cast out those that have been burdens to the people of God. Therefore it was worse in their posterity to continue in that sin that had cost so much blood to have it punished. And so the more it costs to cast out our oppressing Courts, &c. the more fearful will our sin be if we continue in Oppression ourselves. You complain sometimes of Ministers, if they reprove sins, and be guilty of the same sins they reprove you of, you account that very evil, and so in Magistrates deed it is. So it may be as well said of Magistrates, for them to punish sins, and yet continue in them themselves.

There
There they stood, the battle in Gibeah against the children of iniquity did not overtake them.

There they stood] Either this must be meant of the men of Gibeah, that they stood, and the battle did not overtake the children of iniquity.

Or else according to others, it is to be interpreted of the men of Israel, there the men of Israel stood, and their battle did not overtake the children of iniquity.

If it be meant of the men of Gibeah, there they stood; then it notes their stoutness, they would stand it out, There they stood. Though they had committed such a horrible wickedness, and there was a desire but to have those that were Delinquents to be brought forth for punishment, yet they combine together and would stand it out, they stood stoutly to maintain the wickedness that was committed, especially after their first success, they fought, and in both the days they slew fourty thousand; now having the first day, this did hearten them, yea, they had the day the second time, and that made them stout in their way: Success will make men stand it out in their wickedness. God many times gives success on purpose to harden the hearts of men that they may stand it out unto their ruin, for so it proved to the Benjamites.

Be not troubled at the success of Adversaries, God gives them success to harden their hearts, to stand it out that they may be ruined at last.

Or, if you take it for the men of Israel, There they stood.

I find abundance of strange apprehensions of Interpreters and variety about this, and it would cost one a great deal of time, the opening of this Verse, to compose but the several Interpretations that men have upon this Text, but I'll only give you what I think may be the scope of the holy Ghost, or at least what may be fairly hinted from the words.

The men of Israel stood.

That is, (according to some,) when they saw in their battel at Gibeah they did not prevail at first, they saw their brethren stood out stoutly, and they lost so many thousand men, upon this they were at a stand; There they stood, they knew not what in the world to do, to think that so good a Cause, and a work that they had warrant from God to do, yet they should have such ill success, there they stood.

Men had need be very well grounded in a good Cause when they meet with much difficulty. I believe since this Cause that we have been about in England hath bin begun, many through unbelief and cowardize have bin at a stand, they stood and knew not which way to go, Lord, is this the Cause of God? is this the Truth of God? what, to have such ill success. Many are lost in their spirits only by success.

Or thus,

There they stood'] that is, Though they were at a stand, and somewhat troubled, yet they persisted in their work, notwithstanding any difficulties they met withall, they would not fly off, but there they stood to it, they were resolved whatever ill success they had, to go on in the work that God had call'd them to.

The battel in Gibeah against the children of iniquity did not overtake them.

When they did fight against the children of iniquity, yet this battel did not overtake them [to wit, the Benjamites] not the first day, nor the second day, but they were foil'd twice: Though I know others do give other Interpretations of this word, yet this seems to be more genuine.
But why doth the Prophet bring it in here? The men of Israel (to whom Hosea did prophesie) might say, You tell us that our sin is as in the daies of Gibeah, yea, but may we have the first day, and the second day, we hope we shall do well enough. Nay (saith the Prophet) your sin is worse, you may not think that your case is so good as the Benjaminites, the Battel did not overtake them, but it shall overtake you; and upon this ground the Prophet brings in this, that the Battel did not overtake them, granting that which they would object, yet so as it should not make for them, but to take away their hopes to escape. And thus you have the meaning. The Observations are:

First, That the children of iniquity may escape once, and again: Though men be children of iniquity, yet the Battel may not overtake them. It's as famous a story to take away the seeming success in an ill cause, and disappointment in a good cause, as any I know in all the Book of God: it did not overtake them at first: God's wrath follows many men in this world, and yet for a long time overtakes them not, but God calls it back, Psal. 78. 38. He Ps. 78. 38 being full of compassion, forgave their iniquity, and destroyed them not, yea, many a time turned he his anger away and did not stir up all his wrath. But at length God's wrath overtakes men. In Zach. 1. 6. Did not my words take hold upon your fathers? I sent out my threatening words and you escaped a long time, but at length my word caught hold of them. So, did not my Word take hold upon your forefathers?

Calvin he gives another Interpretation of these words, Calvin and some other Notes upon it, but I think that this is the main and Genuine scope of them.
It is in my desire that I should chastise them.

It is true, though at first God seems to forbear the execution of Justice as a thing he hath no mind to, yet if sin be continued in, in a stubborn way, now God desires it as a thing that there's nothing more pleasing to him. He is burdened with men's sins, and desires to bring punishments upon them; as a man under a great burden desires to be eased; in Isa. 1. Oh! I will ease me of mine Adversaries. And in Ezek. 5. 13. you shall find there that God in threatening of wrath faith, that he would do thus, and thus, and he would be comforted: and in Prov. 1. he laughs at the destruction of wicked men, it's a thing that rejoices him at the very heart. And in the Revelations the wrath of God is called the wine of his wrath, because he takes so much pleasure in the execution of it.

1. Gods Justice is God himself as well as any other Attribute.

2. God
2. God so delighteth to vindicate his honor, therefore the word that is for Chastisement, it signifies sometimes, the vindication of a man's honor: the honor of God is dear to him: Your peace and comforts may be dear to you; I, but my honor is more dear to me.

3. In Chastisements God fulfils his Word, the Word of God would be slighted & contemned else: Now this pleases me therefore to chastise them to fulfil my Word upon them.

Oh! the fearful evil of sin that brings the creature into such a condition, as God's heart is delighted in every evil that sinful creatures suffer: this must needs be a sad condition indeed, for the merciful God that delights so much in doing of mercy, yet now to look upon a sinner under his wrath, and delights in it, and loves it, and is well pleased to see the creature, even the work of his own hands to be under his wrath. Hereafter there will be pure Justice, God will delight in the destruction of sinners in Hell, in the execution of his Justice upon them, he will do nothing else but rejoice in it, there shall be nothing but joy in God's heart to see the execution of his Justice upon sinners to all eternity, yea, and God will call all the Angels and Saints to come to rejoice with him, Come ye Angels and Saints and rejoice with me, here's a wretched sinner that was stubborn & rebellious against me in the time of his life, and see how my Power hath overtaken him, see the dreadfulness of my wrath, come and rejoice with me for ever in this wrath of mine. This will be the condition of sinners eternally in Hell.

Consider this, you that have a desire to sin, a mind to sin, to delight in sin, that are comforted in sin? Is it in your will to sin? It is God's will to punish: Can you rejoice in sin? God can rejoice in the execution of his wrath: Are you resolute upon your sin? God can be resolute in the waies of his wrath. When God chastises his Servants for their infirmities, he doth it as a thing he hath no mind at all to, and therefore faith the Apostle, If need be, we fall into into many temptations, and it is but seeming grievous: And himself is afflicted in all their afflictions. David would have Joab go against Absalom, but faith he, Use the young man kindly, for my sake. So when God doth chastise his Servants, he sends an affliction, Go (faith he) and scourge such an one, yea, but use him kindly for my sake, for all that.

The bowels of David did yern towards Absalom, even when he sent Joab to fight against him. So the bowels of God do yern towards his People when he sends afflictions upon them. But when he comes to deal with wicked and ungodly men, I wil do it to purpose (faith God) I wil delight in it, I will be comforted in it, it is my desire, &c.

The People shall be gathered against them.

Expos. 1. That is, I will chastise them after this way, By gathering of people against them. The Assyrians when they gathered against them, they did it meerly out of their own ends. Yea, but faith God, I have an hand in it, I will gather them against them. And certainly God had a mind to chastise them, when he would gather enemies against them, the Assyrians it's like would never have dar'd to presume to come against Israel if God had not had an hand in it: And certainly we could never have imagined that it were possible that so many should be gathered together in this Publick Cause in this Land to maintain wickedness, and to fight to make themselves slaves, but only that God had a mind to chastise England.

Expos. 2. But I find by others that it's read thus: I will chastise them according to my mind, and so the word will bear it.

The Septuagint they read it, *According to my desire.

Oecolampad. So Oecolampadius upon the place, faith, God prescribed a cer-a certain time to have this people come in and repent, but faith God, you shall not prescribe me how long I shall stay, but I will do it when I please, both for the time of the chastifement, and for the degree of the chastifement.

God when he hath a mind to bring about a thing, he will gather the people when his mind is come. I remember it is said in the life of Pompey, a proud speech he was wont to have, when they asked him what they should do when the enemies came against them? Oh (faith he) let me but stamp upon the ground of Italy and I shall have men enough; that was a proud speech of him, but it's a true one in God, let him but stamp with his feet and he can gather people enough together.

And then further, God will choose with what rod he will scourge us, according to his mind, for the degree, and the kind too. Many afflictions when they are upon us we mourn and repine, and these discontented expressions comes from us, Oh! I could bear any thing but that.

But is it fit for thee to choose thine own rod? God might have said also, I had rather you had committed some other sin. It may be, because that's the affliction that is most cross to thy spirit, therefore God will have it. God sees that that's more for his honor, and perhaps for thy good, because it is the crooked affliction that God could find out, therefore thou hast that affliction that God might strike thee in the master-vain. Therefore let us learn to submit to the will of God. Is it fit that thou shouldest choose thy sin and thy rod too? No, stay there; If thou wilt choose thy sin, God will have liberty to choose thy rod.

When they shall bind themselves in their two furrows.

These words have very great obscurity in the first view of them, and I find a mighty deal of puzzling among Interpreters about them. The difficulty is in the word that is here translated Furrows, the same letters of the word, take away the points of the Hebrew, and they may be for these two sins, or their two eyes, there's a little difference in the Vau and the Jod which are much like one another. And in all these three ways according to to the signification of the word, Either Furrows, Sins, or Eyes, the sense may go reasonable well. As thus:

First, For Sins. And they shall bind themselves. You may turn it as well of Gods Threatening what he would do; for it is, bind them, or, in binding them, so it is translated by others, in binding them for their two sins: I will bind them for their two sins, so I find Arias Montanus hath it, Bind them for their two sins.

And I find the Septuagint translate it so too, Chastife them for their two sins, for so it may be, Chastife as well as Bind, for the words are very near together that signifies either binding, or chastising.

I will chastife them for their two sins: When he binds them, he will chastife them. And so I find that Luther hath it, for he doubles these.

And then they think that it hath reference to the two Calves of Dan and Bethel: Or the two Sins, of Bodily and Spiritual Adultery: Or otherwise it hath the same sense with that in Jer. 2. 13. My people have committed two sins: They have forsaken me the fountain of Living Waters, and b droved them out Cisterns, broken Cisterns that can hold no water.

Or if you will have it in the second place, according as it is in your books, They shall bind themselves in their two Furrows, then the meaning of it is this, That I will bring their Enemies upon them, and they shall yoke them like Oxen that are yok'd to plow, they shall bring them into servitude, and into bondage; they shall make them plow in their two two furrows, (double work.) So Polanus, because they shall put double work upon them and make them work in a servile way. And the rather do I think this is the meaning of it, because the holy Ghost doth follow the metaphor of it, An Heifer, as it follows:

And Ephraim is as an Heifer that is taught and loveth to tread out the Corn.

And so take it in the third way, the word that signifies an eye, only altering the letter Vau for Jod, and then this is the sense; they shall yoke them as the Oxen are yoked eye to eye. They yoke the Oxen even and set eye to eye; so the enemies shall come and yoke them so that they shall be like beasts to do their work, and this shall be the condition of Ephraim that hath this fair neck. I find others that take this,

They shall bind themselves in their two furrows.

That is, They shall Covenant together. When the enemy comes upon them then they shall Covenant together and joyn together, as Oxen that are yok’d together, and Judah and Israel shall joyn together, and they shall be in their furrows, in their trenches, as in reference to us: that when the people are gathered together, England and Scotland shall bind themselves together, and lie together in their several Trenches. So I find others take it.

But rather from the chief and genuine scope, I suppose the meaning is this, That they shall be brought into miserable bondage, they shall be like Oxen: and so faith one Interpreter upon the place, When you see Oxen yok’d together then be put in mind of the yoke of the enemies; you live daintily and bravely now, but when God shall let out the enemies upon you, you shall serve as slaves, yea, as beasts.
An Exposition of Chapter 10.

Ver. 11.

And Ephraim is as an Heifer that is taught and loveth to tread out the Corn: but I passed over upon her fair neck: I will make Ephraim to ride: Judah shall plow, Jacob shall break his clods.

In the 2. verse you heard much of the divisions of Ephraim, and of the ten Tribes; but in the latter end of the 10. verse you heard how God would join them together: But how should they be joyned? It should be in their bondage, they should be bound together in their furrows: now though it be in your books, They shall bind themselves, which hath likewise a sense which we spake to them, yet you may as well read the words, They shall bind them together, and to carry the sense, That they should be bound in their furrows, like Oxen in the Plough, there they should be yoked; they would not come in together under Gods yoke, but they shall come into together under the yoke of the Adversaries: and that I think is the principal scope of the words, They shall bind them in their two furrows.

They that were so divided in their prosperity, when they come into bondage there they shall by their enemies be bound together. It was said of Ridly and Hooper, they could not agree together till they were in Prison, and then they could agree together. And so when we were heretofore in our bondage we could agree better together than now, Oh! it were just with God to bring us again under the bondage of our enemies, and bind us in our furrows together.

But Ephraim thought herself far from this. No, Ephraim is not for plowing work, Ephraim loves to tread out the Corn, but not to plow. They were wont in those times instead of threshing out the feed from the chaff, to have beasts to tread out the feed, or to draw instruments whereby the feed was separated from the husk. Now it was the Command of God, that while he was treading out the Corn Applied to professors now.

Corn that they should not muzzel the mouth of the Ox. Deut. 25.

First, There was no yoke upon them while they were treading out the Corn.

And secondly, then they were not to be muzzel’d but to feed all the while as they pleased, while they were treading out the Corn; this by the Command of God. Now this was a very easy work for them to be without yoke, to run up and down in the Corn and so they could feed themselves fat; They had enough to feed on, certain food, and present food, whereas those Heifers that went to plow were fain to be abroad in the storms and cold and wind, and work all day long, and it may be not have a bit of meat till night, and this was a hard work; and Ephraim did not love that work; and it seems to have reference to some of the ten Tribes who would stay in their Country, and worship at Dan and Bethel, and would not go to Jerusalem, Oh! that was hard; and it was better for them to lay in the Land where they might enjoy their possessions, their shops, their tradings, their friends, that was easy, but for them to go to Jerusalem that might cost them their estates, it would raise an opposition against them, and they must leave all and go for the Worship of God, to worship him according to his own way; this was a plowing-work in respect of the other. Now Ephraim, those that live among the ten Tribes, they loved no such hard work as that was. From whence there are many excellent points observable. As,

The first, It’s a sign of a carnal heart for to be set upon easy work in God’s service, and to avoid any work that God calls to because it is difficult. [Ephraim loves to tread out the Corn.] It’s a dangerous thing to desire more ease in God’s Work than God would have us.

Secondly, Those services that bring present contentment, and present comfort, that there is present encouragement goes along with, even such as are carnal and Hypocrites can be content withal; for when they tread out the Corn, there was present supply. So it is with men, when they can have present supply in maintenances.
tenance. I remember it's a speech of a learned man, even upon this very Scripture, faith he, Where men see not present gain coming in, they despise Christ there. It's a speech of Tertullian, Where they may have to eat for the present, there they may be easily brought to believe such a way of service and worship that is countenanced, by the State for the present, Numb. 7. 9. 2 Sam. 6. God allowed no Cart to the children of Kóbah to carry the Ark, and that was their sin in putting it upon one, 1 Sam. 6. And where men may enjoy certain comings in whether they work or no, or whether they work negligently or no, there's a great temptation lies in this; there's not such a temptation lies in a man enjoying encouragement if it be upon uncertainties, and that he shall have it no longer than he doth labor, and labor to purpose; but when men shall have their estates coming in in a certain way though they labor by themselves, or other, or though negligently, or industriously, here's a great temptation in this.

And then further; For it is a sign of a carnal heart, only to mind things presently, to labor for an accommodation to themselves for the present. A generous spirit will labor for the posterity that is to come; If none should plow, how would there be Corn to tread out? We must be willing to plow though we have not present food, though we should have nothing till night, yea, though we should have nothing till the night of death, yea, in all our lives we should be willing to plow in hope. Ephraim loved not that work. That's a generous spirit that is willing to endure difficulty here though he finds no present comings in, though it be for afterwards.

And it may be applied it to soul work, in our seeking to God: Many men and women they are content to pray, and follow God and his Ordinances so long as they may have present comfort, but if that fails they have no heart to the duty. Now we should be willing to plow, that is, to endure difficulty though we have nothing coming in.
This is that which caused so many to perish in the world, they must have that which is present content; whereas the Saints of God are willing to trust God though they have nothing in this world, to trust him to have their wages in the world to come. It's a Scripture of very excellent use unto us. It follows.

But I passed over upon her fair neck: I will make Ephraim to ride.

But I passed over upon her fair neck:
By her easy work in treading out the Corn, and not having the yoke upon her neck to plow, she became to be very delicate, her skin was white and tender, Her fair neck: The Goodness of her Neck, so it is in the Hebrew, or her goodly white Skin, delicate and tender she was. The meaning of it is, by her fair Neck, is the beauty of her prosperity; and so the delicacy of her Neck, through her prosperity, nothing must trouble her, let works that are troublesome and hard let others come to them if they will, But for her part she was tender and delicate and must endure no burdens at all, nor no difficulty at all.

First, Her fair Neck.
Many are proud of their fair Necks and Skins, so proud as they grow extream wanton by reason of it, they must lay open therefore their fair necks that others may see them, see how white they are, what fair Skins they have, and put black Patches likewise to set out their beauty and the whiteness of their fair Skins, and if that will not serve, even laying over a paint to make it fair if it be not otherwise so; nothing but Ease, and Delicacy, and pleasure is for them, as if they came into the world for no other end but to live bravely and be look'd upon, as if mankind and all creatures must work and suffer to provide for these nice and delicate wantons, who yet are of no use at all in the world, certainly, God never gave any great estates in the world.
world for no other use but only to be brave withal, and keep their Skin white. Whatsoever estates men and women have, yet except they endeavor to be useful in the world in a proportionable way unto those estates that they have they can have little true comfort of what they do enjoy, the comfort of the lives of rational creatures certainly it's not in a fair Skin, in a white Skin, their comfort is in being useful in the places where God hath set them, their good consits in that. Man is born to labor, and there must be labor one way or other, every one is bound to labor; these fair white Skins, and fair Necks, Oh! what foul souls many of them have, their beauty is but Skin-deep. Oh! filthy and abominable in the eyes of God, and in the eyes of those that know the corruptions of their hearts. How would these fair necks be able to bear Iron chains for Christ? to be naild to the stake, to have such a Neckkercher put upon them as Alice Driver had? You have it in the story of the Book of Martyrs, when they put the chain about her neck to nail her to the stake, she gloried in it, and blest God for it: I but this Alice Driver was wont to plow, (for so she faith a little before in the story) her father did bring her up to plow, she was not brought up so delicately as others were, and she could endure an iron chain upon her neck for Christ. It follows:

But I passed over upon her fair Neck.

Expos. i. Some carry the words as expressing Gods indulgence, as if he was content to let Ephraim to prosper and thrive in their way, and not to bring any hard bondage upon them, but it's more like the other way that I find others to

*Quando à deo dicere
plagas & adversa significat.*

I came upon her fair neck, and made the yoke to pass over.

So Hierom upon the place, faith when it's spoken of God (this Phrase to pass over) *It's not only meant here in a way, way of threatening, but it's always so meant in Scripture, in a way of threatening of God's passing over, and it may very well be here a threatening expression following the similitude, for God is in a way of Allegory expressing himself after the manner of Husbandry, as when he threatens that they shall be yok'd.

And then Ephraim is compared to a Heifer that is taught, as if he should say, he would not willingly work. From whence the Note is,

That, God looks upon dainty, tender, delicate people that mind nothing but their ease and delicacies with INDIGNATION. What! Ephraim must be so tender and delicate that nothing must come upon her neck! I'll make the yoke to come upon it (faith God.) When people through their delicacy they must live in the world and altogether be tended, and all things must be serviceable to them, and they of no use at all, God cannot bear it. And as for the eminency of any of you, either in estates, or honors in the world above others, it ought not to be the cause of envy, for it is God that puts the difference between one and the other; we do not envy that some should go finer than others, but this is that which neither God nor man can endure. That men and women should have so much in the world, and yet be so little useful to the world, should be through their delicacy as if they were born for nothing else but like Babies to play withal. Saith God, I'll make the yoke to pass over them. But now, there are other manner of works, than servile works, though you do not put your hands to servile labor; But then you through your delicacy, if you meet with any hard work, will do nothing for God, the Lord looks upon such dispositions as sinful, and with Indignation, and God hath his time to bring them to hardness, as he hath done to many. How many delicate and fair necks that could not endure any difficulty hath God brought the yoke upon in these daies, that were so nice and tender, and complaining of every little difficulty in any work

Examples in our time of the truth of the text.
work that God would have them to do? God hath made the yoke to pass over their heads, and to lie heavy upon their necks; God threatens this to the Daughters of Babylon, Isa. 47. 1, 2 to the Antichristian party especially, in Isa. 47. 1, 2. Come down, and sit in the dust, O Virgin, Daughter of Babylon, sit on the ground: there is no Throne, O Daughter of the Caldeans; for thou shalt no more be call'd, Tender, and Delicate. Take the Mill-stones and grind meal; uncover thy locks, make bare the leg, uncover the thigh, pass over the rivers. And then in the 3. vers.
Thy nakedness shall be uncovered, yea thy shame shall be seen: I will take vengeance, and I will not meet thee as a man. That which you cannot endure so much as to hear of now, (your very ears are so delicate, as well as your necks) that I'll bring upon you. Oh my Brethren! how much better is it to be willing to endure hardships for God, than to be brought to hardships by our Adversaries? And rather to put our necks under the yoke of Jesus Christ, than to have God put our necks under the yoke of his wrath and displeasure. But God hath his time to bring upon them hard things, and therefore though God spares you for your bodies, that you need not put your bodies to that servileness that others do; yet be so much the more willing to do service for God otherwise, venture your selves among your kindred, that's the work that God calls Ladies to do:
You meet with carnal friends that are honorable and of great rank in the world, now for one to appear in the midst of them for the Cause of God, this is as hard a work as to labor with ones hands, and they may do a great deal more service by such work as this, to speak for those that are Godly. When you come in company that is carnal, be willing to put forth your selves to endure hardships in that way that God calls thee to, and God accept of it; but if thou through the delicacy and niceness of thy Spirit, thy Spirit comes to be as delicate as thy skin is, and thou must not displease any, nor suffer any thing for God, it's just with God to bring thee to suffer in spight of of thy heart. But it follows;

\textit{I'le make Ephraim to ride.}

Still take this in a way of threatening; in Scripture it's applied both to a way of Mercy and Judgment, in Isa. 58. 14. Thou shalt delight thyself in the Lord, and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the Earth. And I find it in a way of Judgment, in Job, 30. 21, 22. With thy strong hand thou opposest thyself against me, thou distrest me up to the mind, thou causest me to ride upon it, and dissolve my substance. And so there might be shown other Scriptures where this expression is in a way of Judgment, and so it's thought by Interpreters that it hath reference to the speedy captivity of the ten Tribes that they shall be carried out of their own Country. As if God should say, by his ease, and by his much feeding, in treading out the Corn he is grown so fat and lusty that there's no ruling of him; yea, but faith God, \textit{I will ride him}: though he kicks and spurns and is so unruly with his fat feeding, yet I'le put such a Curb into his mouth, as I'le order him and rule him according as I please. He is so fierce; for so I find that the word in the Hebrew is for fierceness, tumultuousness, and insolency, it is by divers taken for the word that signifies, \textit{to be at Peace}, because that Peace, and Ease, and Rest makes the hearts of men and women insolent. It was so with Ephraim, just like a pamper'd horse that is kept at full feeding, none can ride him;

God hath ways to curb men and women that through their prosperity are delicate and unruly, though they may champ upon the bit, and foam at the mouth, and stamp again, yet God will rule them; \textit{I'le cause Ephraim to ride.}
And Judah shall plow.

Expos. That is, Judah shall take pains and go through many difficulties in the ways of my Worship, and shall suffer much while Ephraim lives delicately for a long time, yet Judah suffered more difficulty, Judah suffered much more difficulty and hardship than the ten Tribes did. And I think that this Scripture hath reference to those two Scriptures that we find, the first is in 2 King. 18. from ver. 3 to ver. 9. and the other Scripture is in 2 Chron. 28. 6. Judah shall plow and be kept in a great deal of hardship in that time when Ephraim was so frolick as he was. In 2 King. 18. you shall find the great Reformation that Hezekiah made in the Worship of God in Judah, and Jerusalem: And then for his suffering that you have in 2 Chron. 28. 6. and 2 King. 14. 13. In 2 Chron. 28. 6. it is said, That Pekah the son of Remaliah slew in Judah an hundred and twenty thousand in one day, which were all valiant men. It's a very strange Scripture; Israel, the ten Tribes they were worse than Judah: Israel forsook the true Worship of God; Judah kept themselves to the true Worship; and yet God let Israel to prosper that they did prevail against Judah and the Tribe of Benjamin, so as to slay in one day an hundred and twenty thousand valiant men. Oh! what crying and shrieking was there in the Country then, that of two Tribes an hundred and twenty thousand valiant men should be slain in one day. We think it's a dreadful battel to have three thousand slain in the Field, but here's a battel of an hundred and twenty thousand slain in one day, and that of two Tribes. And in 2 King. 14. 13. Hoshea King of Israel took Amaziah King of Judah, the son of Jehoash, son the of Ahaziah at Bethshemesh, and came to Jerusalem, and brake down the wall of Jerusalem &c. Here they were put to a great deal of trouble even by Ephraim; Judah and Benjamin those two Tribes that kept to the Worship of God were to put a great deal deal of afflictions by Ephraim (the ten Tribes) that did forsake the Worship of God; in the forenamed place, 2. King.
18. there you may see how these reformed, and yet they suffered much difficulty. Strange is the Counsels of God concerning men.

For the first, That Judah is said to plow: That is, They shall endure a great deal of trouble in the reforming what is amis among them. From whence our Note is this:

That it is an honor for men to labor and go through difficulties for God while others are laboring for taking their ease: Be not troubled that you see other people can take liberty to themselves to provide for their estates and comings in, and to live bravely, Doth God give you an heart in the mean time to be willing to go through hard work for God? Envie not at them, thou art in the better condition, thou art plowing for God; while they are providing for their own ease, thou art doing God service, and they are only providing for themselves, Oh! thou art far the happier man, the happier woman.

And then in the second place, Take the plowing for the hard things they suffered for God, as well as the hard things they did for God. Then the Note of Observation is this:

Let no men boast they live more at ease than others. Others suffer more hardship than thou; do not think that God loves thee more than others: God loved Judah at this time more than Ephraim, and yet Ephraim lived bravely, and prevailed over Judah, and Judah was brought under in such a manner as this; Judah was God's true Church, and Israel did apostatize from God, and yet one had more outward prosperity than the other. Thus many times those upon whom God's heart is more set, they suffer hard aflictions: And those that God's heart is not so much upon,
they enjoy their prosperity.

Oh! I beseech you consider of this point; for at this day, how many of our Brethren in the Western parts, Oh!
the Flowers have plowed deep furrows upon their backs, while while we have been here (as it were) treading out the Corn; let not us think that God loves us more than them, they may be more dear to God than we; Judah was far more dear to God than Israel, and yet Israel must live jocundly and bravely.

Oh! consider of this you that are of greater rank, all your life is treading out the Corn, you see your poor neighbors endure much hardship, Oh think not that you are higher in Gods thoughts than they, they may be more dear to God than you, and yet they may be put to difficulties, and you may live bravely all your lives.

But that that may seem to weaken this Note, is only this: viz. They shall plow. But the Hebrews do ordinarily make use of the Tenses, the Future and the Preter promiscuously; but if you put it to the Future, that they shall plow hereafter, they interpret it to signify the Captivity of Judah, that they shall be carried into Captivity, and so be brought under by the Babylonians. Yea, but,

Jacob shall break his clods.

By Jacob, we must understand the ten Tribes. As if God should say here, That Judah shall be put to some difficulties, yet Jacob, the ten Tribes must be put to more; Judah shall be carried into Captivity; yea, but Jacob shall break the clods. Though Judah shall plow, yet the breaking the clods is worse than the plowing, for that's more servil, For the Work-Master he is the chief, he goes on in plowing, but it is his Servant or Boy he may set to break the clods after him. So, though Judah shall be brought to difficulties, yet Jacob shall be put to more difficulties; for the Captivity of Judah was great, yet it was not so great as Jacob.

Or others thus:

Judah shall plow, and Jacob shall break her clods.

That is, Judah's clods. The expression we have here, with with the reference it hath to Judah, seems to carry this with it. That there shall be a time, though now you that are the ten Tribes, you are so delicate and proud above Judah, Judah is lower than you, and you despise them, yet time shall come that you shall be glad to joyn with Judah, and be as a servant to Judah, to break her clods, when God shall restore his people again; Judah shall return from his captivity and shall be taking pains in the Service of God; and it shall be well for you if you can but come and be as their servant.

Those that do forsake the true Worship of God, though God may have mercy upon them afterwards to joyn them with his people, yet it is well if they may come to be in the meanest condition among God's People, they should be willing to submit unto it; those that have dishonored God and sham'd themselves in times of triyal, to forsake the Truths of God, it's mercy that ever God will bring them to joyn with his Church again; But if he doth bring them to joyn with his Church they should think it a great mercy and be willing to be in the meanest condition, what must those men think to be Masters & Lords that have forsaken God and his Truth and have been very false for their own ends, to save themselves and states in time of triyal, shall they think in times of Reformation to bear all before them? Oh! it's mercy if they may be but admitted to break the clods, to joyn with those Servants of God that have been faithful and willing to serve him through difficulties. It follows.

Ver. 12.

Sow to your selves in Righteousness, reap in Mercy.

The holy Ghost still goes on in this Allegory of Husbandry, continuing the metaphor that he had in the Threatning, when he comes to exhortation. In the midst of his threats he falls to exhorting.

Though the sins of a people be great, and Judgments neer, yet

who knows what an exhortation may do? who knows what an exhortation may do to the worst people in the world? Oh! there were many things spoken concerning Israel that one would have thought it should have discouraged the Prophet to meddle with Exhortation. But God would have him yet exhort, one cannot tell what an Exhortation may do to the soul of mankind in the world. Oh! there were many things spoken concerning Ifrâd that one would have thought it should have discouraged the Prophet to meddle with Exhortation. But God would have him yet exhort, one cannot tell what an Exhortation may do in the most desperate hardness of men's hearts, and pride and stoutness of men's spirits, therefore the Prophet exhorts them, as if he should say, Well, if you would not plow, if you would not come under the yoke and be put into the furrows as you were threatened before, why then, sow to your selves. Oh! be willing to break up the fallow ground of your hearts, and sow to your selves in Righteousness, and so you shall reap in Mercy.

Sow in Righteousness, and reap in Mercy.

I find some of the Antients they interpret this somewhat wildly.

Sow in Righteousness: that is, (faith Hierom upon the place) Sow in the Law, in obedience to the Law, and reap in the Grace of the Gospel; that's his Interpretation; you shall sow in the works of the Law, and reap in the Gospel. This is far fetched.

I find Luther upon the place, as Hierom goes somewhat too legal, (so Luther) because his heart was much in the Gospel, and he brings all Scriptures to the uttermost he can for expressing the Grace of the Gospel, he goes somewhat at the utmost the other way:

Sow in Righteousness: what's the seeds of Righteousness? that is, (faith he) The Doctrine of the Gospel tendering the Righteousness of Jesus Christ: the attending unto this Doctrine of the Gospel, and imbracing this, that there is Righteousness in Jesus Christ alone, this is sowing in Righteousness: for (faith he) what other Righteousness is there but this? When Reason would come to the highest degree of Righteousness:
what is it that it doth, only this, to conclude Righteousness to be, to depart from evil, and do things that are good, but what Righteousness is this? But the Scripture Righteousness is this: for a man to know that he hath no good at all in himself, that all his evil is pardoned in Jesus Christ, this is the Righteousness of the Gospel, and this is the seed, the seed of all good works: I name this, though I can hardly think that this is the scope of the Prophet at this time, yet there is a very good meditation from this which I see that useful man in the Church of God [Luther] goes on in, faith he, What madness and blindness in the Adversary is there, that will urge people to sow, and yet they do reject and cast off this seed that they should sow? That is the Doctrine of the imputation of the Righteousness of Christ by faith, why faith he, in all Pulpits there's crying out to men for good works, that they would sow in Righteousness, but (faith he) where have they their seed? The thing certainly is an excellent truth that he hath upon the place: how vain is it for men to be taught to sow good works till they have got the seed? And the seed of all good works is, The Righteousness that we have by Jesus Christ; and therefore he falls a rebuking those that shall blame the Doctrine of the Gospel as the means of licentiousness, faith he, there's a great many when we preach of the Righteousness of Jesus Christ, think that we preach licentiousness, and that men may live as they list, it's quite contrary, when we preach the Righteousness of Jesus Christ, we preach the seed of all good works, and those that have this seed, good works will come out of them. But faith he further, They would have Righteousness, but what? they flight the Righteousness of God's making, the Righteousness of his Son, but they must have Righteousness of their own to tender up to God. & then when they come to good works they will flight God's good works, and they will be giving to God of their good works, the world doth neglect those as light things, that is, the works of mercy, to receive the Saints &c. No, but they they will have other brave works, to build Churches, and Temples, and Monasteries, and to lavish out gold about them, and they are the chief good works: they will not come to do the work as it were of a Servant, but rather the work of a Benefactor to God, for in relieving thy poor brother when none but thy self and God knows it thou dost the work of a servant then, but to build brave Temples, and Monasteries, and lavish our Gold upon them, this is for you to be a Benefactor to God. But thus much for his speech.

Sow in Righteousness.

We know that the Prophet, though he would lead the People to Christ, yet his preaching was most in a Legal way, Sow Righteousness: that is, Go on in the works of Righteousness, those works that are right, and just, and equal, such as you may give a good accompt of them before God and man; as if he should say, Do not you think to put me off meerly with outward services, with offering sacrifices, and with this kind of pompous worship, in this superstititious way, I will never accept of these things; but let me have Righteousness, let there be the works of Righteousness, according to the Rules of Righteousness, so work. And the Jews, if they did but perform the external works of Righteousness, they might have external Mercies, if so be there were a proportion between one work and another. If indeed they did some works of Righteousness, and not the other, then they could not expect mercy from God; but though there were no saving Grace in them, yet if they did but perform external works of Righteousness, and there was a proportion between one and another; there doth seem to be an external Covenant that they were under for outward Mercies that they should have for their outward.

Caution, Righteousness: Not but that I think for Heaven there they must have true Grace and Godliness, as the Saints must have.
now; but external Mercies were more annexed to external Duties than now among us.

You will lay, We have external Promises too.

Yea, but that's made to Godliness in Christ Jesus.

Now from the words we may note,

First, That the Actions of men they are Seeds; such seeds as will certainly come up: other seeds may die in the ground & rot and never come up; but there is never an Action that thou performest, but it will come up one way or other, it will come up to something.

And secondly, It will come up in the same kind; the seeds of Tares will not come up to Wheat; but it will be a Tare; and so the Wheat a Wheat: all our actions will come up in the same kind. Men neglect their actions, and think that when they have done, it's over, they forget what they did yesterday or the day before; but though you may forget it, yet it will come up in the same kind, though you think not of it: I remember Pliny reports of some parts in Africa, that when they sow their seeds, they go away and never look after it for many months together: So is it in many men they sow but they never mind what they have done, and quite forget what they have done till they must come to reap. But certainly thy actions there they lie and will grow up to something.

Thirdly, The seed lies in the ground rotting a while, but afterwards comes up: so it is in our actions, they seem as if they were quite forgotten, but they will come up, yea, and good actions they seem as if they were wholly lost many times; well, though the seed doth rot, rot in the ground for a time, yet it will come up afterwards.

Fourthly, The seed when it is sown it comes up through the blessing of God upon it; it's no endeavor of the Husbandman can make the seed come up, but he must leave it to the blessing of God. So the seeds of our Actions must be left to God, Gods Justice will make the seeds of the wicked come up, and his goodness and mercy will make the seeds of of the Saints to come up; leave thy actions to the blessing of God.

Obs. 5. Fiftly, The better the seed, is for the most part the longer it lies under ground. When you sow Wheat and Rye you sow it at this time of the year, but when you sow Barly and Oats you sow them in the Spring time, but that endures not frost and snow as the Wheat doth. And so the best of our actions lies longest under ground.

Obs. 6. The Ministers of God they are Sowers of the Seed of the Word; and the Hearers they should be Sowers too. The Minister sows the Word in thy ears, and then thou shouldest take it from thence and sow it in thy heart, thy life and conversation.

Obs. 7. If our actions be seeds that we sow, then large opportunities of doing much service for God should be our riches: like a large field, that is sown with good grain, if thou hast a heart to improve those opportunities.

Use. Oh! that we would but consider of this, That when the Lord gives to men and women a large opportunity for service, God lets them out so much Land, Go (faith God) you must husband so much Land, and sow it for mine advantage: Many of you that are poor people you have not a foot of Land in the world, and you think that those that are Landed-men they are happy men; Doth God give you opportunity of service to honor him? Oh! thou hast got a great deal of Land, the meanest of you that have opportunities of Service, God lets you out his Land, you have abundance of Land and Ground that God gives to you, and a man should account himself rich according to the opportunity of his Service: As men in the Country account themselves rich according to the Land that they have to plow and sow, in Levit. 27. 16. If a man shall sanctifie unto the Lord some part of a field of his possession, then thy estimation shall be according to the seed thereof. The meaning is, That if a man will sanctifie a piece of Land to God, well, what is his Land worth? Why (faith the holy Ghost) you shall prize prize it according to the seed thereof, if it be a great piece of Land, yet if it be not fit to bear so much seed you must account it worth but little, but if it be a less piece of Land yet if it be fit to receive so much seed, then it's worth so much, thou shalt prize it according to the seed thereof: so the opportunities that are fit to receive much seed, Oh! those opportunities should be rich opportunities; and we should account the price of our lives to be according to the seed thereof: Thou livest such a year, what's thy life worth? it's according to the seed thereof. And so for these four or five last years, Oh! what opportunities have we had for service for God? Now they are to be prized according to the seed thereof, that is, as we might do service and work in these years. Then certainly if we must make the estimation of our lives according to the advantage of service that we might do for God, then these last five years we may reckon for fifty. It's a great blessing to have a good seed time; the Lord hath blest us with this good seed-time. Oh now, what a folly were it for a man out of base penu- riousness to save his seed, that he will not sow his ground, because he is loth to venture it, or through love of his ease he is loth to go abroad, it's somewhat cold, and he will keep by the fire side, and will not go abroad to sow his seed. Oh! thus it is with us, we through our base unbelief, we will venture nothing for God, we are loth to put our selves upon any difficultie, Oh this is our folly.

Well, but what seed? It is not every seed will serve the turn. Be sowers, but sow in Righteousnes, let it be Righteous- ness, let it be precious seed, In Psalm, 126. 6. They shall bear precious seed with them: Oh! there's many that sow venemous seed, that will bring forth poysonful fruit, all their daies they have been sowing nothing but seed of unrighteousnes, yea, this field that God hath given to us, of opportunity of service for him. What have many done? what have they sown? they have sown salt in it: that is, They have sown their Passions, they have sown Contention, and they have sown the seeds of Discord, for that hath been the cause that our field that we have had, those opportunities that we have enjoyed for God hath bin so barren, there hath been so much salt, the salt spirits of men and women have been so manifested in their Passion and Frowardness, and their Contentions one against another, that it hath made us barren: In Prov. 6. 14. Frowardness is in his heart; be deviseth mischief continually, he soweth discord. And ver. 19. it is made one of the things that the Soul of God doth hate, That, a man should sow Discord. And so in Prov. 16. 28. Froward men sow strife. Oh! how many are there amongst us that go from one place to another, and tell you such a tale, and such a report, and sow nothing but strife and discord? Oh! it's that that the Lord hates. What! in such a time as this is to sow Discord! there could never have been a time wherein the sowing of Discord could have been so abominable as in such a time as this is; Oh! let men take heed of sowing Discord; God calls for the seed of Righteousness.

And reap in Mercy.

Expos. 1. For the opening of this, I find many carry it, Mercy to men: that is, Do you sow the seeds of Righteousness, and let the fruits of Mercy be abundant amongst you. But to carry it, according to that that is more like to be the scope of the holy Ghost.

Expos. 2. By Mercy, we are to understand, the Mercy of God. Now there's Two things that is to be observed in this phrase.

Opened. First, That it is in the Imparative Mood, Reap in Mercy, not, Ye shall reap in Mercy.

Secondly, In the Original it is, The Mouth of Mercy.

Now for the opening of the words according to these phrases.

For the First, That it is in the Imparative Mood, Reap in Mercy; not, Ye shall reap in Mercy.

This signifies these two things.

1. The
1. The certainty of the Mercy they shall have. And
2. The readiness of the mercy, that it is ready at hand for them to possess; just as if one should say to you in your shops, Let me have this commodity and here take your money, that is, here's your money readie and certain.

And then, from the other word, In the mouth of Mer-

Now if the Translators had translated it thus, Sow in Righteousness, and reap in the mouth of Mercy, it would have been obscure: but those that understand the Hebrew tongue, know the meaning of this Phrase to be nothing but thus much. The mouth of a thing is used for the proportion and measure of a thing, you shall have it thus in Lev. Levit.27.
27. 16. (the same Scripture that I quoted before for ano-other purpose) Thy estimation shall be according to the seed thereof. Now the word in the Hebrew is, The estimation shall be to the mouth of the seed, that is, according to the proportion of the seed so shall the estimation be. And so you have it in Exod. 16. 16. Gather every man according to what he shall Exod. 16;

You shall sow in Righteousness,

Thus, Sow in Righteousness, it's a poor seed that we shall sow: now God doth not say, you shall reap in Righteousness, but in Mercy, from the mouth of Mercy. You take out of the mouth of the sack, and sow, but your poor proportion that you sow, when you come to reap (if you be fa-thful) you shall reap according to the proportion of Mercy, what is fit for a merciful God to do, what is futa-bile to the infiniteness of my Mercy, so you shall reap, not suitable to what you do and your proportion, but look what is suitable to the infiniteness of my mercy that you shall reap: It was so towards the Jews, if their obedience was but external, yet they should have mercy beyond their
The outward obedience: but if it be applied to those that live in the times of the Gospel, indeed that which comes from you being so mixt as it is, is but poor, yet you may expect to reap, not according to what you do, but according to what may manifest the infinite mercy of an infinite God; every man that shall in the uprightness of his heart, that is never so weak, and is employed in very poor, and mean services, yet if their hearts be upright they shall not reap according to the meanness of the work, but look what glory and happiness is suitable for an infinite God in way of infinite Mercy to befall, that they shall have in the mouth of Mercy, suitable to Mercy. Thus you have the meaning of the word.

Obl. 1. Now observe: First, As a man sows so shall he reap; though he shall reap more than he sows, yet he shall reap in the same kind; if he sows wickedness, he shall not reap mercy; but he that sows righteousness, he shall reap mercy. It is a mocking of God, for men to think that though they sow wickedness yet they shall reap mercy, therefore faith the Apostle in Gal. 6.7. As a man sows, so shall he reap. God is not mocked, if thou thinkest to reap mercy when thou sows wickedness, thou mockest God to his very face; if a man should go and sow Tares and say, I shall have a good crop of Wheat, would not you think that man mad, or he should think you a fool to tell you so and you believe him? So for you to think that either God or man should believe that you should have mercy when you sow not righteousness (I say) it is to mock God, and know, God is not mocked, for what a man sows, that shall he also reap, and thy fruit shall be another manner of fruit, thou shalt rent that which shall be bound in bundles, and thou shall bound together with it, and cast into unquenchable fire: But those that sow righteousness, there's never a seed of theirs shall be lost, they shall be recompenced for all their pains, & labor, & sufferings, for so faith the Lord, Ps 126.6. That those that sow in tears, they shall reap in joy, there shall be an.
an assuring fruit to those that sow in Righteousness, for Righteousness it is the most precious thing in the world, if it be true Gospel Righteousness, it is (I say) more worth, one right act is more worth than Heaven and Earth; God will not lose that seed, it's precious seed, there is more of God in one righteous Act of a Godly man than there is in all the works of Creation and Providence, (except Angels and Saints) than in all the whole frame of Creation.

The reason is this, Because in all the Creation Gods Glory is there but passively, God works there and it is passively, and holds forth his glory; But now, when it comes to the Righteous Acts of the Saints, there is an Active way of glorifying God, there's an Act of Gods life, There's an Act of the very Image of God, and the Life of God, and the Divine Nature is there, and therefore there is more of God in the working of Righteousness than in any thing else besides.

Oh! let the Saints get a price upon the actions of Righteousness, though there be much evil mingled, yet there's a great deal of the glory of God in every Action. If we were but grounded in this principle it would make us abound in the work of the Lord; so in the morning and in the evening let not thy hand rest, trust God with thy seed, do not be deterred with this difficulty and the other, He that observes the wind (in Eccles. 11.) he shall not sow; and he that regards the clouds, he shall not reap. Is it a duty that God requires of thee; do not think, Oh! but it's windy weather, and ill weather: no, but sow it, Sow it in righteousness, and commit it to God, and thou shalt reap. Oh! blessed are those who have sown much for God in their life time, Oh! the glorious harvest that these shall have, the very Angels shall help them to take in their Harvest at the great day, and they need not take thought for Barns, the very Heavens shall be their Barns, and Oh the joy that there shall be in that Harvest, and the Angels will help to sing the Harvest song that they shall sing that have been Sowers.
in Righteousness; but the confusion of face which will be upon those that were not willing to endure difficulty in plowing and sowing, The sluggard will not plow because it's cold: and therefore shall beg in Harvest, and shall have nothing: in Harvest he will be crying for mercy, Lord, mercy now; But what fruits of Righteousness? No fruits of Righteousness, no Mercy. Oh ! Reap in Mercy, that's a very observable expression as we have in all the Book of God, Not reap in Righteousness, but reap in Mercy.

From whence our Note is, That after all we do, yet we have need of Mercy. Let us be the most plentiful in sowing the seeds of Righteousness, yet we are unprofitable servants after we have done all.

Object. It is true, An Act of Righteousness hath much in it.

Answ. Yea, but it's God's, so much as there is in it, it's bad, and after we have done all we had need come to God as beggars to cry for mercy; those men that have liv'd the most holy lives that ever men did live in this world, yet wo to them if they have not mercy; if they have not a Righteousness beyond their own, If mercy comes not in to plead for them, wo to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob if mercy comes not in to plead for them, if at the great day if they have nothing to tender up to God but their own righteousness they are certainly lost and undone for ever. Al that we can do is infinitely unworthy of the Majesty of God, Oh! the text that you have in 1 Chron. 29. 14. when the people did offer so much to God for the building of his Tabernacle, Mark how David was affected with it, Who am I (faith David?) and what is my people, that we should be able to offer so willingly after this sort? for all things came of thee, and of thine own have we given thee. And when David in 1 Chron. 22. 14. when David had provided a thousand thousand Talents of silver, and an hundred thousand talents of gold for the building of the Temple of God, besides brass and iron, without without weight, yet when all comes to all, Out of my po-ter have I offered this; so Arias Montanus turns it: In your books it is, In my trouble have I done this, but the same word that signifies trouble and affliction, signifies poverty likewise, and faith David, after all this, yet in my poverty have I done this; whereas this was a mighty thing that was offered. I remember Sir Walter Rauleigh, it is in the 17. Chap. of his 2d Part, and 9th Sect. he reckons up the sum of what David did there prepare for the Temple of the Lord, & he makes it more than any King in the world is worth, he makes it to come to three thousand, three hundred and thirty, and three Cart-load of Silver, allowing two thousand weight of Silver, or six thousand pound Sterling, to every Cartload;

besides three score and seventeen Millions of French Crowns:
yet when he had done all, Out of my poverty have I done this. As if he should say, Lord, what is this in respect of thee who art the great God? If thou wilt but accept of this, I shall be infinitely bound to thee.

Oh my brethren, let us learn for ever after all our duties not to be proud, keep your hearts low and humble before God; Hath God enabled thee to sow in Righteousness?
our hearts are put up presently: Oh no, thou must keep thy heart still under. Alas! such is the proudness of our spirits, if we be but enlarged a little in Prayer we are ready to be put up presently: Oh! what's this to the service that a creature owes to the blessed and eternal God? hadst thou spent all thy days since thou hadst any understanding, night and day in the work and service of God, hadst thou been the greatest Instrument of God's service that ever was in the world, yet thou hast cause to lie down at God's Mercy-seat and cry, Mercy, Lord, Mercy for a poor wretched vile Creature after thou hast done all, we are so unable to do any thing ourselves. It's an expression of Luther,
The very Alt of Thanksgiving is from God: And therefore be humbled, and cry, Grace, grace to all that hath been: And let all Publick Instruments not take too much upon them, but lie low, And there’s a man that’s worth his weight in Gold, that can be an Instrument of great and publick work, and yet lie low before the Lord. Oh! did we but know God we would be so after our duties, we would be low.

There’s a notable story I find concerning Cyprian when he came to suffer martyrdom, and (you will say) that was a great service, to lay down his life for God: In his last prayer he had these two expressions, which are remarkable in it. The first expression was this,* Lord (faith he) I am prepared to pour forth the very sacrifice of my blood for thy Name sake, yea, Lord, I am prepared here to suffer any torment whatsoever. These two expressions he had. You will say, Now surely this man might stand upon his terms with God. (But he goes on) But when thou dost lift up thy self to shake the Earth, Lord (faith he) under what cliff of the rock shall I hide my self? to what mountain shall I speak even to fall upon me? As if he should say, Lord, though I be here ready to give up my body to be massacred for thee, to give up my blood to be an offering, and to suffer any torment, yet when I consider what a God I have to do withal, if thou shouldest deal with me as I am in my self, Oh! I must cry to the Rocks to cover me, and the Hills to fall upon me. Oh! this should teach us to keep our hearts low and humble after we have done the greatest work whatsoever. I remember one of the Germane Devines when he was full of fears and doubts, when he was to die: say some to him, You have been so employed, and have been so faithful, why should you fear? Oh! (he gives this Answer) The Judgetments of man and the Judgments of God are different; I am to go before the great and Al-seeing God: though it’s true God would not have us daunted with any terrible apprehensions of him, but yet he would have us be possed with reverence so as to be humbled when we think what a God it is we have have to do withal: you must reap in mercy. Oh! this shall be the song of the Saints to all eternity, Mercy, Mercy: Not unto us, Lord, not unto us, but unto thy Name be the praise.

And then the other Note from that expression that we have there is, That God will give abundantly above our works. Oh! it's a point that hath very much encouragement to poor troubled sinners that are low; raise up thy faith, it's not what thy work is, though it be low and mean, and though there be many failings in thy work, yet is there uprightness, are they feed of Righteousness that thou hast sown, thou shalt reap according to what shall honor the mercy of an infinite God at last. I remember Alexander when he was giving a gift to a poor man, Oh! the poor man dar'd not receive it, it was too great: yea, but faith he, though that be too great for thee to receive, yet it is not too great for me to give. So I may say to poor souls, when they hear of the glorious promises to poor people, Oh! their hearts are ready to think, this is too good news to be true, it is too great a mercy for thee to receive, as thou art in thy self, but if God will give according to the proportion of his mercy, it is not too great for him to give.

Now that's the way that God will deal with those that are in Covenant with him, that have all their fruit to come from the seed of Righteousness: Christ in the heart. I say there the Lord will deal according to the proportion of infinite Grace.

Take this one Meditation, That where there is any uprightness when thou shalt come to reap from God thou shalt reap so much from God as must manifest to all Angels and Saints to all eternity, what the infinite Mercy of an infinite God can do, and that's enough one would think; the poorest Christian that doth but the least for God when he comes to reap shall have an Harvest that must manifest the infinite riches of the infinite mercy of God, and what he is able to do for the raising up of a Creature to glory.
Comfort thy self in this, in thy poor low condition in which thou art, and in the performing of thy poor services. Thus for the manner of the Phrase.

Break your fallow ground; for it is time to seek the Lord till he come and rain Righteousness upon you.

Break up your fallow ground &c.] The Prophet exhorted them in the words before, to sow in Righteousness, that they might reap Mercy.

But you must not sow without plowing, that were a preposterous way, therefore though the words come after, yet the thing is to be done before. Look that you plow up the fallow ground: you have been sinful and ungodly in your way, It will not be enough for you now to set upon some good actions, we will do better, we will do such and such good things that God requires of us: No, that's not the first work you must fall upon, but it must be to plow to plow up your fallow grounds.

In this expression you have here implied, first, That the hearts of men naturally are as fallow grounds, nothing but thorns and bryars grows upon them, they are unfit for the Seed of the Word. And by this word is here meant these three things; when he bids them plow up their fallow grounds.

First, The work of humiliation, the Truths of God, both of the Law and of the Gospel must get into their hearts, and rend up their hearts, even rend it up as the plow doth rend up the ground.

And secondly, That weeds, thorns, and bryars must be turned up by the roots, the heart must be cleer'd of them; It is not enough to weed out a weed here and there, and to pluck out a thorn here and there, but plow up the ground, turn all upside down, and get up at the baggagely stuff and thorns that was in your hearts heretofore.

And then thirdly, Get a softness to be in your hearts;
as when the ground is plowed, that which was before hard on the outside, and bak'd by the heat of the Sun, being now turned up there is a soft mould of the ground, and so by the softness of the mould of the ground it is prepared to receive seed.

There are many evils in us that we would reform, but we have not been humbled for them, for our ceremonies, and subjection to *false Government of the Church, Who hath bin humbled for these things, as sin? We reform them as things inconvenient, but not being humbled for them as sin, the very roots of these things are in the hearts of many, so as if times should change, a didistinguion would serve their turn to come and submit to them again, so that we sow before we plow. I find in Jer. 4.3. you have this exhortation even in termininis,
That, They must plow up the fallow-ground of their hearts (only express a little further) They must not sow among thorns. They must not think to mingle that which is good with that which is evil, it may be a few good seeds are brought into a business, yea, but there is a great deal of evil. My Brethren, take heed of being deceived that way; many though they do not intend to deceive you, yet they may deceive you by mixing some good things with a great many evil, and therefore examin things. But I note this place in Jeremials the rather from the consideration of the time of Jeremiale Pro-

Jer. 4.3.
That time of Jerusalem's prophecy was in Josiah's time. Now the time of Josiah was a time of great reformation, there was very much reformation in his time, yea, but faith Jeremiah, What though you did reform, what though you do many things, you sow among thorns, you do not plow up the ground, you are not humbled, the roots of your sin are not got out of you, and therefore though there be a great deal of ill stuff that seems to be cast out, and many good things are set upon in the Worship of God that was not formerly, yet you must plow, plow up your fallow grounds. The holy Ghost joyning of them together, Sow Righteousness, and plow up your fallow ground.

This Note I would have you observe, That there are some that do Sow, and not Plow, and there are others that do Plow, and not Sow, but we must joyn both together.

There are that do Plow, and not Sow; that is, They (it may be) are troubled for their sin, it may be much humbled for their sin, but they do not reform, after their Humiliation there doth not follow Reformation.

Now as Reformation, where Humiliation hath not gone before, usually comes to little purpose, so Humiliation where Reformation follows not after, comes likewise to little purpose. In Isa. 28. 24. Doth the Husbandman plow all day to sow?

The text is brought to note thus much, That God observes his times; and that is the scope of the text, that we must not be offended because that the Lord doth not do things as we would have him alwaies, that is, he lets wicked men prosper sometimes, and the godly suffer afflictions, but as if the holy Ghost should say here, Let God alone with his work, God observes his times and seasons, as the Plowman doth, he doth not alwaies plow; so God hath his times and seasons and knows when to relieve his Church and afflict his Church, and when the wicked shall prosper and be be brought into adversity, God instructs the Plow-man to know his season, and so doth he, and therefore he be not offended. And so should we know our seasons, we should observe our times to be humbled and reform, to reform and be humbled. But this for the Reformation of a State.

But the plowing of the heart, that's the thing that is here especially intended, and I desire to apply it particularly to every man and woman. Those who have such sore necks who cannot bear the yoke, yet you must be Plow-men and Plow-women, for Alice Driver that I told you of, her father brought her up to plow, and both men and women, the daintiest Ladies of all must hold this plow that is here spoken of. Now for this plowing of humbling your hearts it is for the getting in of Truths into your spirits, that may rend up your hearts, I'll name some few Truths that are as it were the Plow-share, that you must not only know them, but labor to get them into your hearts.

As first, That such is the vileness of every sin, as it separates the soul from God and puts it under an eternal Curse. This one Truth, you must get this into your hearts, and get it deep into your hearts, it will help to unloosen the roots of the thorns and bryars that are there, the settled apprehension of this Truth.

And then secondly, This Truth: That, there is such a breach between God and my soul by sin, that all the power in all the Creatures in Heaven and Earth is not able to make up this breach, here is a sharp plow-share to get into the heart.

And then thirdly, This Truth, that by nature I am full of this sin, my heart is full of it, all the faculties of my soul are filled with sin that is of such an hainous nature. Here is a sharp plow-share to get into the heart.

And then fourthly, That every action that ever I have done in all my life, in my unregenerate estate, it is nothing else but sin, nothing else but sin that hath such a vile nature.
Yea further, That if any sin be pardoned to me it is by verue of a price paid that is more worth than ten thousand worlds: This Truth. Now here's the Gospel as well as the Law, for the plowing is but the spiritualness of the Law, the Truths of the Law in a Gospel way, for you must take notice that the Law [as law] accepts of no humiliation for sin, it is as it is revealed in a Gospel way, in a Gospel way it doth tend to humiliation, for let men be humbled never so much, the Law never accepts of them for their humiliation, but the Law in a Gospel way so it comes to humble the soul so as to do it good. Now therefore the Consideration of the Truths that the Law requires, having reference to the Gospel they serve for the humbling of the soul; Now get in these truths and see what they will do in thy Soul, you must work them in, And let conscience be put on to draw this plow, These are as the Plow-share, and the working of Conscience is the drawing of this plow; while the plow hops (as when it meets with a thorn and bryar) now a strong Conscience will draw it on, and will make the thorns and bryars to be rent up by the roots, if the Conscience be put upon with strength to draw these Truths in the soul; and though they put you to pain, yet you must be content to draw them on in the soul; And if these and the like Truths be got into thy soul, and thou beest at plow, and thy Conscience be drawing, This is that I shall say, God speed the Plow; yea, God speed these Truths that Conscience is drawing on in the soul, for it may tend to a great deal of good, to prepare thee for the seed that may bring forth Righteousness and Mercy to thy soul for ever. I confess it is a hard work to be thus plowing; Indeed for men and women only to hear Sermons, and be talking and conferring of good things, these things are pretty easie, but to go to plow, to plow with such Truths as these are, to get up the thorns and bryars by the roots, this is a very hard task; but we must be willing to do it, and to continue plowing; as the fallow ground must not only
only be plowed once, but (it may be) it may stand in need of plowing the second and third time before it may be fit for the seed to be cast in, and so it must be with our hearts. It may be some of you have got in some Truths, and you have been plowing; yea, but since that time you have had many weeds and thorns grown up, and you must to plowing again; it may be it is divers years ago since you have been thus plowing, and your hearts have lain fallow all this while, do not think it enough that once you have been humbled, but be often plowing up this fallow ground, you were as good have the plow get into your hearts though it be sharp, as to have the Sword of God's Justice be upon you. We have in these times a wanton generation that have risen up, that cannot endure to go to plow, they would be doing nothing but taking in the sweet, (as I told you before in a former Exercise) Treading out the Corn. But this plowing they cry out of meekly, through a wantonness, and tenderness of their spirits, a sinful tenderness, because they would have nothing but joly and licentiousness in their hearts and waies, yet the Scripture in Luke, 9. 62. compares the Ministers of the Gospel to the plow, He that puts his hand to the plow and looketh back, is not fit for the Kingdom of God, not fit to be employed in the administration of the Gospel. Though these men cry out so much of humiliation for sin, which is as strange a Generation as ever have risen up, that should cry out of that, when there's nothing more humbles for sin than the price that was paid for sin in the blood of Jesus Christ, and there is no such sharp plow-share as that. If I were to preach one Sermon in all my life for the humbling of men for sin, I would take a text that might shew the great price that was paid for it, and therein open the breach that in has made between God and man's soul: But they will not make use of the Gospel neither, so much as to be a plow to plow the heart for the work of humiliation.
Well, God hath prospered this work heretofore, and notwithstanding all the wantoness of mens spirits this way, yet (I say) still, God speed the plow, God speed this way of plowing the hearts of men, and getting in those Truths that doe humble the hearts of men for their sins; these were the Truths that God hath blest in former times, and there's none that ever did live to the honor of the Gospel so much: for this generation that is come up, they talk of the Gospel, but they live not to the honor of it, the Gospel hath not honor by them, nor Jesus Christ hath not honor by them. But the former generation of men, though in some things they might fail, yet certainly God blest them in their way so far as it was according to Truth.

The Reason No marvel though these men bring forth such little fruit of Righteousness, it is, because they sow among thorns, presently they are up at the top, and so confident presently in their way, their seed is among thorns and therefore it doth not prosper. And thus much for this expression about the plowing up of fallow grounds, both in reference to general Reformation, and Humiliation, and concerning mens Souls in particular. It follows;

For it is time to seek the Lord.

Expos. It is time.
To have time to seek the Lord, a great mercy.

Use
fallow ground, and sow in Righteousnes; for it is time to seek the Lord. Oh! you that are the oldest and wickedest, and yet live still, Oh! remember this Scripture; yet, you have time to seek the Lord. It is mercy that you have any time to seek the Lord: If you did but understand what this mercy were, ye would fall down with your faces upon the ground and bless the Lord that you have yet time to seek him. What do you think those damned creatures in Hell would now give, if it might be said of them, That they have time to seek the Lord, if they might have but one hour more to seek the Lord with any hope to obtain mercy from him? What you are now, they were not long since: Oh! do you fear and tremble, lest, if you not seeking the Lord, you are long be, as now they are, that it shall be said of you, Time is gone, time to seek the Lord is past; I will not now be sought of you; Seek the Lord while he may be found, and call upon him while he is near. It was a speech once of a woman in terror of Conscience, when divers came to her (it was in Cambridge) divers Ministers and others coming to her in way of comforting of her, she looks with a ghastly countenance upon them, and gives them only this Answer, Call time again: If you can call time again, than there may be hope for me: but time is gone.

Oh! that we had hearts to prize our time, to seek the Lord therefore while he may be found. And when thou goest home, fall down upon thy face before the Lord, and bless him that yet it is time to seek the Lord. It is time for the publick, through Gods mercy it is time, yet for us to seek the Lord. It might have been past time; and who almost that did desire to know any thing of Gods mind for seven or eight yeares ago or more, but did think that Englands time was even gone of seeking God? But the Lord hath been pleased to lengthen out our time to seek Him; and this we should prize and make use of.
Secondly, It is high time to seek the Lord.

Real. 1. For first, God hath been long time patient towards you. He hath been long suffering, there is a time that the Lord faith, He will be weary with forbearing, and therefore the Lord having suffered so long, it is high time for you to seek him, for you to look about you, lest the Lord should say, That he would be weary in forbearing, and forbear no more. It is fit you should seek the Lord at all times, but now it is high time when God hath been so long suffering towards you; how do you know but that the time for the end of patience is at an end? And that is the second consideration, God hath been long patient.

Real. 2. And 2. Mercy it is even going, for Judgments are now threatened by the Prophet: as if the Prophet should say, if ever you will seek him, seek him now, God is going, and Judgments are at hand, and therefore it is high time for you to seek the Lord. As a Prisoner when he is at the Bar, he is pleading a great while when the Judge is at the Bench, but if he sees the Judges ready to rise off the Bench, and if they be gone, then he is gone and undone for ever, then he lifts up his voice, and cries out, Mercy, mercy. So it is high time to seek the Lord, high time, Mercy is going, Judgment is at hand; God as the Judge is going off the Bench, now cry, cry out for your lives or you are undone for ever.

Applicat. Oh! this may well be applied to us both in the general, and in the particular, it is high time, God hath shewn himself to be going and departing from us, only there hath a company of his Saints been crying, and as the Lord hath been going from us yet they have lifted up their voice and cried to the Lord, so yet he grants us time.

Obs. 3. And then thirdly, It is an acceptable time, because now God calls upon you, and he holds forth the Scepter of his Grace towards you, therefore it is now acceptable to seek God, seek him now and he will be found, 2 Cor. 6. Now is the
the accepted time, the day of salvation, while you do enjoy the means of Grace, while God is offering mercy in the Gospel it is the accepted time, therefore now is the time to seek the Lord, The misery of man is great upon him for not knowing his time, in Eccles. 8.6. There the wise man faith, There is a time for all things, but therefore is the misery of man great, because he knoweth not his time. Oh! 'tis true in this regard, we know not our time and therefore is our misery great upon us. O that thou hadest known at least in this thy day those things that concern thy peace; missing of time is a dangerous thing; That may be done at one time with ease, that cannot be done at another time with all the labor that possibly may be: Thou canst not tell what may depend upon one day, upon one minute, perhaps even eternity may depend upon this moment, upon this day. A man goes abroad from his family and gets into company, perhaps into an Ale-house, or Tavern to drink, and there spends the day in wickedness; thou dost not know but upon that time the day of thy eternity may depend, it may be cast upon that day; as Saul was cast upon that act of his, faith Samuel to him, The Lord had thought to have established thy Kingdom, but now he will not; so God may say, Well, notwithstanding all thy former sins I would have been content to have past by them, if thou hadest sought me upon this day: The consideration of this would make us take heed how we spend our time, how one spends any day in ones life. A Mariner may do that at one time that he cannot possibly do at another. He hath a gale of wind and now he may quickly get over Sea, but if he stales still another time, if he would give his heart blood to get over he cannot: and so sometimes thou hast such gales of the Spirit of God as may do good to thy soul for ever, take heed thou dost not lose them, if thou losest them thou maest be undone for ever. Oh! 'tis fit to wait upon God for our time, and if God gives us time take heed we do not trifle and say, we shall have time hereafter: therefore in Phil. 2, 12, the Apostle faith. Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling: (and it follows) for it is God that worketh in you, both to will and to do. What a connexion is there? If God work the will and the deed, what need I work at all? Nay, the connexion is thus, Do you work out your salvation with fear and trembling, take all opportunities you can, let the fear of God be upon you, so as to omit no opportunity, for you do absolutely depend upon God, that if he doth withdraw himself from you, you are undone for ever, for you can do nothing of your selves, for it is God that worketh the Will and the Deed. As if we should say to a Marriner, Be careful, take your wind and sail, for all your Voyage depends upon God, if you neglect your opportunity you are gone. It is time for the youngest of all to seek the Lord, As soon as ever you begin to have the dawning of reason it is time for you then to seek the Lord. Oh! that you did but know your time. Oh! but what time is it for old ones, for those that have neglected seeking the Lord the most part of their lives; Is it not high time for you to seek the Lord, who have spent so much of the time of your lives in vanity and folly as you have done? The remainder of the time you have is uncertain, and yet suppose you should have so long a time as in the course of nature you are like to live, yet many of you cannot have so much time to seek the Lord as you have had in departing from God, you cannot have so much time to honor God as you have had to dishonor him: and therefore is it not time for you to seek the Lord? I remember it is said of Themistocles, that he died about an hundred and seven years of age, and when he was to die, he was grieved upon this ground, Now I am to die (faith he) when I begin to be wise. And certainly it cannot but be a grief to a man or woman, though they should be godly, to think, Why through Gods mercy, the Lord hath begun to work Grace (I hope) in my heart, yea, but as soon as I begin to know God, and have any heart to serve him in this world, I must be taken out of this world:
It was a proverbial speech once, Weighty things to morrow : you shall find it in Plutarch's lives. Oh! take heed this proverb be not fulfill'd concerning you, Weighty things to morrow, take weighty things, things of infinite consequence while you have time, let weighty things be regarded then.

It is time to seek the Lord.

Time. Certainly our time is now for the publick as much as ever to seek the Lord, for never did God give us such an opportunity for honoring him as of late. Never any Nation in the world had a greater opportunity for seeking God and honoring of him than we have had; we were like to have been befool'd of our opportunity of getting mercy from God: but the Lord hath given it us again, and betrosted us with an opportunity again after it was got even out of our hands; Oh! let us then catch hold of it now, and bless God that we have it even restored to us again, and let it be a strong argument upon us now to seek the Lord, seeing we have an opportunity yet to do it, we have the liberty of his Ordinances more fully than ever, let us not be befool'd of it.

And certainly it is time in a more special manner now for us, because that things are in so great a confusion, that every body is at their wits end almost: alas our wise Counsel that is at the stern, yet they are fain to depend upon meer providences, and casualties, and the truth is, there is such a confusion of things, that if God should say to the wisest man in the Land, Well, do you contrive which way you think things should be best, and I'll do according to your contrivance, they could scarce tell what to say, or what to determine of, if God should leave it to them: such a confusion there is, that in a rational way you could not tell how to determine of things, Is it not time to seek the Lord then?
We thought it was time to seek the Lord when we were in great danger of the Adversaries; that they would come to our gates. Surely it is as great time to seek the Lord now, to seek the Lord that when he hath delivered us from our enemies that we may not devour one another. And when God hath given us some rest from them and said, Well, all that before you were afraid of was, That the Enemies would prevail and then you could do nothing, but I have quelled their power in a great measure, and now set upon the work of Reformation, Oh! we are now at a stand and know not what to do, and we go on in such crafty ways one against another that every one is at a stand. Oh then, it is time for us to fall down upon our faces, to seek God to direct us, to regard the great opportunity that God hath put into our hands.

We only now want light to know what to do, and therefore whereas heretofore we have sought God for power that we might be able; now we are to seek God for light that we may know how to improve our ability, seeking God; To labor to put ourselves into such a disposition as God doth use to communicate mercy to his People in, besides praying to God. There's those two things in seeking God, Praying to him, and laboring to put our selves into such a way and disposition wherein God doth use to meet with his people, and communicate himself to his People.

Till I come and rain Righteousness upon you.

The word that is here translated [Rain] it doth sometime signify to Teach, it is of the same root; and the Scripture makes use of that similitude of Rain, for Doctrine; because of the likeness of Doctrines distilling as the Rain, therefore one word in the Hebrew is used for both. And therefore I find divers in Interpreters go that way, Ply the work until he teaches Righteousness; and so it is a Prophecy of the the Messias, do you Sow Righteousness, and plow up your fallow ground, for it is time to seek the Lord, till the Messias shall come and teach you the Righteousness of God. So they carry it. But take it as it is here.

Until be rain Righteousness. And then there is these things in it.

First, I ple open what is meant by Righteousness, and then Rain.

By Righteousness is meant, First, That God will deliver them from oppression, that though they have unrighteous dealing with men, yet they shall have righteous dealing with him. And this is a great mercy to a people that God shall undertake that there shall be nothing but righteous dealings between them and himself.

Secondly, By Righteousness is meant, The fruit of Gods faithfulness in the fulfilling of all those promises of his for good unto them, wherein the Lord doth stile himself Righteous. (Saith he) If you will now plow up your fallow ground, and seek the Lord, the Lord will deliver you from oppression, and the Lord will make good all his faithfulness to you, according to all that good word that he hath promised.

And this Righteousness it shall be Rain, that is: First, to note that all their good and help it must come from Heaven as the Rain doth, as if the Prophet should say, If you look to men, yea, to men in publick place you have little hopes that there should be such righteous dealings, or to expect that the good Word of God in all his Promises to his People should be fulfilled, yea, but look to Heaven, faith God, I plerain, it shall come down from Heaven by wates that are above nature, that are above the power of man, I plerain Righteousness; seek him therefore till he rain Righteousness, be not discouraged though you should see those in publick place to carry things never so unrighteously, yet seek the Lord till he rain Righteousness.

Secondly, By raining Righteousness is meant, the plenty of Righteousness, that Righteousness shall come in abundance.
It may be now, some men may meet with some Righteous dealings and be encouraged when things are at the best among men, but this Righteousness comes but by drops, yea, but seek the Lord till He Rain Righteousness. What is it to have a few drops of water? You may go into your Garden, and with a little pot of Water, water the Herbs; yea, but when it rains down water, then the earth is refreshed. And so faith the Lord here, Seek me till I come with a shower of Righteousness, and rain it down upon you.

Thirdly, Till he rain Righteousness. That is, Till I work so graciously in the works of my Righteousness to you, as shall make the Seeds that you have sown to be fruitful, to grow up to the honor of my Name, and to your good. Now there are many godly amongst you, and they sow Righteousness, they do many good Actions, but alas, it is kept down still by the scorching heat of the Oppressors; in places where Oppression prevails, many godly, truly godly men and women they sow much seed of Righteousness, but there is little good comes of it, and all is kept down: yea but faith the Lord, Seek me till I rain Righteousness, I'll rain from Heaven such showers that shall be the fulfilling of my Promises to you, that shall make all your righteous actions grow up to the praise of my Name, and the good of your Brethren, Oh! what a blessed time is this, when there shall be nothing but righteous dealings, and all the faithfulness of God shall be fulfilled, and there shall be plenty.

The Notes are:

Obs. 1. First, That God will come to sow Righteousness in time. Those that plow and sow in Righteousness God will come in way of Grace and Goodness to them; Prov. 11. 18. To him that soweth Righteousness shall be a sure reward. Be not discouraged you that sow Righteous seed; for it is not with the seed of Righteousness as with the seed that is sown in the earth, for if that do not come up in such a certain time, it will never come up; but you cannot say so of the seed of Righteousness, it will come up.

Secondly
Secondly, God sometimes comes not presently in raining Righteousness upon his people that do sow Righteousness: Seek the Lord till he comes and rains Righteousness: As if the Prophet should say, You have hearts to seek the Lord, to be humbled, and reform, to sow in Righteousness; well, be not discouraged, continue seeking, stay till he doth rain Righteousness. After the seed is sown, you would fain have a shower the next morning, but (may be) it will not be the next morning, stay till God's time; God doth not always hear the prayers of his people so as to answer them when they would. It is very observable concerning Elijah, at one time when he cried for fire to come down upon the Sacrifice, it came down presently: but when he cried for rain, he was fain to send his servant seven times: Elijah did not get Rain from Heaven so soon as Fire from Heaven.

The Third Note is this, That those that seek a right will continue seeking God till he comes and rains Righteousness. There is an excellent Scripture in Psalm. 101.2. faith David, I will behave my self wisely in a perfect way; O when wilt thou come unto me? I will walk in my house with a perfect heart. As if the Prophet should say, Why Lord, 'tis thy presence I desire more than a thousand worlds, and I'll endeavor to behave my self in my house, in my family, not only in the presence of others, but in my family, in the most perfect way I can: Lord, when wilt thou come? It seems God did not come and manifest Himself presently: though David did behave himself in a perfect way in his house, yet David professes he would wait still. There's many Scriptures may be given for this, and many arguments why a gracious heart will not leave over seeking till the Lord comes.

'Tis the Lord I seek, and he is a great God, and is fit to be waited on, though he doth not come presently. We think it is a matter of State, because of the distance that there is between one and another to make them stay. Why should we think much that we should wait upon the great and Infinite.
finite God? And perhaps you pray, and find no benefit; it is fit for you to wait upon God. There is an infinite distance between God and you, Seek till he comes. If you do not get that, that you seek for, yet you are doing your duty, and that is enough.

This is a very great evil among many. They are praying and seeking God, but they only have their eyes upon what they shall get by seeking God, and if nothing comes of it, then they are discontented; whereas merely the consideration of that, that thou art doing thy duty should be enough to quiet thy heart.

And then further, Thou canst not be better certainly than seeking God. Whither wilt thou go? If thou leavest seeking God thou turnest from thy own mercy to vanity. And hast thou a temptation to leave off seeking God? Hast thou get any thing by it? Certainly thou canst not do better, and therefore seek the Lord, seek the Lord till he comes, Isa. 30. 18. is a most excellent Scripture to uphold the heart in seeking God though God do not seem to come. The Lord is a God of Judgment; blessed are they that wait for him. You are not a man or woman of Judgment, you know not when it is a fit time that things should be done; But God is a God of Judgment, he knows how to do things in Judgment; and therefore blessed are they that wait for him. Think of this, and deny your own Judgments, and your own thoughts, and know that you are waiting upon God, that is a God of Judgment, that is infinitely wise to come to his People in a fit season, and to come so that at last you would not wish that he had come sooner.

And know, That all the while you are waiting, God is working good. We are waiting upon men's doors, and they take no notice of it: but if we knew that all the time we are a waiting our Petition were a reading and they in consultation about it, and we only waited for the issue of the consultation, it would satisfy us. And so a gracious heart may be assured of this, Haste thou sought the Lord in the truth truth of thy heart? The thing is not come yet, but ever since thou hast fought the Lord the heart of God hath been thinking of that thing which thou soughtest him for, and wilt not thou be seeking God still till He doth come?

And then, While thou art seeking God, thou art not altogether without some dews; Indeed God doth not come and rain in showers, that Righteousness that He will hereafter, but surely thou hast dews, thou hast some encouragements, and do not slight those dews of God's Grace that thou hast; for then thou maist stay the longer before the showers of Righteousness come; prize the dews of God's Grace and the showers of Righteousness they will come the sooner. Many Christians though they have many dews of God's Grace upon their hearts to refresh them, yet because they have not showers they think it is nothing; what hast thou no dews of Grace? What is it that keeps thy heart so tender as it is? Thou wouldst not for a thousand worlds willingly sin against God, certainly if thy heart were hardened the Truths of God would not get into thy heart so as they do: Indeed the rain comes in a visible way; yea, but there are dews of Grace that come in a secret way: Thou dost not indeed see the comings in of those dews of Grace upon thy heart, yea, but others may see the effect of those dews.

And then lastly, Seek the Lord till He comes; why? Because when He comes He will come more fully a great deal. It was a notable speech of Mr. Glover the Martyr, when he had been seeking God for the raining of Righteousness, he was willing to give his life for God, and yet God had absented himself from him, Oh! God was not come, he complain'd to his fellow Austin, that God was not come; well, but faith his friend, he will come; and give me a sign before you die, if you feel the Spirit of God come to your heart: well, the poor man continued all night, when he was to be burnt burnt the next day, and yet he was not come, yea, the Sheriff came to carry him to the Stake, and yet his heart was dead. But he goes on till he came within the sight of the Stake, and then the holy Ghost came into his heart, and filled him with joy, so that he lifts up his hands and voice, and cries, He is come, he is come. Now there came a shower of Righteousness upon his heart, he was content to seek the Lord till he came.

Ob. 4 And that may be a fourth Note, That those that are content to seek God till he comes, when he comes he will come with plentiful showers in raining Righteousness. Oh! how many! how many cursed Apostates are there that will curse themselves one day for not continuing seeking of God till he comes? Perhaps there are some that have had some convictions of conscience, and because they have not had encouragement presently they were discouraged, and so thou hast basely gone back, and now God hath left thee, and thou art become a base useless Hypocrite, and art a dishonor, and disgrace to Religion, and all because thou wouldst not stay till God came: Oh! but others stayed till God came, and God came at length so fully that now they bless his Name that they did stay. I remember I have read of Columbus that was the first that found out the West Indies, and the story faith of him, that his men were even weary, he was so long in failing, & so they were resolved they would come back again, that they would, so that then all their labor had been lost. But Columbus he came to them with all intreaties to go on a little time, and at length prevailed with them to go on but three daies longer. So they were content to venture three daies, and within that three daies they came to see Land, and so discovered those parts of the world that were so little known to these parts. Now what a miserable thing had it been if they had come back and lost all their Voyage? Thus it is with many a soul failing towards Heaven and eternal life. Thou hast been a long time tossed up and down in the waves of the Sea, the waves of of Temptation; and of Trouble; and thou thinkest it's best to come back again: Oh! stay a while, do not limit three days, but go on; yet it may be said of some that had they proceeded in their voyage but three days more, they might have come and been, whereas now they have lost all. Oh! seek the Lord then till he comes and rains Righteousness.

And then the fifth is this, The help of those that seek God it is from Heaven. Till HE Rain. They do not so much expect help from Creatures as from Heaven, they look up to Heaven for their help; when all comforts in creatures fail they look upwards and there see their help.

And then the sixth Note is this, That the fruit of God's coming to his People after seeking, it is, To make them fruitful, that's the end of God's coming, the end of the Mercy of God in coming to people, it is, to make their seeds to grow up and be fruitful. It may be you would have God come, but wherefore, to bring comfort to you? No, the end of God's coming to his Saints, it is, To make them fruitful, and this would be an Argument of the sincerity of your hearts in seeking God: When you are seeking him, what do you seek him for, only for comfort, and peace, and to ease you from troubles? Yea, but do you seek God that you may be fruitful? The Hypocrits seek to have Grace that they may have Comfort, and the godly seek Comfort that they may have grace, so it is, That God may rain Righteousness: I am as a dry ground, Oh! that God would come with the influence of his Grace to make me fruitful in the works of holiness: Many of you would have comfort, (as now in these days mens ears are altogether set upon comfort) but is your comfort the showers of God? doth it make the seeds of Righteousness fruitful in your hearts? Certainly you can have little comfort of that comfort that is not as rain from Heaven to bring up the fruits of Righteousness in your hearts, and in your lives.
And then sevethly, God's coming with blessings upon those that seek him, it is, Righteousness: that is, the good that they have as a fruit of seeking of him, it is, The fulfilling of God's Word, it is but God's Faithfulness that was engaged for it. Jesus Christ had purchased it by his blood, and they had a bond for it before, what ever good they have from God.

It is an excellent Note to help us both in our seeking God, and in the comforts that we have. When we are seeking God we are not seeking God meerly as a gratuity. Though in reference to us it is only free Grace, but to Christ it is Righteousness, it is that which Christ hath purchased, therefore faith Saint John, If you confess your sins: he doth not say, it is mercy for God to forgive them, but it is just with God. And so when you receive a mercy from God, you are not to look upon it as a meer Alms, though in reference to your selves indeed it is so, but in reference to Christ your head it is Righteousness, it is that which Christ hath purchased, and that which God gives you as a fruit of his faithfulness, as well as of his free Grace, when thou art seeking of God let not only the eye of thy faith be upon the Grace and Mercy of God, but upon the very Righteousness of God.

And then another Note may be, Though the good we do is our own good, yet God rewards it as if he got by it: God makes Promises to us that if we do thus and thus we shall enjoy such and such mercies.

Sow to your selves.

When we sow, God gives us leave to aim at our selves, but yet when God comes to reward us, he doth reward us as if it were only for him and not for our selves, he rewards us in waies of Righteousness.

And thus much for this Verse of raining Righteousness. God hath another rain for the wicked and ungodly, in Psalm,
Ver. 13.

Psalm, xi. he rains snares, and fire and brimstone upon them.

Ver. 13.

Ye have Plowed wickedness, ye have reaped iniquity, ye have eaten the fruit of Lyes.

Notwithstanding all exhortations, and all offers of mercy, yet you have gone quite contrary (faith the Prophet:) Instead of breaking from your iniquities, you have plowed your iniquities. The meaning is this: You have taken pains to propagate that which is evil, you have taken pains to prepare for wicked things and to do all you can for the propagation of that which is evil, both in your selves and others. That is the plowing of wickedness. The plowing of the wicked is sin, their endeavors, (that is the meaning) their labor it is especially for the furtherance of sin, the very strength of their spirits is let out for the furtherance of their sin; In Job. 4.8. Even as I have seen, they that plow iniquity, and sow wickedness reap the same: to plow it is to endeavor and labor for iniquity, for so the word that is here translated Plow, it signifies, to Frame things, to Work things, to Endeavor any thing with all our might; that is the signification of the word. You have let your hearts altogether upon this work, for the furthering of wickedness, in thinking of it, in plodding about it, in stirring of one another, and doing all you can in your endeavors for the furtherance of wickedness.

Yea, You have been willing to go through all difficulties to accomplish your wicked intentions: As we reade in Micah, 7.3. it is a notable Scripture, it shews the strong endeavors of wicked men after their sin. They do evil (faith the text) with both hands earnestly. It is a very strange text, they are willing to take pains and plow for their sin.
Oh! how many are there that take more pains to go to Hell, than others do that go to Heaven? they will so struggle, and suffer for their sin, willing to break with their friends, to accomplish their sinful lusts, willing to venture their estates, to hazard their healths, willing to do any thing in the world, they are willing to go through all difficulties that they may have their sin: Yet they will not plow for God: Oh! they complain of any little difficulty in the ways of God; but complain of no difficulty in the ways of sin, Oh! what a wicked and wretched heart is this, to be offended with any hardness in God's ways, and yet be content to endure any hardness at all in the ways of sin! Oh! that we were but as instrumental for God, and willing to plow, as hard as others do for that which is sin. And Oh! when you shall come to die, to reap the fruit of your labor, what terror do you think will this be to your consciences, when it must tell you that you have taken more pains in the ways of wickedness than ever you did in the ways of God? As it was said of Cardinal Wolsey, when he was to die, Oh! faith he, Had I but served God as diligently as I have served the King, he would not have given me over in my gray hairs. So when you shall come to die and your consciences shall say, Oh! that I had but broken as much sleep to prayer and seeking God, Oh! that I had but ventur'd my estate, and name, as much in the ways of God as in the ways of sin, it had been happy for me; Is it possible that any of you can die in peace of conscience, and yet your consciences shall tell you that you never took that pains for God as you have done for sin? In a good motion that is for God, if others do it you will agree and go on with them: I, but you will not plow hard for it; but in things that are futable to your lusts, you will not only move such a thing, and joyn with others, but you will plow hard for it, Oh! what pity is it, that mens parts and and strength should be laid out so much upon that which is evil! Men that have active spirits, Oh! how instrumental might they be for God if their necks were but in God's yoke? but they, all the daies of their lives, have their necks in the Devils yoke, and are plowing for the Devil all their daies, and they will reap accordingly.

Now this plowing wickedness was especially their way of false worship, Oh! they endeavored there, they plowed hard to get up their false worship, their worship at Dan and Bethel, and not to go to Jerusalem to worship. It follows.

You have plowed wickedness, ye have reaped iniquity.

You do not hear of any sowing; for the truth is, there need no sowing for wickedness, there need be but the preparation, do but plow, that is, do but prepare the ground, and wickedness will come up alone. When you plow Righteousness you must sow the seeds of Righteousness.

You reap iniquity.

The meaning is this, You have your hearts desire to bring about your own ends, to have what you plowed for. Sometimes men do plow and take a great deal of pains in that which is evil, and God crosses them; but at other times God lets them reap: that is, Do you labor for to promote such a thing though it be not according to God's mind, it may be God will let you have it; well, you plow for it, and you shall have it; and does't thou bless thy self in that? Oh! woe to thee, it is a woful harvest that thou hast, it is a fearful curse for any man or woman for to have their hearts desires satisfied in their sin, it were a thousand times better that thy plowing were to no purpose at all, that all thy labors and endeavors were quite lost; thou art loth to lose thy endeavors in the waies of sin, Oh! but it were a thousand thousand times better that thy endeavors were all lost than that thou shouldst attain that which thou plowest for.

But I find the word that signifies Iniquity, is used in Scripture to signify, The punishment of iniquity: for the Hebrews have the same word to signify Sin, and the punishment of sin.

Orthus, which I think the holy Ghost hath some aim at, You plow (saith he) wickedness, and reap iniquity; the plowning was for their false worship, and their reaping was inquity: I beseech you observe this Note further.

That, The fruit of false worship it is the encrease of sin in a Nation.

You plow wickedness, for so afterwards it is called, The great wickedness; and the fruit of that, it is the encrease of much sin, it brings forth a harvest for sin. When men have striven to set up any false worship, and have gotten it up, what is the fruit of it? There grows presentely a formality in Religion, Men have a Religion, and yet they enjoy their lusts, for only the true Worship of God is that which will not stand with mens lusts, therefore when men set up any kind of false Worship, this will be the fruit, there will be a formality in Religion, and this will please men exceeding well, for they can live in worldliness, and licenti-ousness, and this will be the fruit of it. And verily my Brethren, this is one main thing, that makes carnal, loose why car-

nal men

contend

for superstition.

First, What are those Lyes that they eate the fruit of?

Lyes here

First, Those arguments by which you justify your selves what?
in your iniquity. Yea, but they are but the fruit of lyes.

They
They would set up a way of false worship, but they would have some Reasons for it, they would have some arguments to defend it, and those. Oh how they hugged and closed with them, and let any one bring and shew them that such a thing may be proved thus and thus by such an argument, now because they had a mind to the thing, their hearts closed upon those arguments, and they fed upon it, it did them good at their hearts.

Secondly, You feed upon Lyes; that is, Those comforts that you have from the way of false worship, the way that you set up you have a great deal of comfort in it, and you are very glad that it thrives. It is but a Lye (faith God.)

Thirdly, Their hopes that they had when that way was established of theirs, they had such hopes that all should be so well, and that there should be no more trouble between them and Jerusalem: I, but you feed upon Lyes (faith God). It is but a Lye that you feed upon.

The Fourth Lye that they fed upon was, The Interpretation of Gods dealings, in blessing them for the way of their false worship which they had set up; then all kind of outward blessings which they had they made this Interpretation of them, the goodness of God to them for that which they had done: As that is usual in places where there is any thing in matters of Religion altered, though it be not right, yet you shall have men that are for that way, what ever blessing comes upon a Nation, they will interpret it as the fruit of that. I, but this will come to nothing.

And then fiftly, The fift Lye, was, Those false reports that came to them against those that did oppose their way of false worship. there were many that would not yield to the way of false worship, and upon that reports were raised upon them, what kind of men they were, and what they had done, and when these reports were brought to them of the other way, Oh they did them good at their hearts, I but, You have eaten the fruit of Lyes: many mens Break-fasts, and Dinners, 2. Comforts from it.

3. Hopes by it.

4. Interpretation of Gods blessings in it.

5. Reports of the contrary party.
Dinners, and Suppers are nothing else but lies. Surely now this will breed no good nourishment. And what's the reason that we have such a deal of ill blood among us? It is, because that men have such coarse food as they have.

Because thou didst trust in thy way, and the multitude of mighty men.

Israel (the ten Tribes) had two great Confidences that were expressed in this latter part of the 13. Verse.
1. The Confidence of their Way.
2. And the Confidence of their Mighty Men.
Now the Way in which they did trust was, the Way of Religion that they chose to themselves, that way that was distinct from the way of Judah, from the true Worship of God.
And the Mighty Men was, the Power they had in their State.
These are two great Confidences of people.
First, Thou didst trust in thy Way; they were confident that was right, they were not willing to hear any thing to the contrary: And if they did, yet their hearts were so byassed by their false worship, that any thing that was said to the contrary was nothing to them, they were very confident that there was no man able to say anie thing to purpose against them, no, we have so many understanding learned men for this way, no question it is right, there's none but a company of silly, weak men that are in any other way.
Thus they trusted in their way, they please themselves, and one another, and did seek to harden themselves, and one another in their way, they have got the day, no question they have laid all upon their backs that have opposed them, there's a great deal more reason for this way than for any other. There's no way of peace to the State, to the Kingdom, but this, that which others would have, namely to go to Jerusalem to worship, it's a most unreasonable way. Yea, they think that God is well pleased with their way, and they do good service in opposing and persecuting those that are not of their way; Thus they trust in their way.

From whence the Note and Point is, That which is a man's own way he is very ready to trust in, to make much of; Whatsoever is a man's own way: we have for this a notable Scripture in the Book of Judges, 2. 19. Oh the strength of spirit that there is in men when the way is their own, faith the text there, They cease not from their own doing, nor from their stubborn way. I beseech you observe it, 'tis but a several expression, own doing, and own way, the doing were their own, such things as they had contriv'd to themselves, Their own way; and then they ceased not from, they would stick to their own way, they were stubborn in their way because their way was their own, Prov 12. 15. The way of a fool is right in his own eyes; but he that hearkeneth to counsel, is wise. A fool, one that understands little, yet if the way be his own, he will not hearken to counsel, he thinks he is sure, he needs not counsel with any, he is so strong in it because it is his own way. It's a hard thing to get men out of that way that they have contriv'd to themselves in matters of Religion: and therefore it's observable what God saith of all the Heathen in Jer. 2. 10, 11. Have any of the Nations changed their gods? but my people hath (faith he.) No Nation would change their gods whom they had chose, only Gods People they were peculiar in this to make change of their God: Why? because the gods of the Nations were of their own making. What ways are of mens own that they stick exceeding much to, They trusted in their own way; as when an object is too near the eye, the eye is not able to see it, to see any evil in it. If a foul thing be put too near the eye, the eye cannot see it: so the evil that is neer ones self, very neer, that is ones own, that is very hard to see; and yet

Prov. 12. 15.

Jer. 2. 10. 11.
what great difference is it between ones being defil'd by ones own dung, and by the dung of another? If a mans heart be engaged in a way of his own, he will be ready to father it upon God himself, and say, It is Gods way, and he will be ready to think that all other waies different from his are mens own.

No men are more ready to charge others of pride than proud men; and no men more ready to charge others of going to their own way, than those that do most slick to their own waies; its one fruit of a mans heart stickling to his own waies and conceits, to think that whatsoever differs from him, doth stick to his own conceits and his own waies.

It's a hard thing to make a man or woman that sticks much to their own waies, to own it that it is their own; but however men will not own what is theirs, but put it upon God many times, yet the Lord he will one day discover all the waies of men, discover all the waies of men and women and shew how much is their own in it: It's a notable text for that in Prov. 21. 2. Every way of man is right in his own eyes; but the Lord pondereth the heart, (or the Lord weigheth the heart) for pondering and weighing is all one. Mark, every way of man is right in his own eyes; but the Lord pondereth the heart; that is, Though we chuse waies to our selves, and think they are right, and we are ready to think that our waies are Gods, that we might justify our selves so much the more, but saith the text, God pondereth the heart; that is, God weigheth exactly how much there is of his own, and how much there is of our own in it. Oh! it were a happy thing if we were able to do so, it's a great part of the skill of a Christian to be able so to ponder his own waies as to know how much of God & how much of himself is in a thing. There's very few in the world knows this; there's scarce any action that the best of us do but there is somewhat of self in it, there is somewhat of God, and somewhat of self; but now here's the skill, to be able to weigh how much of God, and how much of our selves.
The Prophecy of Hosea.

Ver. 13. It's a great skill that your Goldsmiths have, they can presently tell you how much gold and silver is in a vessel; an unskilful man looks upon it and thinks it's all gold, but your Refiners will tell you even how much to a drachm is mixed with it. Oh! it were an excellent skill to be able in all our actions thus to ponder all our ways, to know how much of God, and how much of ourselves is in our ways, for want of this it is that we do miscarry so much in our ways as we do; every way of man is right in his own eyes, but God ponders, God weighs mens actions to see how much of himself, and how much of us there is in our actions.

But now then, Is it so, that it is in the hearts of men to trust so much in their own way, because it is their own? Oh! what a shame is it then that we should not have our hearts close with, and trust in God's way! Let a way be never so base and vile, yet if it be a man's own, his heart doth close, and trust, and is strong in it: Oh then! when the way is apparently God's, why should we be so fickle and unsteadie as we are almost always in the way of God? Make but the way of Religion to be thy own, and then thou wilt be strong enough in it, but till that time is, till we have given up our Will to the Will of God, and we have made God's Will to be our own Will, we are never like to be strong in the Ways of God. When there is but one Will between God and us, that God's Will is our Will then we are strong, when God's Interest is our Interest, when God's Glory is our Glorie then we come to be strong. Oh! happy are they that have so given up themselves to God, as that they look upon their own good to be more in God than themselves, this is the work of Grace to look upon one's own good, and Wil, and comforts of our hearts and happiness of our lives, to be more in God than in our selves, that's the way to persevere in Godliness; as thus, As it is between man and wife, when the wife comes to make the Will of her husband her own, then she loves him strongly, and constantly:
so when God's will is made to be our own, then we will follow God's will strongly, and shall persevere in it. It follows:

And in the multitude of their Mighty Men.

This made them very confident in their way: Why, they had an Army to back them, they had an Army to fight for them, to maintain that way of theirs; they had countenance from men of Power, they had strength enough to crush any that should oppose them.

That's the Note that lies plainly before us: When the outward strength of a Kingdom goes along with a way of Religion then men think it must needs be right, and that all men are but weak men that appears against it. Mark the connexion: They trusted in their way: that is, (as I find generally Interpreters go) The way of Religion. And then, their Mighty Men, these two are put together: so that you see the Note is very evident before you, that's the way that generally men will trust in, and men will go that way; were the scale turn'd and the strength of the mighty men went another way; As now, Suppose that the strength of the Kingdom of the ten Tribes had been bent to go up to Jerusalem to worship, and not to worship at Dan & Bethel, Do you think there would have been almost any considerable party that would not have gone up to Jerusalem, but worshiped at Dan & Bethel? but when the strength of the Kingdom held the other way, when the mighty Men and the way of Religion went both in one, the generality of the people went that way that the mighty men went. This is the vanity and the exceeding evil of mens hearts, that which way soever the mighty men go, that way they will trust in. There are very few that will deliberately say so, I will go that way that I see the mighty men go in: But this is a secret by as & poise upon the spirits of men which inclins them to harken to what may be said for that way, & not willingly to what may be said for another. And secondly, It is such a poise upon their spirits,
Spirits, as makes them to be willing and ready to let in any probability, if there be but the least probability for the way that the mighty men go on in they take in that, and when they have taken in one probability, that makes way for another, and another, and so they drink in more and more, & to come to be strengthened for that way, so as to put off the strength of any thing that can be said against the way, except it be so apparent, as whether they will nor no, they must be forced to sin against their consciences directly if they go another way; I say, when the spirits of men are by as led by seeing the strength of the Kingdom go in a way, though (perhaps) they may have some good lie at their hearts, yet there is that corruption in man's heart that except we can make the other way so clear, that notwithstanding all shifts, and all kind of reasonings that may be, they shall be self-condemned in their own consciences, that their consciences shall tell them, they go directly against their light, I say, except we can come thus, we cannot prevail with men's hearts, when the way of a Kingdom goes another way. And there are many Truths of God that concerns his Worship, that cannot be made so clear but that a man may have such a diversion to satisfy his conscience in this, That in going another way, do not go against my conscience; God would have us, that what is most likely to be his mind that way to go, without any consideration of any outward respects. Now if there be a temptation for outward respects that they will come into the balance, do but turn the balance, and suppose in your own heart that all outward respects were in the other balance, that all the mightie men were of the other way, what would your hearts think? In Rev. 13. 3. That when Power and Authority was given unto Antichrist, The whole World wondered after her. So it is ordinary, that way that the mighty men go, that way mens hearts will generally go. Oh! the little honor that Jesus Christ hath by us! Our hearts are swayed for the most part by carnal Arguments, and carnal Motives.
Again, They trust in their way and in the multitude of their Mighty Men.

Great Armies are the things that are the Confidence of Carnal hearts: when they can get a great Army up of a multitude of Mighty Men, let there be never such threats in the Word, yet if they think they have strength enough to bear them out, they bless themselves in that. Oh! let us take heed of this Carnal Confidence: Through Gods Mercie the Lord hath given us now, that we have the multitude of Mighty Men on our side, let us take heed that our Faith do not ebb and flow as our Armies do; and I wil give you one Scripture that shews how far a gracious heart is from making flesh his Arm, Cursed is that man (you know the Scripture) that maketh flesh his Arm. But an example of a godly man to shew how far he was from trusting in an Armie of mighty men, in 2 Chron. 14. 11. It is nothing (faith Asa) with thee to help with many, or with them that have no power. Why Lord, though we have no power, yet thou canst help us. Why did Asa speak thus? Had he no power? You shall find in the Chapter a little before, that Asa had five hundred and fourscore thousand valiant fighting men, Almost six hundred thousand valiant men that he had at that time when he is pleading with God, Lord thou canst save where there is no power. We account it a great Army, if we have twenty, or thirtie, or fourty thousand men; he hath almoft six hundred thousand men, and yet goes to God and prays, Lord, thou canst help where there is no power.

And yet further from the connexion of these two.

Their way in which they trusted.] That is, The way of Religion, they thought that was good; But had they had nothing else to trust in but that, their trust would not have been very sure.

From thence the Note is this, That those who trust to any way of their own, had need of creature strengths to uphold them. It's a Note of very great use, they had need of bladders to be under their arm-holes, if they trust in a way of their own own. But now if the Way be the Way of God that a man hath confidence in, why then though all outward helps should fail him, though all encouragements should fail in this world, though we should see the creatures at never so great a distance, yet the heart that hath confidence in God’s way hath enough to uphold it; here’s the difference between men trusting in their own way, and in God’s way. Indeed when men trust in their own way so long as the Sun shines upon their way, that they have external helps, they can go on confident, but let outward helps fail, and their hearts sink within them.

But now when the heart is upright with God, and trusts in the Word, and Promises, then it is able to say with Habakkuk, in Chap. 3. 17. That though the Fig-tree shall not blossom, neither the fruit be in the Vines; the labor of the Olive should fail, and the Field should yeeld no meat, the Flock should be cut off from the fold, and there should be no Herd in the fields; yet they will rejoice in the Lord, and joy in the God of their salvation. Let Heaven and Earth meet together, whatsoever becomes of Armies, and of the Policies of men, of Friends, and all outward respects; yet I will bless my self in the Lord, and bless the time that ever I knew God, and his ways, my heart yet is confident it is the way of God, and I can venture my state upon it, and my libertie, and my life and soul upon this way; let all things seem to be under a cloud and never so dismal, yet my heart is steady, and is fixed in this way of God that the Lord God graciously hath drawn my heart into.

Oh! this is an excellent thing. Examin your hearts in that; when at any time you have seen things go very crost, yet then whether you have not had your hearts to shake.

I remember it’s an Observation that one hath about John Baptist. After he was cast into prison, he sends two of his Disciples to know whether Christ were the Messias, or no: They think that though before he was cast into prison he did know that he was so; Behold the Lamb of God! but when... once he came to sufferings, some think that there was some shaking of his Spirit. So it is many times with men, that when they begin to set upon a way and things do somewhat shine upon them, and they have some encouragements outwardly, then they go on, and are persuaded that it is a right way; but when things fall cross, that they are like to suffer in that way, and the hearts of men are against it, and they are like to meet with more evils than ever they made account of, then they begin to call things into question. And is this the right way? Oh! it is a sign that there was much failing in thy heart (at first) when in the time of outward afflictions thou comest to call into question whether it be the way of God, yea or no. It follows.

Ver. 14.

Therefore shall a tumult arise among thy people; and all thy fortresses shall be spoiled.

Expof. As if the Prophet should say, you have the Militia on your side, and you think you shall be able to drive on your design, this your trust is, you have all the strength with you: but (faith he) what if there should be seditious tumults within you; What if the power of the enemy without you should not come upon you, cannot God work your ruin that way that you think not of; Oh! how suddenly may God suffer the discontentments of people to break forth into rage and fury so that a tumult should arise among them, to make tumults and bring all into a most miserable confusion. It's a great fruit of the wrath of God and a plague upon a City or Country when God shall suffer tumults to arise among them. Therefore shall a tumult arise among them: as a threatening of God's severe wrath among these people that were so confident in their way. A man may avoid external dangers for his body, yea, but the distempers within his body may be his death.
There's fearful miseries comes upon Cities and Countries when
when tumults rise, and there are these two main things that have been the cause of tumults.

First, Great Oppressions

Secondly, Engaging numerous parties in matters Controversial.

These going both together are very dangerous, for men they will carry on what they have begun, if once they be engaged in it. To engage a rude multitude in a business especially if it be controversial, it's a very dangerous thing; for they being once engaged we do not know what they may do to pursue and follow their engagements, the evil it is inconceivable. When the multitude is in a rage, they are like to a tiled house that is on fire; when houses are on fire in the City the great part of the evil is, if the flame have gotten to the tiles you cannot come near the house the tiles flies so about your face: so it is in tumults, there's no coming neer to talk to them, to convince them, but they are ready to fly presently upon you. And there are none so cruel as the vilest of people when they are got together in a head; men of no blood care not what blood they shed. In Prov. 28. 3. A poor man that oppresseth the poor, is like a sweeping rain which leaveth no food. When a poor man comes to oppress; it's true, Oppressions are great, the evil of Tyranny it's very great; but the evil of Tumults is greater than the evil of Tyrannie: We see it many times in men that are of mean rank, sometimes in those Committees that some of you complain of. Now men could bear oppression on a great deal more if it were from those that are much above them, rather than from those that are their equals, or it may be under them in estate, and those that are most under men, if they come to get power any way they are like to be more oppressing than others: we have cause to bless God for delivering of us from tumults in this regard.

I might shew you most dreadful examples of tumults in stories. Josephus he speaks of many; for when God was about about to destroy the Jews at last by the Romans, their utter ruin was prepared by tumults and seditions that were among themselves. In his second Book of the Jewish Wars the 11. Chap. he speaks of one Eleazar, and Alexander that raised a Tumult, and murdered as they went, men, women, and children, and so made havoc of the Country, that the Nobles of Jerusalem were fain to come out cloathed with sackcloath and ashes upon their heads to beseech them that they would have pitie upon their Country, and upon their wives and children, and the Temple, The Nobles with sackcloath and ashes upon their heads came to aswage the rage of this Tumult so grievous was it. And I find in his sixt Book and 11. Chap. another story of Tumults and seditious Spirits, that they being in some straights for food if there were but any places in the City that had their doors shut up they did suspect there was meat and would present-lie break in, and as soon as ever they came in, catch whoever they found by the throat so as to take the meat out of their very mouths that was half chewed, they would not stand to ask them whether they had any thing or no but would run and catch them by the throat and pull the meat half chewed out of their mouths, and if any of them should let it go down before they could get hold upon their throats they would use them most cruelly for doing so.
And in another place he tells that the Citizens suffered more by them than when the Enemies took it; so that when the enemies took it they thought that it was rather a relieving of their miserie, than bringing evil upon them, because the evil of the Tumults was so great among them.
My Brethren, we should rather bear much than be any fo-menters of the raising of Tumults, take heed of that, you know not what the end of such things will be, A Tumult shall arise among them. In Amos, 2. 2. Moab shall die with Tumult.

Expol. 2. When God intends the forest scourge of all, utterly to destroy a people, he suffers Tumults to be among them. I find.
find some take this word Tumult [A Tumult shall arise] that is only meant the Confusion of the hearts of people when the enemies should come upon them, that they should be all in a Confusion, not knowing what to do through fear and terror altogether. As suppose on a sudden an Army should come against a Citie, people would be wringing of their hands and running up and down from place to place, and paleness in their countenances, and not knowing what in the world to do, all in a perplexity and tumult: Thus God threatens it should be with them. As if he should say, You are jolly and brave now, but when the Assyrims come out upon you then your hearts shall fail, and you shall all run together and not know what to do, the women and children shall cry, not knowing how to help your selves, and so shall be brought into a confused Tumult. This is the sense that some carries it in. But the sense may very well go either of these waies.

It is a mercy that God hath not tried us this way: We live in our houses, and follow our tradings, and lie down and sleep in quietness and rise again, but we cannot imagine what woful distractions there would be in the spirits of people in the Citie, if there were a considerable Army encamped round about it: Perhaps some of you here have been in places where the enemies have come suddenly, so that you know what this Tumult in the spirits of men and women means. Bless God (I say) that the Lord hath delivered us from such Tumults as these: And the Power and Providence of God in Government of the World by a few, in keeping people from Tumuling, and so bringing all to Confusion, it is to be acknowledged, and his Name to be sanctified:

The word that is translated Tumult; it doth indeed seem to import this. The crying of fearful creatures, those that are terrified and fear'd, it signifies the crying out of them. Oh! 'tis a great mercie for the heart of a man to be so established that when all dangers shall be apprehended, yet they can find...
find their hearts fixed in God, and not in a tumultuousness presently. A righteous man, it's said of him in Psalm 112, 7. That when he hears ill tidings, his heart is fixed: but it is a greater blessing, that when we see the Armies before us, and hear the neighings of Horses, and clattering of the Speers, then to be fixed. Oh! we should labor in the time of peace to make our calling and election sure. In Psalm 56, 7. My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed, I will sing and give praise. Awake my Glory, awake Psaltery and Harp, I my self will awake early, I will praise thee, O God, &c. When was this that David cries to awake, and to give Glory to God, and sing praise, and that his heart was fixed? It was when Saul persecuted him, it was when he was in danger of his life, when Saul pursued him to take away his life, yet, My heart is fixed, my heart is fixed, I will sing and give praise (faith David) even at that time. So in Psalm 46, 2, 3. We will not fear though the earth be removed, though the mountains be carried into the midst of the Sea, though the waters thereof roar and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof. Selah. This Psalm was wont to be called Luther's Psalm, for in times of trouble he would say, Come and let us sing the 46, Psalm. Many Scriptures we might have to this purpose.

I remember the storie of Archimedes, that when the Citty of Siracuse was taken, and the enemies came in with their drawn swords and hack'd and slew whom they pleased, and abundant of blood shed there was; yet he was so setled upon the drawing of his Lines (being a Mathematician) that when the Soldiers came in with their swords drawn, he was drawing his Lines about his Art. Which of you could, if you were at prayer, or any serious duty, if you should hear of the breaking in of Adversaries, Could you have your hearts fixed in a setled constant way, fixed upon God in such a time as this is?

As outward Tumults in Cities and Countries are very great evils, so are likewise Spiritual Tumults in the heart, when God seems to come against the Souls as an enemy, I have a place for spiritual tumults, that is, the trouble and distraction of the heart in the time of the apprehension of God's absence: in Psal. 40. 2. He brought me up (saith the Psalms) out of an horrible pit. Now the word is in the Original the very same word we have here: From the pit of Tumultuousness. Oh! it's true, as if he should say, my heart was fixed indeed; yet at other times I found my heart in a tumultuous condition when I apprehended God not coming in according as I expected, yea but the Lord did bring me up out of the pit of tumultuousness. Oh! hath not this been the condition of some of you in time of trouble of your spirit, when you have apprehended the absence of God from you? Your hearts have been all in a tumult, hath the Lord delivered you? Remember the Psalm, The Lord hath delivered me out of the pit of tumultuousness; I was in a tumultuous condition, my heart was even overwhelmed, but the Lord hath delivered me out of the pit of tumultuousness. And then in Psal. 61. 2. From the end of the earth will I cry unto thee, when my heart is overwhelmed; Lead me to the rock, that is higher than I. Remember that Scripture likewise.

And all thy fortresses shall be spoiled.

What are strong holds for the safeguard of a people when the strong God is against them? You have made Lines, and Fortifications. Oh! but the strong God is against you. In Nahum. 3. 12. All thy strong holds shall be like Fig-trees, with the first ripe figs, if they be shaken they shall even fall into the mouth of the eater.

And now my Brethren, blessed be God we know this Scripture to be true in a way of mercy, God hath made our enemies so to us, and not in a way of Judgment: God might have made our strong holds so to them, this Scripture might have been fulfilled thus, All thy Fortresses shall be spoiled, that is, though we have made Fortresses we might have have heard, first, of this strong hold spoiled, and the other strong hold in such a place spoiled, this Castle taken, and the other Castle taken, and we might have even been amazed with the news, and have said, How doth God fight against us, that though we had such strong holds, and men enough to man them, yet for all that they might have been but as the first ripe figs that being shaken fall into the mouth of the eater? How were our hearts dejected when we heard but of one strong hold being taken from us, (Bristol) But I say through Gods mercy this Summer the Lord hath made this text good unto us, all thy strong holds, not all ours, but all the Enemies: How have they been spoiled generally? Oh! the Lord hath appeared glorious this way, and hath made this last Summer to be a continual miracle of mercy to us in this very thing, All thy Fortresses shall be spoiled. It follows.

As Shalman spoiled Beth-arbel.

Expos. 1. Hierom reads it, As Salmana was destroyed by the house of him that vindicated Baal in the day of Battel. And so all that follow the old Latin, they refer this to the story that we have in Judges, 8. and think it hath reference to that, the story where Gideon slew Zalmunnah the Prince of Midian, and so they make Arbel to signify the same with Jerubbaal though more short. And the holy Ghost doth seem to make that great Judgment of God upon Salmunna to be exemplary, he makes use of it afterwards in Psalm, 83. 11. Make all their Princes like Zeba and Zalmunna. But now the letters in the Hebrew do differ here, and we do not reade of Gideon though he did use very much severity upon Zeba and Zalmunna, yet we do not reade that he dafht the mother upon the children.

Expos. 2. But Luther thinks that it is meant of some notable act of cruelty upon some that was very neer to them; but the particulars whereof we have not recorded in Scripture, but only only here mentioned, some notable execution of Justice it was upon a City Beth-arbel not long before, that God sets forth as an example of his most dreadful wrath that they might expect against themselves, this Beth-arbel we find it not in the Canonical Scripture but in 1 Macca. 9. 2. we find mention of such a place, and afterwards it was very famous for the great overthrow that Alexander the Great gave to Darius, so that it is as if the holy Ghost should say, Did you not hear of that horrid savage slaughter that Shalman caused in Beth-arbel when the mother was dashed in pieces upon her children, they had no pity of any sex or condition, the tender hearted mother imbracing of her children she was dashed in pieces upon them; such dreadful wrath of God your Bethel may expect, for so he alludes to that.

Beth-arbel signifies the House of the insinuating god, the god of Policy, and Subtilty, it seems the people that call’d this City by this Name, they had a God that they honored for the god of Subtilty, that would ensnare all their enemies they thought, and so they trusted in this god. And upon that called the City Beth-arbel, the house of the Insinuating god. But now this would not do, the more they sought by subtility to undermine their Enemies, the more were their Enemies enraged, and therefore when they came upon them they spoiled them, and dashed the Mother upon her own Children.

We might from this very word take notice of such a meditation as that, That we should not think by our plots and policies to prevail, if God be against us. Do not think to put off God by plots and policies and to avoid dangers that way; this people did so because they had a Beth-arbel, a God of Policy, they thought to prevail, but their misery was so much the greater. Mothers and Children were dashed in pieces one against another. If you make Arbel your God, Policy to be your God, you may expect so much the more rage of God; and of the Instruments of His wrath against you.
And let men take heed how they seek to deceive & cozen other men, for there is no such way to encourage one man against another as this is, when a man sees that he is sought to be undermined by policies, do not deal by that way with your friends, acquaintance, and neighbors, you will encourage them so much the more.

But Oh! the fury and rage of War when God lets it out, to dash Mother against Children. We read in Psal. 137 concerning the children of Idolaters, that when the Lord lets out his wrath upon the parents, he will let it out upon the children too, Happy shall be he that taketh and dasheth thy little ones against the stones. It's a very strange phrase. And in Isa. 13. 16. Their children shall be dashed in pieces before their eyes. I remember Ursine in his Comment upon that place of

But though God doth thus execute his Wrath, yet usually because it is so dreadful and there is so much savageness in the thing in mans eye, therefore God doth use to do it by wicked men, and we never read that he made use of his own Saints to execute that wrath. And then he answers that doubt, I, but is it not said in the Psalm, Blessed are those that dash their little ones against the stones, it may seem that it is approved of? Now that is his answer, and Calvin, and others, that he doth not mean Blessed, that is, That they are blessed in their persons, or eternal blessings of Mercy; but it is a Prophetical wish that they might have success in the work, that they might have the blessing of success in the work, as an execution of Gods Wrath, and Gods Justice, though the Instruments did sin in it, they did it to execute their savage cruelty, yet the Prophet doth look upon the Justice of God in it, and wishes success unto them in such a work as that is, that the Justice of God may go on and have its course, speaking in the way of a Prophetical spirit.

The sins of parents (you may see) many times comes upon little ones. What hath the poor Infant done? Oh! you tender-hearted.
hearted mothers, consider of this, how far your sin may reflect upon your children: If ever you should see bloody Soldiers to come in in a terrible way, (as sometimes you have had fears that way) and dash you upon your children, consider this is your sin that hath done it.

But you will say, Shall the children suffer for the Fathers Object. sin?

Do not we read that God will visit the sins of Idolaters unto the third and fourth Generation? Indeed were your children innocent, had they no original sin, then it were another matter; but now considering they have enough in them to make them subjects of God's wrath, God may take advantage the rather because of thy sin, and therefore take heed, and especially take heed to God's Worship, for we do not find in Scripture where any children are so threatened as the children of Idolaters are.

And then a further Note is this, That the Judgments of God near to us should awaken us; we should think, Why may it not be upon our selves? This was a heavy Judgment of God upon some City near, and God would awaken them, Oh! what have we heard hath been upon our Brethren in other parts, and we have been fottifh, and not sensible of it because it hath not just come upon our Gates; the Lord expects when we hear of any dreadful evil upon others, that we should tremble and fear before him. And then one thing further note from hence.

As Shalman spoild Beth-arbel.

The word that is here Shalman, it signifies the name of one that is peaceable; one that is peaceable, and yet he shall exercise his cruelty so, as to dash the Mother upon her Children, this is not one that bears cruelty in his name, not a Tyger, but a Shalman, a peaceable man as his name carries it, and yet thus cruel when he comes to have power?

Oh!
An Exposition of

Chap. 10.

Ob! men who have peace in their names, and peace in their mouths, and peace in show, yet when they come to have power often times are very cruel; We were like to have found it so, if our adversaries should have prevailed, especially this City might have been made a Beth-erel, & Mothers dafted upon their Children. It's true, when the adversaries did prevail in any place they did not do so, but it was not through any ingenuity or pity, but out of fear, but had they gotten the day then we might have expected even dashing of the Mother against the children.

Ver. 15.

So shall Bethel do unto you, because of your great wickedness.

So shall Bethel.] What shall Bethel rise up against the rest of the ten Tribes, and come and destroy Mother and Children together? That's not the meaning.

Expos. But Bethel shall do it; that is, Bethel is the Cause of this, that dreadful slaughter that is like to be among you it shall come from Bethel. Who would ever have thought that?

Ob. 1.

Oh my Brethren! Miserable Judgments do many times arise from causes we little think of: that's the Note from thence. I say, miserable Judgments do many times arise from causes we little think of, From Bethel there should come this slaughter and dreadful blood-shed. And as that Note more generally, so more particularly this;

Ob. 2.

That from places of Idolatry comes the greatest evils to Kingdoms. As 'tis very observable on the contrary, from the places of Gods Worship comes the greatest good, so from places of Idolatry the greatest evil. In Psal. 76. 2, 3. In Salem is his Tabernacle, and his dwelling place in Zion: There brake be the Arrows of the Bow, the Shield and the Sword, and the Battle. Did God break them there? Was there a Fight in Zion, and in Salem? No, that's not the meaning, but in Zion and Salem.
Salem where God's Tabernacle was, those Servants of God that were worshiping of God in Jerusalem, and in Zion, and praying to God they got the Victory: so we may say that such a place that was fasting and praying in the time of our battles, there God brake the Arrow and the Bow, in that place where they were praying and seeking God, it was in Salem and Zion: Where the true worship of God is, from thence comes the good of a Kingdom. And so in Isa. 31. 9. Whose fire is in Zion, and whose furnace is in Jerusalem: The Lord is there threatening the Enemies of his people, and he faith, That his fire is in Zion, and his furnace is in Jerusalem, there God hath his furnace and from thence it shall go to destroy the adversaries. And so on the contrary, where Idolatry is set up, and false worship maintained, from thence comes evils and miseries upon us.

Because of your great wickedness.

The word is, Because of the wickedness of your wickedness, so the Hebrews express the suprême degree, by a genitive case, the evil of the evil, the wickedness of the wickedness. From whence observe,

Other sins are great sins, but this of false worship indeed is THE great sin that God is provoked against a people for. Whence, let us not make light account of the Worship of God, for how little soever God's Worship is in our eyes, yet it is a great matter in God's eyes, and though you think that the sins against God in the matter of his Worship be but small, yet God faith, it is the great wickedness, it is the wickedness of wickedness: And great wickedness it may be called not only in respect of the nature of it, but from many aggravations, and long continuance in it, notwithstanding all their means.

You may Note further from hence; God takes notice not only of mens sins, but of the aggravation of their sins. Oh! let us do thus, do not only look upon your sins and acknowledg.
An Exposition of Chap. 10.

ledg your selves to be sinners, but look upon the Aggravations of your sins; Oh! this sin committed against so many Mercies, so many Prayers, and Resolutions, and Vows, and Covenants, and so many Deliverances that I have had; labor to lay the Aggravations of your sins upon your hearts, and this is the way to humble your hearts before the Lord. Indeed the Saints of God they need not seek to extenuate their sins, be not afraid to lay the aggravations of sin upon your own hearts, according to what great aggravations there may be. Greaten your wickedness before the Lord, do not to as ordinarily people do, to extenuate your sins, for if there be any extenuation that possibly can be Jesus Christ will find out that in his pleading, Christ is your advocate who sits at the right hand of the Father, and it is his work to plead your cause, and therefore if there can be anything to extenuate a sin he will do it; you know that when he was here in this world, when his Disciples did offend very much in that sleepiness of theirs, that when Christ was to suffer they could not watch with him one hour, that sin might have been aggravated with abundance of circumstances, but faith Christ, the flesh is weak, but the Spirit is willing; he falls to extenuate and excuse. Now that which Christ did there, he will be ready to do in Heaven, for thou that art a Saint.

Matth. 26. 41.

Illustrated.

Ob 7. And then further, According to greatness of sins so is the greatness of wrath; great wickedness and great wrath they go together, and therefore according to the greatness of sins should the greatness of our humiliation be. For so it is said of Manafes, That he humbled himself greatly, and in Lament. 1. 20. where the Church is humbling itself before God for the great wickedness and the great wrath that was upon them. Behold, Oh Lord, for I am in distress; my bowels are troubled, mine heart is turned within me; for I have grievously rebelled. Mark, here you have these two points together, The Church aggravates her sin, I have grievously rebelled; and what then? Oh Lord, I am in distress; my bowels are troubled, bled, my heart is turned within me. Oh! remember this text you whose consciences do tell you of grievous Rebellions. The last words follow;

In a morning shall the King of Israel be utterly cut off.

Now for the understanding of this, we must consider to what this refers, what King of Israel this was, and when this was fulfilled. For that if you read 2 Kings. 17. it hath reference to the story there; and this King of Israel that is here spoken of, is Hoshea that was the last King of Israel, and therefore it's said, That he shall be utterly cut off: For he, and all his family was utterly cut off, there was an end of the Kingdom of Israel that had continued so long provoking God; faith he, I have forborne the Kings of Israel a long time, but now they shall be utterly cut off in Hoshea.

This King of Israel his spirit was stout enough against God and his Prophets, and he would, and he would. My Brethren, It is not the stoutness of the greatest men upon earth to say, They will, and they will, and they will venture their Lives, and Kingdom. Why, if they Will, God Will too, he hath a Will as well as they, at length Gods Will grows as strong as theirs, and proceeds against them, and against their very families: The King of Israel shall be utterly cut off.

Kings of the Earth they suffer little from men. What a brave business is it for a man that he shall be able to go up and down in Countries, and rend, and tear, and oppress, and bring thousands into woful miseries and extremities, and yet be afraid to suffer nothing at all Himself, therefore it is fit for God to take in hand those men that are above the power of men; when men cannot deal with them, it is the Lord himself he takes them into hand, and they are so much the more under the immediate Justice of the Infinite God.
Put when shall this be? In a morning: There is a sad morning coming.

But I find Cyril carries it thus: God in his Patience is compared to a man asleep, and in the execution of Judgment is said to awake; God brings his Righteous judgments to light every morning. But that's a little too forced.

But secondly, In a morning: that is, Early, betimes; so in Jer. 21. 12. Observe of David, thus saith the Lord, Execute Judgment in the Morning. So the King of Israel shall be early cut off. And indeed this King of Israel he was early cut off, he did not reign above eight or nine yeers at most. God doth take some in the morning of their time, in their youth, when their day is but as it were dawning, he takes some sinners sooner than others: In the morning he shall be cut off.

But Thirdly, In the morning, which comes yet nearer and more full to the sense and the scope of the Spirit of God here; that is, even when the light comes, when they have hopes of further good, then he shall be cut off. And so you shall find if you read the story in the book of Kings, at this time when Heshea was to be cut off, that it was when he had entered into League with the King of Egypt, and now Heshea thought a morning would arise, and he should have a brave day, and live many merry days now; and when he thought the light began to come, in a morning doth God come to cut him off.

Ob! so it is many times (my Brethren). That at that time when people have some enlightening, and they think that now light is breaking out, when after a long night of darkness, then God's displeasure breaks forth upon them. We cannot but acknowledge that the Lord hath granted us a morning light, but let us fear and tremble; for the time of God's displeasure, sometime it is in the morning, when we think we have light breaking forth, God may have other waies to bring darkness.
darkness upon us than we are aware of; we know how dreadful a day it was with Sodom after a Sun-shine moring. It's very observable, the difference of Gods dealing with his own People, and with those that are carnal and of the world: compare this Scripture with Zach. 14. 7.
Here, In a morning shall be utterly cut off. But in Zach. 14.
7, where God is speaking of mercy to his People, he speaks of a day that should be known to God, and faith he; At the text, & evening time it shall be light; He comforts his People thus, explained.
But when he threatens the wicked (faith he) When the morning comes it shall be darkness. The Lord doth use to turn the darkness of the Saints into light, and to turn the light of the wicked and ungodly into darkness. Oh! let us learn to fear that God then that is able to turn light into darkness, and darkness into light. Amos, 5. 8. Seek him Amos, 5.
(faith the text) that turneth the shadow of death into the moring, and maketh the day dark with night. He can turn the shadow of death into morning. Suppose there be the greatest darkness upon you, God can make that a morning of light; and suppose there be a morning of light, God can turn that into darkness. Many men they set upon some waies, and because they have a morning they bless themselves and think all must needs go on according to their way; it is a very ordinary thing in the hearts of men, especially that are compassing some notable design of their own, if it doth prosper in the beginning they think al will go on: Oh! thou maiest be utterly deceived, thy designs may have a morning, and then God may cut thee off and thy designs, and all thy thoughts may then perish. We reade that Saul had many Victories after that God had pronounced that he should be rejected. And therefore we had need fear that God, that can turn the morning into darkness, and darkness into light.
Fourthly, God did not discomfit the Hott of the Egyp. Obs. 4 ians until the morning. God loves to draw forth great sinners to the light; not to come upon them in the dark, but to bring forth his judgments in the morning openly and clearly.

Ob. 5. And lastly, In the morning he shall be cut off. That is, Suddenly, God will be quick at his work: They thought by their power to hold it out: No, faith God, I will not make a dajies work of it, it shall be in the morning, so the old Latin turns it, It shall pass as the morning. as the light of the morning quickly passes over; as you heard before, as the King of Israel is compared to the foam, so he is here compared to the morning. Now my brethren to close this Chapter, Oh! what alteration of things God is able to make in a morning! They (it may be) the day before, and over night were jolly and merry, and blest themselves in their way; they had confidence in their way, and multitude of their mighty men; but in a morning all is spoiled. God can make mighty alterations in a Kingdom in a morning, and in Cities, and Families, and particular Persons, mighty alterations in a morning: My Brethren, Who knows what a day may bring forth? Who knows what a morning may bring forth? Ezek. 7. 5, 6, 7, 8. Thus saith the Lord God, An evil, an only evil, behold, it is come. An end is come, the end is come, it watches for thee, behold, it is come. The Morning is come unto thee, O thou that dwellest in the land; the time is come, the day of trouble is near. As if God should say, Al this while that thou hast bin in the act of the pride of thy heart, and vanity of thy spirit, I did determin, that such a morning, such an evil should come, and it’s come; it is come, it is come, faith God. Again, again, and again, the morning is come. O! think, when you lie down at night, think what thou hast done this day, do not dare to lie down, but first make thy peace with God, thou knowest not what may be in the morning, and when thou risest up in the morning, look up to God, and seek blessing and mercy from the Lord; for though thine eyes be opened, and thou come to see the morning light, yet before the morning be quite gone, thou knowest not what may befal thee, and therefore seek to make thy peace with God, both in the night and in the morning; for great changes may come to thee both in the night and in the morning, that thou never thoughtest of in all thy life. And thus (through God’s blessing) we have finished the Tenth Chapter.
The Prophesie of Hosea.
